War Department, Office of the Chief of Staff, Washington, August 30, 1905.

Sin: I have the honor to transmit herewith the manuscript of a work entitled "A Handbook and Grammar of the Tagalog Language," consisting of 399 pages of typewriting, which I estimate will make about 200 pages in print. I would suggest that the work be bound in a substantial water-proof cover, similar to that used for the latest edition of the "Soldier's Handbook," and that the size be 8 by 5½ inches, or approximately so.

I would also invite attention to the folders accompanying. * * * It would be best to have the left-hand edge of the folders begin at the outside margin of the printed page, so that when extended the student could read the corresponding text to the synopsis at the same time and not be obliged to turn the pages back and forth.

Very respectfully,

WILLIAM E. W. MACKINLAY, First Lieutenant, First Cavalry.

PREFACE.

Shortly after the arrival of the author in the Philippines he, in common with many others, felt the need of a work upon the Tagalog language in English, and began to prepare this compendium, working upon it from time to time as other military duties permitted, and, upon being ordered to duty in Washington for the purpose of having better facilities for the completion of the work, has been enabled to bring it to such completion, under the direction of Maj. W. D. Beach, Fifteenth Cavalry, chief of the Second Division. General Staff.

Division, General Staff.

As the Tagalog, belonging to a very different family of languages from those with which Americans are familiar, has extremely dissimilar characteristics from English or any Aryan tongue, the writer has devised a type scheme, presented in the folder herewith, by which the salient points of difference may be seen at a glance and vividly retained in the memory, thus enabling the student to use correct and intelligible Tagalog.

Supplemented by that constant practice necessary for the ear, it is believed that the copious index to this work, together with the type scheme, selected vocabularies, and plain nontechnical (as far as possible) explanations of the grammatical structure of Tagalog, will prove to be of value to those whose duty or inclination may lead them to consult this book. Such, at least, is the hope of the writer.

The Tagalog language is easily pronounced, regular in its forms, and although its structure is complex, yet when once grasped it is so plain that it is not only clearly comprehended, but is a key to all the Malayan tongues, especially to those of the Philippines. It is an idiom which builds up its sentences and parts of speech from roots by means of particles which are prefixed, infixed, or suffixed to the roots. Several of these particles may be combined with the same root, each having its share in the modification of the inherent idea of the root.

Attention is also invited to the great use of the "definite" in Tagalog, the so-called "passive" of the Spanish writers upon this subject.

The index, which has been made very full and copious, should be consulted, as every probable combination of particles has been noted, as well as Tagalog roots and English words occurring in the work. For example, every word preceded by the compound particle ipinag has been listed, thus enabling the root to be found at once, and so on in like manner.

The writer desires to express his appreciation for assistance received from the military authorities both in the Philippine Islands and the United States, from many of his brother officers, and from Profs. Friedrich Hirth, of Columbia; E. W. Hopkins, of Yale (secretary of the American Oriental Society); Paul Haupt and F. W. Blake, of Johns Hopkins; Otis T. Mason, of the Smithsonian Institution, and the late John W. Huett, of Luther College, Illinois. Valuable suggestions were also received from Messrs. Pedro Serrano Laktaw, author of a Tagalog-Spanish dictionary; Luis Torres, and Vicente Albert, all of Manila.

A HANDBOOK AND GRAMMAR OF THE TAGALOG LANGUAGE.

BIBLIOGRAPHY OF TAGALOG.

BOOKS CONSULTED IN THE PREPARATION OF THIS WORK.

It is scarcely necessary to mention that authorities upon Tagalog have not been very plentiful, even with the great revival of interest in the Malayo-Polynesian languages which has taken place within the last few years. The number of works, old and new, large and small, upon this subject, or bearing upon it, is very close to forty, and many of these are of little value or are obsolete. The number of reprints, however, brings the aggregate up to about one hundred, but this has no bearing upon the material available for study.

The isolation of the Philippine Islands under the Spanish régime also contributed to the neglect of the Philippine languages, and it seems almost as if Spanish and foreign workers in this field studiously avoided consulting one another's researches, or else were ignorant of them. In the review of books written upon Tagalog, or containing notices of it, works written to teach Spanish to the Tagalogs, novels—generally romances of the type current in the middle ages in Europe-lives of saints, and miscellaneous works, which make up what may be called the Tagalog literature, have The total number of works in Tagalog may be estimated been omitted. at from four to five hundred, and very few can be said to have a literary value.

The energy of those who are able to write Tagalog well has mainly been absorbed in newspaper work, and no great work has as yet appeared in the language.

It can scarcely be doubted that if some of the great works of the world were translated into Tagalog and placed where they would be accessible to the common people, who do not speak or read Spanish, and are almost too old to learn English well, that the results would be of great and immediate importance in the mental development of the race.

The honor of the first written treatise upon the Tagalog language probably belongs to the Friar Agustín de Alburquerque, who arrived at Manila from Nueva España (Mexico) in 1571, and after three years' residence in Taal, Balayan, and other parts of Batangas, became Prior of Tondo in 1575, . holding the position until his death in 1580. This treatise has never been published, and the assertion is opposed by the Franciscan order, which claims the credit for the first work upon this subject. (See Vol. II, p. 563, "Estadismo de las Islas Filipinas, de Zúñiga," edited by W. E. Retana, Madrid, 1893; "La Política de España en Filipinas," año VI, núm. 134; and the "Catálogo Bio-Bibliográfico de los Religiosos Agustinos," Pérez, Manila, 1901.)

To the Franciscan friar Juan de Plasencia, or Portocarrero, who came to the Philippines with the first mission of his order in 1577, is attributed an "Arte y Diccionario" of Tagalog in 1581, which has remained in manuscript. (See "Catálogo Biográfico de los Religiosos Franciscanos," Moya, Manila, 1880.)

However, the most important point is when the first printed work upon the language was published, and this was undoubtedly in the year 1610. when an "Arte y Reglas de la Lengua Tagala," by Friar Francisco de San José of the Dominican order, and who arrived in the Philippines in 1595, was printed in the "Partido de Bataán," probably by Tomás Pinpín, a Tagalog. The book is a quarto of 327 pages of rice paper. One copy exists in the Museo-Biblioteca de Ultramar at Madrid. Other editions of this book were printed at Manila in 1752 and 1832. (See Retana's edition of Zúñiga, pp. 101–105.)

This work was followed in 1612 by the "Vocabulario de la Lengua Tagala," by Friar Pedro de San Buenaventura of the Franciscan order, who was in charge of parishes in the present province of La Laguna, and whose work was printed in Pila by Tomás Pinpín and Domingo Loag, The book is described by Medina in his "La Imprenta en Manila," Santiago de Chile, 1896, and a facsimile of the title-page is given.

The Franciscan friar Juan de Oliver, who died in the Camarines in 1597, is said to have written a treatise upon the Tagalog, but his work seems to have been limited to correcting and adding to the "Arte y Diccionario" of Plasencia. Another of the same order, Francisco de San Antonio, who was in charge of Baler from 1611 to 1616, and from that time until his death in 1624 resided in the present La Laguna, wrote an "Arte" and a Tagalog-Spanish vocabulary, which works existed in manuscript in 1745, the author being known also as "Orejita." (See Cat. Biog. Rel. Fran., Manila, 1880; and the preface to the "Arte" of Totanes.)

