Figure S1. The distributions of wood density for eight tree species are compared between ground measurements (red) and random forest predictions (blue).