Supplementary Material

This document contains the parts of the Survey presented in the research article.

Informed Consent

"This is a voluntary survey for all researchers working in the Max Planck Society. The survey aims at providing PhDnet and all researchers with a clear picture of the knowledge, attitude, need and implementation of Open Science and Good Scientific Practises of researchers of the Max Planck Society.

Please take time and carefully read the following terms and conditions regarding data protection and usage: The data you provide in this survey will only be evaluated and presented in an aggregated and anonymized form. All the data collected comply with the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR).It is not possible to identify you at any moment, as long as you refrain from providing personal data. The aggregated and anonymized data will be shared with the PhDnet Steering Group, the Max Planck Digital Library and the Max Planck General Administration. The External PhD Representatives will be informed, when the final survey report is online, where it can also be downloaded by all researchers.

In addition, the anonymized data will potentially become openly available through its publication in scientific journals that endorse Open Access standards. The survey is hosted on LimeSurvey with restricted access provided by the Max Planck Society. Participating in the survey is possible via a unique token generating system. If you stop participating in the survey before completion, the collected data will be automatically deleted. In order for the survey to provide representative data, it is essential that the majority of researchers of the Max Planck Society participate.

The questionnaire will take about 10 to 15 minutes to complete and contains questions about scientific practices, open publishing, open data and confirmatory research. The final report will be made available at the end of 2019 at https://www.phdnet.mpg.de/home. If you have questions, or wish to report technical issues, you can reach any of the following members of the PhDnet OpenScience Working Group:

Isabell Tunn
Daniel Toribio-Florez
If you click "Next", you accept the terms and conditions listed above, as well as the use of the provided data in case you complete the survey."

Section 1 - Open Science Practices

In this section, we assessed the opinion about different scientific practices related to Open Science. We first presented a brief description of a specific scientific practice. The definitions used for each Open Science practice are presented below:

Open Access Publications: Unrestricted public availability of a research paper on the internet through formal publication systems (e.g. Open Access Publishers) or author self-archiving (e.g. working papers or pre-prints in online repositories).

Open Data: Unrestricted public availability of research data and/or any resource necessary for the collection of this data (methodology, protocol, software packages, etc.), generally through online repositories.

Pre-registrations: Detailed registration of hypotheses, study design, methodology and analyses prior to data collection to which the researcher commits in order to guarantee a transparent confirmatory (vs. exploratory) test of the formulated hypotheses.

Registered Reports: Publication format consisting of two peer-reviewed stages: 1) An in-principle acceptance of a research paper prior to data collection based on a detailed preregistration, and 2) The actual publication of the research paper after data collection, including any result (statistically significant or not) obtained by following what was specified in the preregistration.

Replication Studies: Studies intended to 1) reproduce a scientific finding from a previous study by recreating the critical elements that are assumed to explain the original result (i.e., close replication), or 2 ) generalize a scientific finding by purposefully modifying at least one component of the original study, such as the sample, the protocol, or the material used (i.e., conceptual replication).

Most questions following the definitions used a 7-point scale (1-Not at all, 7 - Extremely), and included the option "I don't want to answer this question.

Open Access Publications:

Definition: Unrestricted public availability of a research paper on the internet through formal publication systems (e.g. Open Access Publishers) or author self-archiving (e.g. working papers or pre-prints in online repositories).

Registered Reports

Definition: Publication format consisting of two peer-reviewed stages: 1) An in-principle acceptance of a research paper prior to data collection based on a detailed preregistration, and 2) The actual publication of the research paper after data collection, including any result (statistically significant or not) obtained by following what was specified in the preregistration.

Replication Studies

Definition: Studies intended to 1) reproduce a scientific finding from a previous study by recreating the critical elements that are assumed to explain the original result (i.e., close replication), or 2 ) generalize a scientific finding by purposefully modifying at least one component of the original study, such as the sample, the protocol, or the material used (i.e., conceptual replication).

Section 2 - Local Support

This section intended to analyze how researchers at the Max Planck Society are locally supported in matters related to Open Science. It contained 7 questions and 4 conditional questions which are not reported in this research article.

Section 3 - General Information and Demographics

Q48: "How old are you?"
Type: single choice
Answer option:
$0(\mathrm{n}=1), 9(\mathrm{n}=1), 22(\mathrm{n}=2), 23(\mathrm{n}=6), 24(\mathrm{n}=30), 25(\mathrm{n}=36), 26(\mathrm{n}=75), 27(\mathrm{n}=107), 28(\mathrm{n}=75), 29$