The Augustinian friar Juan de Quiñones, who died in Manila in 1587, also left a work upon the Tagalog, which is said by Beristain to have been printed in Manila in 1581. (See Beristaín, Biblioteca Hispano-Americana Setentrional, Amecameca, México, 1883–1887, 2d ed.) The first edition was printed in Mexico City in 1816. (See Vol. II, p. 464.) The matter seems to be doubtful.

The Franciscan friar Gerónimo Monte y Escamilla, who died in 1614, is said to have left in manuscript an "Arte" and "Diccionario" in Tagalog, but the work, if extant, is in the archives of his order. (See Cat. Rel. Fran., Manila, 1880, p. 60.) A similar manuscript is said to have been written by Francisco de San Antonio, of the same order, who came to the Philippines in 1606 and died at Pila, La Laguna, in 1624. (See Id., p. 139.)

The third printed work upon Tagalog was the "Arte de Idioma Tagálog," by the Franciscan Agustín de la Magdalena, who arrived in the islands in 1665 and lived in Tayabas and Laguna for some years. Returnished he there cave his manuscripts to the press in 1679, and in ing to Mexico he there gave his manuscripts to the press in 1679, and in 1684 returned to Manila, dying in Santa Cruz de La Laguna in 1689. (See La Imprenta en México, Medina, Sevilla, 1893, No. 1784; and Cat. Rel.

Fran., Manila, 1880, p. 292.)
The Dominican friar Teodoro (Quiros) de la Madre de Díos, who came to the islands in 1627 and died in 1662, has been credited with an "Arte" of Tagalog by some bibliographers of Philippine literature, but Medina * marks such a work as doubtful, as far as the printing is concerned.

The eighteenth century witnessed a revival of interest in the language, and in 1703 two works, both of which have been reprinted, were printed.

The first was the "Compendio de la Arte de la lengua Tagala," printed The first was the "Compendio de la Arre de la league de la 1870, and in Manila. This excellent treatise was reprinted at Sampáloc in 1787, and league la 1870. Both the early editions are now rare. The author was the Augustinian friar Gaspar de San Agustín, who came to the Philippines in 1668, and died in Manila in 1724. He is better known as the author of the work "Conquistas de las Islas Filipinas," Part I, Madrid, 1698; Part II, Valladolid, 1890. The third edition, however, retains many obsolete words.

The second work was a "Vocabulario," or dictionary of the Tagalog, written by the Franciscan friar Domingo de los Santos, who came to the Philippines in 1665, and after administering parishes mainly in La Laguna, died in Majayjay in 1695. His work was printed in the town of Tayabas in 1703, and but two copies seem to be known. One is from the Marsden collection, and is in the library of King's College, London, and the other in the archives of the Franciscan order. Some leaves of a manuscript "Arte" by the same author are also preserved in the archives. This dictionary was reprinted in Sampáloc in 1794 and in Manila in 1835. It is now obsolete. (See Cat. Rel. Fran., Manila, 1880, p. 294; Biblioteca Filipina, Retana, Madrid, 1898 [referred to hereafter as R.]; Nos. 77 and 148; ld., Nos. 26 note, 66 note, 66 and 594; and Cat. Bio.-Bib. Rel. Agustinos, Manila, 1901, pp. 133-134.)

The next work upon this subject was the "Arte y Reglas de la lengua Tagala," by the Augustinian friar Tomás Ortíz, printed at the convento of Sampáloc in 1740. The author came to the Philippines in 1690, was a missionary in China until about 1712, and died in Manila in 1742. (See Medina, La Imprenta en Manila and Cat. Rel. Agustinos, p. 169.) In 1742 the Franciscan friar Melchor Oyanguren de Santa Inés, who had lived in the Philippines, mainly at Los Baños and Sariaya, from 1717 to 1736, gave a work to the press in Mexico entitled "Tagalysmo." This interesting book, which has never been reprinted, compares with Tagalog the Mandarin dialect of Chinese, Hebrew, and Greek, the Tagalog being reduced as far as possible to a Latin basis. (R., 39.)

In 1745 the work of the Franciscan Sebastián de Totanés was printed at Sampáloc. This valuable treatise, entitled "Arte de la lengua Tagala y Manual Tagálog," was reprinted at Sampáloc in 1796, at Manila in 1850, and in Binondo (Manila) in 1865. (R., 42, 79, 202, and 329.) The author came to the Philippines in 1717 and remained twenty-nine years in the islands. During his residence at Lilio and Pagsanhan, La Laguna, from 1732 to 1738, he wrote the foregoing book. He died in Madrid in 1748, having left the Philippines in 1746. (Cat. Rel. Fran., Manila, 1880, pp. 390-391.)

In 1754 the great "Vocabulario," or dictionary, of the Tagalog, explained in Spanish, was printed at Manila by the Jesuits. The main authors were Juan de Noceda, S. J., and Pedro de San Lucar, S. J. A second edition, with a Spanish-Tagalog appendix, was printed in Valladolid in 1832, which is now very rare, nearly all copies having been lost by shipwreck en route to the islands. There is a copy in the Library of Congress. Another edition, with additions, was printed by the Augustinian order at Manila This work, although many words are obsolete, is the standard on Tagalog as yet. It is also becoming rare. (R., 48, 136, and 268.)

The next work containing a notice of Tagalog is in English. In Johann Reinhold Forster's "Observations made during a Voyage round the World" (London, 1778; German translation by his son, Georg Forster, Berlin, 1783) a list of 47 English words is given, with their equivalents in Tagalog, Pampango, Malay, and several Polynesian dialects. From some rare words the Tagalog would appear to have been taken from Noceda and San Lucar. Forster was born in Germany in 1729, a descendant of the Forester family of Scotland, and accompanied Captain Cook in his second voyage to the South Sea (1772-1775). After his return he became professor at Halle, Germany, where he died in 1798. His book is especially valuable concerning the Polynesian races and islands.

A few years later the German naturalist Peter Simon Pallas (born 1741, died 1811), who had become professor of natural history in the Imperial Academy of Sciences at St. Petersburg in 1768, published there in 1787– 1789 the work known as the "Vocabularium Catharine," from its patroness, Catharine II. Written in Russian, it gives the corresponding word for nearly 200 terms in 200 languages. In this list Pampango is No. 186 and Tagalog No. 187. The source is not given, but that for the Tagalog is evidently the same as that of Forster. The Latin equivalent for the Russian words is given in the preface. The full title of the work is "Linguarum totius Orbis Vocabularia comparativa." It is in two quarto volumes. At the same time the Spanish author Lorenzo Hervas y Panduro (born 1735, died 1809), of the Society of Jesus, published two works bearing upon Tagalog to a slight extent, but of importance as inspiring other work upon the same line. The first was his "Aritmética," published in Cesena, Italy, in 1785, and the second, his "Vocabolario Poliglotto," published at the same place in 1787, both in Italian. In the latter he gives specimens of the language of 1593, of 1604, and his own time. The Spanish edition, printed at Madrid in two volumes in 1801, has his observations upon Tagalog in the second volume.

In 1803 Prof. Franz Carl Alter, librarian of the Imperial and Royal University of Vienna, published a work of 60 pages upon the Tagalog, with the title "Ueber die tagalische Sprache." This work seems based upon a manuscript vocabulary from the library of Count Wrbna at Vienna, supplemented by words from Pallas and the works of the Abbé Hervas. The latter seems to have corresponded with Alter, who speaks of Hervas in the preface to his book, and also of Miss Knight, of England, probably a sister of Thomas Payne Knight, the numismatist, as being interested in his researches.

A work which is yet of value to the student is that of Johann Christoph Adelung (born in Germany in 1731, died in Dresden, Saxony, 1806), entitled "Mithridates, oder Allgemeine Sprachenkunde." In the first volume, which appeared at Berlin in 1806, on pages 127 and 128, two versions of the Lord's Prayer are given—one of 1593 and the other of current form—with an explanation of the grammatical forms as deduced from the words. The author, who gives specimens from over 500 languages, is best remembered for his great work in German philology, and at the time of his death was principal librarian of the Elector of Saxony, at Dresden.

Adriano Balbi (born in Venice in 1782, died there 1848) published an "Atlas Ethnographique du Globe" at Paris in 1826. (See Table No. 364 and pp. 246 to 249, for remarks upon Tagalog.)

The catalogue of William Marsden, the eminent orientalist (born in England in 1754, died there 1836), published at London in 1827, contains mention of some manuscript "Artes" of Tagalog not known to have been printed. One is an "Arte" by a Dominican friar, dated 1736, and the other a "Vocabulario" by the Dominican Miguel Ruiz, dated 1580. This, however, must be an error, as the Dominicans did not arrive in the Philippines until 1587. Miguel Ruiz was one of their early friars, but little seems to have been recorded about him. In Marsden's Miscellaneous Works (London, 1834), page 94, are also some observations upon Tagalog.

Works (London, 1834), page 94, are also some observations upon Tagalog. To the genius of the German author Wilhelm von Humboldt the world is indebted for his magnificent work upon the Malayo-Polynesian languages, which was published by the Royal Academy of Sciences at Berlin, in three volumes, in 1838, under the title "Ueber die Kawi-Sprache auf der Insel Java." His dissertation upon the Tagalog verbal system and formations in Volume II, pages 347 to 396, clearly establishes the fact that the Tagalog and allied tongues of the Philippines have preserved the verbal modifying particles to a greater extent than any other members of this great linguistic family, and on page 288 of the same volume he goes so far as to say that at first view the student of Tagalog seems to have come into a wholly new system. This noted philologist, who was born in 1767 and died in 1835, has evidently taken the greater part of his material upon the Tagalog from the second (1796) edition of Totanés, and hence lacked the advantage of having been upon the ground.

The Augustinian friar Manuel Buzeta, better known as the author of the "Geographical Dictionary" or Gazetteer of the Philippines (in cooperation with Bravo), published a Tagalog grammar at Madrid in 1850. (R., 199.) The author, whose name is spelled "Buceta" in the Cat. Rel. Agustinos, came to the Philippines in 1827, where he was in charge of the church at Guiguinto in 1832 and of Malate in 1848. He returned to Spain in 1849, and resided at Madrid until 1854, in which year he left the order and returned to secular life.

The work of Sinibaldo de Mas upon the islands, published at Madrid in two volumes in 1843, contains a short comparative vocabulary of Tagalog,

Visayan, Ilocano, Ibanag (Cagayan), and Malay. (R., 180.)

In 1854 the "Tagalog-Spanish Dictionary" of Rosalio Serrano, a Tagalog of Bulacan Province, was printed at Manila, and second and third editions have appeared, the third being printed in Binondo (Manila) in 1869. A Spanish-Tagalog dictionary by the same author was printed in Manila in 1872. (R., 227, 376, 426.)

In 1855 Carlos Cuarterón, a priest who had also been a pilot in the Southern Islands, published a work at Rome entitled "Spegazione e traduzione," at the end of which there is a vocabulary of Italian, Malay, Tagalog, and Joloano. (R., 229.) In 1872 the grammar of Joaquín de Coria (Gil y Montes de Santo Domingo) was published at Madrid, where the author had accepted the position of professor of Tagalog in the Central University. The work shows the careful study of the author, who came to the islands in 1831 and resided in the Tagalog region until his return to Spain in 1866. On account of his accepting the chair of Tagalog against the wish of the prelate of his order, he was dropped from its rolls; but, unfortunately, the plan of Minister Moret did not succeed, and the position to which he was elected never became active. The author was born in 1815 and entered the Franciscan Order in 1830. (R., 411; also Cat. Biog. Rel. Fran., p. 656.)

The same year, 1872, appeared the popular Spanish-Tagalog "Lessons upon the Grammar" of Bishop José Hevia Campomanes, bishop of Nueva Segovia (Vigan). A second edition appeared in 1877, the third in 1883, the fourth in 1888, and the sixth in 1901. All the editions were printed at Manila and are alike, no corrections or additions having been made.

Here should be mentioned the interesting work of V. M. de Abella, the "Vade-mecum Filipino," a manual of Spanish-Tagalog dialogues. It contains a vocabulary of Manila local words and phrases. The first edition was published in 1868 (T. H. Pardo de Tavera, Bib. Fil., No. 9), and other editions were published in 1869 and 1871, and the ninth had been reached in 1873. (R., 2524.) All editions were printed in Manila.

The most practical of all Tagalog-Spanish grammars appeared in Manila in 1878, the work of the Recoleto friar Toribio Minguella. Interlinear translations, simplicity of arrangement, and clearness of explanation make this little book of great value, and many of its suggestions and ideas have been very useful in the preparation of this present work.

In 1880 Prof. H. Kern, a Javan-born Hollander, made a valuable contribution to philology by his list of words in Tagalog which are derived from the Sanskrit. This article, which appeared in the "Bijdragen tot de Taal-, Land- en Volkenkunde van Nederland-Indië" at The Hague, volg. (series) 4, deel (volume) 4, pages 535 to 564, shows the large number of such words and their importance in expressing some most necessary ideas of civilization. This field was further explored by T. H. Pardo de Tavera, who published a pamphlet of 55 pages at Paris in 1887, in which the Sanskrit words which have passed into Pampango are also noted. (R., 1066.) Kern remarks in his article that the scarcity of Sanskrit words in the dialects of northern Celebes indicates that the Tagalog received this element directly from Cambodia and Sumatra, and not by way of Celebes. an interesting suggestion, which might lead to something if studied upon. Dr. F. R. Blake, teacher of Tagalog and Visayan at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md., also read an article on "Sanskrit loan-words in Tagalog" at the April, 1903, meeting of the American Oriental Society, at Baltimore, Md. Doctor Blake has also written articles upon "Analogies between Semitic and Tagalog" and the "Differences between Tagalog and Bisayan."

In 1882 appeared the second edition of a Spanish-Tagalog and Pampango vocabulary by E. Fernández, printed at Manila. This was followed in 1883 by his Tagalog-Spanish vocabulary, both of which are very useful books. (P. T., 1061, and R., 756.)

The valuable "rapport" of Dr. Joseph Montano, Paris, 1885, to the French minister of public instruction, contains several Philippine vocabularies, some of them of little known languages, and also quite an analysis of the Tagalog. (R., 885.)

Under the pseudonym of Julius Miles, an unknown author published a small Tagalog-Spanish grammar and phrase book at Barcelona, Spain, in

(R., 1054.)

In 1889 Friar Toribio Minguella, Recoleto, published a work in Madrid upon the unity of the human race as proved by philology. In this work he makes some comparisons between Semitic and Tagalog.

The same year Dr. Pardo de Tavera published his pamphlet upon the origin of the names of the Tagalog numerals, at Manila. W. G. Seiple, of Johns Hopkins University, also published an article upon the Tagalog numerals in the Johns Hopkins University Circular, No. 163, June, 1903, Baltimore, Md.

In 1889 also appeared the "Spanish-Tagalog Dictionary" of Pedro Serrano Laktaw, son of Rosalio Serrano, and in 1903 director of the Spanish paper, El Pueblo, of Manila. It is understood that the author is now working upon a Tagalog-English dictionary. (R., 1260.)

In 1890 a most valuable little work was published in Manila, under the title "Colección de Refranes, Frases y Modismos Tagalos," translated and explained in Spanish by the Franciscan Friars Gregorio Martín and Mariano Martinez Cuadrado, and edited by the Friar Miguel Lucio y Bustamente. The first came to the Philippines in 1874, the second in 1875, and the All administered parishes mainly in La Laguna Province. editor in 1860. Friar Martínez also serving for many years at Binangonan de Lampon, on the Pacific. This collection comprises 879 proverbs, phrases, and idiomatic expressions as used in the vicinity of Tanay and Pililla, where the authors resided, and embraces but a part of the wealth of the language in this regard. Many of these expressions, marked "T. P." (Tagalog proverbs) have been quoted in the explanation of the language. (R., 1318.)

In 1893 Dr. Ferd. Blumentritt, of Leitmeritz, Bohemia, published a translation of a sketch of Tagalog orthography by Doctor Rizal, at The Hague, under the title "Die Transcription des Tagalog," von Dr. José Rizal.

The advent of the United States forces at Manila and the occupation of the Tagalog region led to several small pamphlets being issued with the English, Spanish, and Tagalog in parallel columns. One of these was written by Capt. John Bordman, jr., Twenty-sixth U. S. Volunteer

Infantry

In 1902 Constantino Lendovro, a Spanish gentleman of more than twenty years' residence in the Philippines, published his work, entitled "The Tagalog Language," at Manila. It is a very good book, but is full of typographical errors, and in many places the English is not idiomatic. The author deserves much credit for his labor, and a corrected edition would be of great value. At any rate, he is entitled to commendation for having written, in a foreign language, a work upon the Tagalog which shows his thorough knowledge of the Philippine tongue.

In 1902 R. Brandstetter issued a work upon the Tagalog and Malagasy languages at Lucerne, which is of interest as showing the resemblance between these two languages spoken at such distant points.

In 1903 the "English-Tagalog Pocket Dictionary," of P. D. Neilson, was published at Manila, and, while merely giving the Tagalog equivalent for the English word, is of considerable value. The Tagalog-English part has also been published.

Mention should also be made of "Crawfurd's Grammar of the Malay Language," which has also a dictionary attached, London, 1852. Many valuable comparisons are made between Tagalog and other Malayan languages.

For a grammatical discussion of authority upon the Malayan languages the student is referred to the "Grundriss der Sprachwissenschaft," of F. Müller, II. Band, II. Abtheilung, pages 87-160 (Vienna, 1887).

THE TAGALOG LANGUAGE.

The Tagalog is the most important of the many tongues and dialects of the Philippines, which seem to number well over threescore, a on account of its being the most widely understood, the most euphonious, and the most developed by contact with foreign idioms. It thus occupies a similar position to that held by Malay farther to the south, and to English in the world at large. Spoken by over a million and a half of the most energetic race in the islands, occupying the city of Manila, eight provinces surrounding the metropolis, and a number of outlying islands and districts beyond these limits, it is also generally understood by many far beyond its own territory, especially in seaport towns throughout the archipelago.

The language seems to be divided into a northern and a southern dialect, the former being spoken in Bulacan, Bataan, Nueva Ecija, Rizal, and Tarlac, and the latter occupying La Laguna, Batangas, Cavite, Tayabas, Marinduque, the coast of Mindoro, and part of Ambos Camarines. Each of these dialects is more or less split up, each town almost having local mannerisms by which the people of one neighborhood easily dintinguish a stranger. Yet the region above described is clearly the territory of one and the same language, which is different and distinguishable from the Pampangan language on the north and the Bicol on the south by the test of intelligibility.

Philologically, Tagalog belongs to the Malayan branch of the great Malayo-Polynesian linguistic family, which extends from Hawaii to Madagascar and from Formosa to Easter Island west of Chile, including New Zealand, Tonga, and Samoa, as well as Borneo, Celebes, Java, Sumatra, the Malay Peninsula, and the Philippines, from east to west, a distance of 180°, or half the circumference of the earth.

Considering the rudimentary state of culture existing up to comparatively recent times of the majority of the peoples speaking the languages of this family, its unity is remarkable, and a thorough knowledge of one tongue is found to be of great utility in the acquirement of any other of the great group, especially in the same branch.

Tagalog, together with other civilized tongues of the Philippines, such as Visayan, Pampangan, Ilocano and Bicol, has preserved the verbal system better than any other, and the basis for the comparative study of the family must be taken from the Philippine tongues and not from the more cultivated Malay, Kawi, or modern Javanese, all three of which have been profoundly affected by Sanskrit and to a lesser degree by Arabic, something as English has been affected by Latin and French elements.

The number of roots or primitive-idea words in Tagalog seems to be about 17,000, there being 16,842 words in the Noceda and Sanlucar dictionary of 1832, according to Crawfurd, the distinguished Malay scholar. ("Malay Grammar," p. exiv.) Of these some 284 are derived from the Sanskrit, and are evidently borrowed through the Malay. Many of these are names for things unknown to the primitive Malayan peoples, but others are abstracts and various words, some of which would seem to have supplanted a primitive Malayan word. Thus in many cases American and Tagalog use words in their own languages which are from the same remote source in India, and coming around the earth east and west meet again in the Philippines. Such a word is paá, "foot," from the Sanskrit pada, which has descended into English "foot" and Spanish "pie." The origin of these words is marked after each in the handbook. The names of the chief workers in this field have been given in the list of books consulted.

^aThe Philippine Bureau of Ethnology, however, has given out as a result of its researches, that the number of distinct tongues is not over 15 or 16, the larger number being made up by counting very similar dialects.

The Japanese language seems to have furnished no words to the Tagalog, although many Japanese came to the islands during the seventeenth century, owing to the expulsion of Japanese converts to Catholicism, who found a refuge in Manila and the adjoining provinces, mainly in Pampanga, where it is said many of them settled around Macabebe. It is thought that some Japanese expressions still exist in the Macabebe dialect of the Pampangan language.

Notwithstanding a comparatively close contact with the Chinese for several centuries, and certainly antedating the Spanish conquest by many hundred years, very few words seem to have come into Tagalog from any of the numerous dialects of that Empire. The Chinese element in Tagalog seems limited to a few commercial terms, some household implements, and a few miscellaneous terms, some of which are confined in their use to Sangley or Chinese-Mestizo families. These words are noted wherever they occur in the handbook. Professor Hirth, the Chinese scholar, thinks that the first notices of the Philippines are to be found in the work of Chao Ju-kua, collector of customs of Chuan-chou, a city in Fo-Kien Province, between 1210 and 1240. In this work he speaks of the islands of Po-ni (Borneo), Ma-i (Mindoro? or Panay?), and of the Pi-Shö-yé of Taiwan (Formosa). This latter name sounds something like "Bisaya," the native name for Visaya. The book speaks also of the San-sü, or "Three Islands." Book 325 of the "History of the Ming Dynasty (1368-1643) of China," as abstracted by Groeneveldt, speaks of the Kings (Sultans) of Sulu as attacking Puni (Borneo) in 1368, and of the King of Sulu, Paduka (Javanese "Lord") Pahala as dying while on a visit to the Emperor at Tê Chou on the Grand Canal (Shantung Province). The Emperor then recognized his eldest son, Tumohan, as Sultan of Sulu, in 1417. The brother of Pahala, who was named Suli, made a visit to China in 1421, but a few years after this no more was heard from this Kingdom. From this and other extracts it would seem that the Chinese knew of the Mohammedan settlements at Manila and Tondo prior to the arrival of the Spaniards, and must have carried on a lucrative trade with them, otherwise the pirate Li-Ma-hong would not have made such a desperate attempt to take the city so soon after its foundation in 1571.

The Arabic words in Tagalog, which are hardly more than a dozen in number, evidently came in with the Mohammedan religion, and upon the extinction of that faith around the mouth of the Pasig, all but a few words fell into disuse. Mohammedanism could have hardly become established in the Tagalog region before 1450 to 1500, as it came very slowly from India or Arabia to Java, and thence by way of Borneo and Sulu to the Bay of Manila and the Pasig Valley. It had apparently not extended to the inland provinces, its farthest northern point appearing to have been Hagonoy. Arabic words which were adopted by the Spanish and thus brought into Tagalog are not included in the above remarks.

Spanish, as a matter of course, has contributed a great number of words to Tagalog, many of which have been thoroughly naturalized. They are mainly religious, governmental, social, legal, and abstract terms, including also terms for foreign articles and luxuries. Some names for Mexican articles are not Spanish but Nahuatl or Aztec, owing to the intimate connection between Mexico and the Philippines for more than two centuries, and there are even some Arawak words from the tongue of Cuba, Haiti, and Puerto Rico among these.

English has as yet given but few words to Tagalog. Of these the newspapers use four, which seem to have no exact native or Spanish equivalents, viz: "Self-government," "high life," "sport," and "besbol," or baseball. The latter has been verbalized and taken into the language bodily, while the others are still quoted.

The construction of Tagalog does not seem to have been influenced by any of the foregoing, but to have retained its Malayan structure.

THE PRONUNCIATION OF TAGALOG.

The most succinct statement upon the above subject is that given by Rev. W. A. Goodell, of the Methodist mission in the Philippines, as printed in Stuntz's "The Philippines and the Far East," page 483:

"II. The pronunciation of Tagalog is very simple, and there are no sounds to which the American vocal organs are not accustomed. The letter (sound) most difficult to get is 'ng,' which has exactly the sound which it has in the middle of the word 'ringing,' but which becomes difficult when at the beginning of a word, as in the word(s) 'nguni't,' one of the words (terms) translating the conjunction 'but,' and which often occurs at the beginning of a sentence.

"But although so simple in word pronunciation, Tagalog is extremely difficult in utterance, for one reason because of the great number of long words (compounds) it contains, and for another and more important still, because of the rhythmic movement of the language, a quality that can not be described and a characteristic for which no rules whatever can be given, but which is entirely as much a part of the Tagalog language as are its words themselves."

The "rhythmic movement" spoken of by the Rev. Mr. Goodell, who is an excellent speaker of Tagalog, is what may be called the "national accent," and, like the tones of Chinese and other allied tongues, can only be acquired by long practice.

The vowels are really but three in number, although a, e, i, o, and u, with their Spanish values, are printed (ah, a, e, o, oo). Of these "e" and "i" are habitually confused, and "e" can hardly be said to exist in pure Tagalog. "O" and "u" are also confused, the tendency being to drop "o" and substitute "u" in many words, a process which has already taken effect in Pampangan. The diphthongs are ao (ow), au (aw), less nasal than ao, and ua (wa); but there are no triphthongs, as each vowel in such combinations preserves its own sound. The native consonants, pronounced (except ng) as in English, are B, C (K), D, G (hard), H, L, M, N, NG, P, R, S, and T. The sound of F does not exist in Tagalog, and is replaced by P. V is also a foreign sound merging with B to the Tagalog ear. Z is pronounced like S, and is found only in Spanish words. The same is true of X, which is pronounced at the beginning of a word as H. W is beginning to be used in native papers as a semivowel in place of initial ua (wa) and in ao (aw). K is also used by many in place of hard C and Q. Y is used as a part of the diphthong ay (ai), and also as an initial consonant.

The pronunciation and construction of the language will be more clearly understood by carefully studying the two versions of the Dominical Oration, or Lord's Prayer, given below with interlinear pronunciation and translation.

The same prayer may be taken to show the changes in the language since it was first reduced to Roman letters by the missionaries.

From the Doctrina Cristiana of 1593, reprinted by Hervas in "Saggio Prattico," p. 129. Also found in Adelung's "Mithridates," Vol. I, p. 609.

It may be said that this last version shows a comparative want of familiarity with the language, except as might be spoken by servants, etc., and it has doubtless suffered by reprinting, the proof having to be read by those ignorant of the language, and hence unable to detect errors except by copy.

An example of the folklore stories is given in the "Tale of the Unlucky Rat" from the examples of Malayan languages, published at Batavia, Java, in 1868, by J. G. F. Riedel, the Dutch philologist. It is as follows:

FREE TRANSLATION.

Once upon a time there was a rat who said to himself, because his liver was out of order: "I do not wish to remain here in this town of mine; I will go and ascend the mountains, looking for another town, where I can see some of my friends, some agreeable food for rats, and some good living." The rat went out, traveling daily, until arriving at the seashore it saw a giant clam (Tridacna), with slightly opened mouth. Quoth the rat: "What is this? Truly, I have not seen anything like this yet." Then the rat went into the mouth of the giant clam (taklobo) to look at the meat, but was caught (by it) until his head was cracked, and it was cut off at the neck.

ACCENTS.

From the foregoing examples it will be seen that there are three accents used in Tagalog, the acute ('), the grave ('), and the circumflex (^).

The acute accent may fall upon any syllable, but in Tagalog is generally to be found upon the last (ultima) or the next to the last syllable (penultima). The acute accent upon a word ending in a vowel indicates that the final vowel has an open, broad sound, and that the suffixed particles "an" and "in" prefix an "h" when joined to such words. Example: Magandá, "elegant;" kagandahan, "elegance;" bili, "trade, barter;" ang bilhín, "what bought." Words ending in a consonant take "an" or "in" only, even if bearing the acute accent, which is only written in such words when occurring upon the penultima or antepenultima. Example: Umútang, "to borrow;" magútang, "to lend;" magpaútang, "to lend freely (or with good will);" kautañgan, "debt;" paútang, "credit." In many cases the suffixing of "han" or "hin" draws the accent one syllable farther toward the end of the word. This also applies to "an" or "in." Example: Patáy, "idea of killing or death;" kamatáyan, "death" (abstract noun); ang kamatayán, "the place of death." The acute accent is not written with words ending in a vowel, unless the accent is upon the final vowel. It may be taken as a rule that words unmarked with an accent, if ending with a consonant, take the accent upon the ultima, words ending with n and s being excepted. Words ending with an unaccented vowel or "n" or "s" generally take the accent upon the penultima. This is also the rule in Spanish.

The grave accent in Tagalog merely marks those words ending in a vowel, which take "an" or "in," instead of "han" or "hin." The stress is not laid upon the syllable marked with the grave accent, but upon the Example: Batà, "child" (in general), pronounced one preceding. "báhta," the final vowel having an obscure sound; kabataan, "childishness" (pro. kah-bah-táh-an). The grave accent is not used with words ending in a consonant.

The circumflex accent is only used upon the final vowel of those words ending with an abrupt, obscure vowel sound, upon which the stress of the voice is placed. It admits only "an" or "in" as a suffix. Example: Dumalitá, "to suffer, to endure;" kodalitaan, "suffering, endurance;" tumuró, "to signal;" katuroan, "signaling;" ang tinuroan, "person or station signaled to."

Practice is the essential requirement to become familiar with the accent, which is most important in Tagalog, as many words are only distinguished by the accent, although differing totally in meaning. Example: Asó, "smoke;" áso, "dog;" gátas, "milk;" gatás, "path, trail;" sumílang, "to rise" (as the sun); sumilang (ultima), "to pass between;" bumasa, "to read;" bumasa, "to moisten."

As has been already mentioned there are some 17,000 "roots" in the Tagalog language, many of which are nouns, pronouns, adverbs, and prepositions, etc., in themselves. Verbs are generally formed by the use of certain particles, of which there are some 17, of which all except one (um) have a definite and indefinite form. Together with the noun and adjective forming particles, of which there are several, the possible number of intelligible Tagalog words can not be far from 50,000 to 60,000, quite sufficient to express any nontechnical ideas of any language whatsoever. Yet with all this there are some curious facts about the language and its Many general terms can not be expressed in one word, but the vocabulary. modifications of a general act have many words to express them, some-times far more than exist in English or Spanish. A similar parallel is offered by the lack of a verb in early English to express the idea of motion in general, although Anglo-Saxon had many words for different kinds of motion, which are used daily by all English-speaking people. Upon this point Brian H. Hodgson, the noted oriental scholar, says, in his work upon the aborigines of India, published at Calcutta in 1847, page iii: Home-bred words are all very particular, and proportionably numerous; while general terms, if more conveniently few, are less characteristic and very apt to be of exotic (foreign) origin; take the English general term 'to move;' it is Latin and one; but of the numerous sorts of special motion (to hop, to skip, to jump, to tumble down, to get up, to walk, to fly, to creep, to run, to gallop, to trot), all are 'genuine Saxon, by the soul of Hengist.'" This idea will be more fully explained under "The verb." In addition to such particularizing words, there are also many synonyms or words meaning the same thing in Tagalog, many of which are local or provincial and are not heard in the same locality. For this reason Crawfurd's remarks upon Tagalog and Visayan, as expressed in his "Malay Grammar," London, 1852, page exix, are still pertinent. He says:

"The languages of the Philippine Islands may be described, not as copious, but wordy. In the state of society in which the natives of the Philippines were formed, ideas are considered more in concrete than in abstract, and by an importance being attached to trivial matters a profusion springs up which, in a more advanced state of society, are considered unworthy of retention, or which, if retained, would only be productive of perplexity and distraction. * * * In Tagalog there are 12 names for the cocoanut, including its different varieties and conditions as to maturity and preparation for use. * * * In the same language there are 11 words to express the verb 'to boil' (with variations), and 75 (really about 50) for the verb 'to go.'"

It may be added that the verb "to carry" with its variations has some eighty words to express all combinations in Tagalog, and there are many other verbs which have been particularized in this manner, which will be more fully set forth in the appropriate place.

The main object of this work is to facilitate the acquisition of an elementary knowledge of the Tagalog language. It should be borne in mind that Tagalog is not constructed on Englishor Spanish lines, either in grammar or syntax. The universal tendency upon using a new language is to translate one's own language word for word, or phrase for phrase, into the foreign one. The native may understand, but the result is not elegant. No language can be learned entirely from books, and to supplement the special needs of each person constant practice in speaking with educated or intelligent Tagalogs is necessary. Even with a considerable vocabulary, the American will find difficulty in conveying just what he wants to say in Tagalog, unless he masters the idioms and peculiarities of the language. This will not be a very easy task, but, once mastered, the key is held to all the Philippine languages, and it might be said to all the Malayan languages of the East Indies.

To those who have had to depend upon ignorant or untrustworthy interpreters, a knowledge of the local tongue will be felt to be indispensable, and this knowledge will also be a protection to the people ignorant of Spanish or English who in many cases have been so unmercifully fleeced by unscrupulous interpreters.

This work has been divided into sections, and the use of technical terms has been avoided to as great an extent as possible. Where cases, etc., have been used, it has not been because such exist in the Tagalog language, but as an aid to the memory of those who are more or less familiar with Latin, French, Spanish, German, and other European tongues.

The essential peculiarities of Tagalog are its "roots," which may be made into nouns by the use of the article, into adjectives by other prefixed particles, into adverbs in other cases, and finally into verbs by the use of a large number of particles; and the great use of the definite, which is grammatically a "passive," and is so treated by all grammarians who have been consulted, although many times this "passive" must be translated into English by an "active" verb. For this reason the terms "definite" and "indefinite" have been used in the present work. This point is more fully explained under the verb.

Examples have been given wherever possible, and the vocabulary given has largely been founded on actual experience. It is impossible to invent a series of phrases which will serve for any two people. The questions may be given according to the book, but the answer, coming from a speaker of the language, will be constructed out of that vastly more extensive vocabulary existing in his brain, and the whole scheme be thrown out of joint. For this reason a careful study of the examples of the language and the manner of building up the sentences will in the end prove of more solid benefit than the memorizing of a large number of set phrases, which may or may not be appropriate.

Some phrases suitable to certain situations have been inserted, such as matters relating to the procuring of something to eat, directions to the house boys, distances to places, the weather, and other similar matters, the careful perusal of which will enable more complex sentences to be uttered with success and a mastery of the idiom acquired.

VOCABULARY.

Thomas. Tomás. Mary. María. John. Juan. Joseph. José. Father. Amá. Mother. Iná. Brother. Kapatid na lalaki.^a Sister. Kapatid na babaye.^a

THE ARTICLE OF PROPER NOUNS (SI).

In Tagalog a definite article, Si, is generally prefixed to the names of persons related to or well known to the speaker or writer, as well as with names of relationship and terms of affection. It may also be used with the proper name of an animal belonging to the speaker. In some of the provinces diminutives are much used, especially within the family. There are also some terms of this nature largely used in Sangley, or Chinese-Tagalog families, which are taken from Chinese and will be discussed later.

Older brother (first born). Koya; s

Koya; si koya, my elder brother. The pronoun is understood.

Elder brother. Manung (Manila and southern dialect). Elder sister. Kakâ; si kakâ, my elder sister.

Elder sister. Kakā; st My father. Si amā.

My father. My mother. Si amá. Si iná.

This article is declined as follows:

Nom. John.
Gen. John's; of John.
Dat. To, for John.
Acc. John.
Abl. From, with, John.

Si Juan.
Ni Juan; kay Juan.
Kay Juan.

When a name is to be used in the plural, the article of common nouns, ang, is used, as: The Johns, ang mangá Juan; or better, ang mangá tinatáwag na Juan (those who are called John).

The article of names has a special plural when coupled with certain words, as of the parents, relatives, companions, or the home.

Nom. John and his ———.
Gen. The field of John and his family.
Dat. To, for, Pedro and his ———.
Acc. The field of Pedro and his family.
Abl. From, by, Pedro and his ———.

Siná Juan. Ang búkid niná Juan.

Ang kaná Pedrong búkid.

a These two words are derived from "patid" and "ka," meaning "tied with the same cord." "Lalaki" is male and "babaye" is female. In Tagalog, however, separate words are used to express "elder brother," "elder sister," "younger brother or sister," etc.

Si is not used alone before names of persons unrelated to the speaker except in a joking way; in other cases the Spanish word Señor, Mr., is inserted as: Si Señor Blanco, Mr. Blanco. Ginóo is the Tagalog equivalent for "Señor" and Gat for "Don." Dayang is "Doña." These terms are used by purists.

THE ARTICLE OF COMMON NOUNS.

The article ang (the) is used with all common nouns, and also those proper nouns not applying to persons—i. e., the Pasig, ang Pásig; the Philippines, ang Filipinas. Sometimes this article is prefixed to names of cities. It is declined both in the singular and plural, the word $mang\acute{a}$ (sign of plurality) being added in the latter case.

DECLENSION OF "ANG."

Nom. sing. The. Ang.Gen. sing. Of the. Dat. sing. To, for, the. Nang; sa. Sa.Acc. sing. The. Nang; sa. Abl. sing. From, by, the. Nang; sa.Nom. plur. The. Ang mañgá. Gen. plur. Of the. Nang mañgá; sa mañgá. Dat. plur. To, for, the. Sa mañgá. The. Nang mañgá; sa mañgá. Acc. plur. Abl. plur. From, with, the. Sa mañgá; nang mañgá.

The forms ni and ninå of the article of names and the form nang of the article of common nouns are used when a word in the genitive follows a nominative in the sentence. Examples: The mother of John, ang inå ni Juan; the house of Thomas and his family, ang båhay ninå Tomás; the darkness of the night, ang kadilimán nang gab-i.

The forms kay, kaná, and sa are used with the genitive when inserted between the nominative article and its noun. Examples: The mother of John, ang kay Juan iná; the house of Thomas and his family, ang kaná Tomás báhay; the darkness of the night, ang sa gab-í na kadilimán. Ancient Greek has almost this same construction.

THE COMMON NOUN.

Nouns in the Tagalog language are of various classes; some are root words, whose derivation can not be traced; others are built up from roots, and many are foreign words, mainly from Spanish, although some Arabic and Sanskrit words are to be found, as well as a few from Chinese and other sources. They are indeclinable, and the sign of plurality is generally indicated by the word $man\widetilde{g}\acute{a}$ placed before the noun pluralized.

The definite and indefinite idea runs throughout the Tagalog language, and the words "to have," "not to have," "there is," "there is not," etc., bring this out plainly.

VOCABULARY.

Mayroon (lit., "there is;" from doon, Have (all persons; indef.). "there.") Na sa. Have (def.). Have you (some, any)? Have you (that, this)? ¿Mayróon? ¿Mayróon ka bagá? ¿May? ¿Na sa iyo? (lit., Is with you?) Akó (form with nominative; indef.). Nga.Indeed; truly. Salapí. Also means half peso.

Akin; ko (latter postfixed to def-Money. My. inites). Hindi.No. Perchance. Kayá. $Bag\acute{a}$. Perhaps; some; any. There is not. Wald. ¿Anó; anó bagá? What? O-o. Yes. Opô. Yes, sir. Ka (form with nominative; indef.). You (thou).

Akin requires the article and is prefixed or else is preceded by a preposition.

Ex.: 1. Have you any rice? (¿Mayróon kang bigás?) Have you that rice? (¿Na sa iyo iyáng bigás?) 2. Yes, sir, I have some (Opô, mayróon akó). Yes, sir, I have it (Opô, na sa ákin).

Night.

Mayróon is used when asking in a general way, as in the market or in a shop or store; na sa is used when a certain object is meant. Magkano means "how much;" ayáo is "I do not wish to," and alin is "which." With the foregoing vocabulary all ordinary comforts and supplies, except clothing, can be asked for throughout the provinces where Tagalog is understood, and these words are generally understood throughout the island of Luzon on account of their general similarity to the corresponding words in other dialects. The most conspicuous exception is tubig (water), which is danum in Pampango, Ilocano, and other northern dialects of Luzon.

VOCABULARY. Afternoon. Americano (Sp.); Taga America. American. Boten (Sp., botella). Bottle. Prongo. Custom; habit. Ugali.Arao.Day; sun. Damit. Dress; clothes. Arao-árao. Every day; daily. Salop (English equivalent, 3 quarts Ganta (3 liters). 13 pints—3.1701). B'ubog.Glass; crystal. Ginto (said to be from dialectical Chinese, kin, "gold," and tieh, "of," i. e., "golden;" Malay, Gold. amas; native gold, balitok). Tintero (Sp.). Inkstand. Tapáyan. Large jar. Salamín (Malay, chármin). Mirror. Aga.Morning.

Gab-i.

Priest. Paré (Sp., padre). Singsing (Malay, chinchin). Ring. Pilak (Malay, perak, also place name). Silver. Son or daughter (child). Anak.Spaniard. Español (Sp.); Taga Castila (from Castilla, Castile). Stone. Bató.Tagalog. Tagálog. Town. Bayan.Well (noun). Bal-ón.

Sex is distinguished by the addition of the words lalaki, "male," or babáye, "female," with the appropriate "tie" (g, ng, or na). Ex.: My sister (Ang aking kapatid na babáye—lit., The my female brother); my son (ang aking anak na lalaki).

A few words indicate sex in themselves, but they are very limited in number compared with those in Aryan languages.

VOCABULARY.

Aunt. Ali.Father. $Am\acute{a}$. Girl, unmarried woman. Dalaga. ${Lala\check{k}i.\atop Bab\check{a}ye.}$ Used also as adjectives. Male: man. Female; woman. Miss; young lady. Binibiní. Mother. $In\acute{a}$. Amain. Uncle. Mamà. Principally heard in Manila. Binatà (from batà, boy, child). Bagongtáuo (lit., "new man"). Young man; bachelor; youth. Young man, unmarried.

THE "TIES."

The Tagalog ear dislikes the sequence of certain sounds, and for this reason three ties, "g," "ng," and "na," are much used, more especially when an adjective is prefixed to a noun or a noun in the genitive modifies another in the nominative.

The tie "g" is added to such an adjective or nominative if ending in "n," the genitive following the nominative modified. The adjective may precede the noun, as in English, or follow it, as is generally the case in Spanish. The tie is added to the noun in the latter case, if it ends in "n." Ex.: (1) Wisdom (karunungan); great (dakila); great wisdom (karunungan dakila). (2) Silver (pilak); mirror (salamin); silver mirror (salaming pilak).

(salaming pilak).

The tie "ng" is added to words ending in a vowel not preceded by another vowel. U, as in táuo, is considered as a consonant, as it sounds nearly like the English "w," and is written with this letter by many natives. Ex.: A dutiful child (Balang mabait); a bottle of wine (isang boteng álak); a beautiful woman (babáyeng magandá); a Manila man (isang táuong Maymilà).

The tie "na" is used when the first word ends in any consonant (except "n") or in a diphthong. Ex.: A dutiful child (Mabaut na batà); a large house (báhay na malakí); clear water (tábig na malinao, or malinao na tábig).

NO INDEFINITE ARTICLE.

There is no special indefinite article (a or an) in Tagalog, although the numeral isá (one) may be used.

THE VERB "TO BE."

The English verb "to be" may be sometimes represented in Tagalog by the particle ay, changing to 'y for euphony after a preceding vowel. Ex.: Is your horse white? (¿Ang cabayo mo'y maputi!) The bird is singing (Ang ibon ay hungmuhuni). Generally in questions the verb "to be" is understood, as: ¿Ānō ang sabi mo! (What did you say?—lit., What the said your?). The verb is understood also when a predicate adjective is used; as, My father is good (Mabuti ang áking amá). Ay also connects two clauses of equal force; as, If John comes, go away (Kun dumáting si Juan, ay umalis ka).

FUTURE AND PAST OF "AY."

The particle ay is invariable as to tense, the idea of past or future being expressed by the answer or an adverb of time. Ex.: Beautiful then, she is is ugly now (Magandá siyá noón, ngayón ay pángit). You will be sick to-morrow (Búkas ikáo ay masakit).

Some Tagalog writers use ai in place of ay, especially in newspaper work.

THE CONJUNCTION "AND,"

At, changing to 't, under the same circumstances in which ay changes to 'y, represents the conjunction "and." It may also stand for "because" in compound sentences when a cause is expressed; as, I can not read, because I have no spectacles (Hindi akó makababasa sa pagka 't wald akong salamin).

When ay and at are followed by a monosyllable, as sa, the vowel is not dropped.

Section Two.

The principal interrogative pronouns and adverbs are as follows:

What?	¿Anó?	When?	¿Kailán?
Who?	¿Sino?	How?	¿Papa-anó?
Which?	¿Alin?	How much (value)?	¿Magkano?
Where?	¿Saán?	How many?	¿Ilan!

Anό, "what," is declined as follows:

SINGULAR. PLURAL. Nom. What? $jAn \delta l$ No change. ¿Sa anó? ¿Nang anó? Gen. Of what? No change. ¿Sa anó? Dat. To, for what? No change. What? ¿Sa anó? ¿Nang anó? No change. Acc. ¿Sa anó? Abl. (Loc.) In, at what? No change. (Ins.) By, with what? Abl. ¿Nang anó? No change.

This pronoun is used only in speaking of things, never of persons. The expression Anó ka? means "What do you want?"

¿Sino?, "who," is declined as follows:

	SING	PLURAL.
Gen.	Who? Whose, of whom.	¿Sino? ¿Kanino? ¿Nino? a ¿Sa kanino?	¿Sino-sino? ¿Kanikanino? b ¿Sa kanikanino?

a Used only when the question is not heard or understood.

o Not kanino kanino, as the first form is a trisyllable, and in Tagalog repetitions stop at at the second syllable (or letter, as the case may be). Kaninong mangá and sa kaninong are also used.

Example: ¿Kaninong búkid iyán? (Whose field is that?); Sa capitán (Of the mayor or presidente); ¿Nino? (Whose?); Sa capitán sa bayan (Of the mayor of the town).

From early times the title of the mayor of a town or "pueblo" was "gobernadoreillo" (little governor). This name was changed in 1893 to "capitán municipal," and in 1898 to "presidente," a name retained under American administration. Natives ignorant of Spanish generally speak of the "capitán."

While and is used for things and sino for persons, the pronoun alin,

"which," is used for both. It is declined:

SINGULAR.			PLURAL,
Nom.	Which?	¿Alin?	¿Alin-alin?
Gen.	Of which?	¿Sa alin! ¿Nang alin!	¿Sa alin-alin?
Dat.	To, for what?	¿Sa alín?	¿Sa alin-alin?
Acc.	What?	¿Sa alin? ¿Nang alin?	¿Sa alin-alin₹
Loc.	In, at which?	¿Sa alin?	¿Sa alín-alín?
Ins.	By, with, etc., which?	¿Nang alin?	¿Nang atin-alin?

Sa with the genitive is preferable in answering a question. ¿Aling mangál may also be used for the plural. The form i Mangá alíni is rather inelegant. Thus the English "Which men?" may be expressed by "¡Alín-aling táuoi" "¡Alín mangá táuoi" or "¡Mangá aling táuoi"

THE INTERROGATIVE ADVERBS.

These adverbs present no peculiarities and are used as in English. Ilan (How many) obviates the use of the pluralizing particle many; as, ¿Ilang tauo? (How many men?) In inquiring the price of an article in the market the restrictive form magkakano is generally used; as, "¿Magkakano ang mangá itlog?" (How much for eggs?) But in speaking of purchasing the entire quantity magkano is right.

THE DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.

These are four in Tagalog, two being translated by "this," another by

"that," and the fourth by the poetic form "yon."

The first is yari, and means "this." Strictly speaking, it should be used only to indicate an object nearer to the speaker than to the person addressed, but practically this pronoun is dropping out of use. For example, Yaring aking puso (This heart of mine), while more exact, is little heard, the following word ito (this) being used: itong aking puso. Yeri is a dialectical form.

Yarî is declined as follows:

SINGULAR.

PLURAL.

	This.	Yari.	These.	Yaring mañgá,
Gen.	Of this.	Nirí; dini sa.	Of these.	Niring mañgá.
Dat.	To, for this.	Dini sa.	To, for these.	Dini sa mañgá,
Acc.	This.	Nirí; dini sa.	These.	Niring mañgá, etc.
Loc.	At, in this.	$Dini\ sa.$	At, in these.	Dini sa mañgá.
Ins.	By, with this.	Niri.	By, with these.	Niring mañgá.

The ordinary word meaning "this" is ito, and strictly denotes objects or persons equidistant from both speaker and the person spoken to. It is declined as follows:

SINGULAR.

PLURAL.

	This.	Itó.	These.	Itong mañgá.
Gen.	Of this.	Nitó; ditó sa.	Of these.	Nitong mañgá, etc.
Dat.	To, for this.	Dito sa.	To, for these.	Dito sa mañgá.

Acc. This. Dito sa. These. Dito sa mangá. Loc. At, in this. Dito sa. At, in these. Dito sa mangá. Ins. By, with this. Nitó. By, with these. Nitong mangá.

"That" is expressed in Tagalog by the word iyán, especially when applied to persons or objects nearer to the person spoken to than to the speaker. It is declined as follows:

SINGULAR.

PLURAL,

Nom.	That.	$Iy\acute{a}n.$	Those.	Iyang mañgá.
Gen.	Of that.	Niyán; diyán sa.	Of those.	Niyang mañgá, etc.
Dat.	To, for that.	Diyán sa.	To, for those.	Diyán sa mañgá.
Acc.	That.	Niyán; diyán sa.	Those.	Niyang manga, etc.
Loc.	At, in that.	Niyán sa.	At, in those.	Niyán sa mañgá.
Ins.	By, with that.	Niyán.	By, with those.	Niyang mañga.

The fourth demonstrative pronoun, yaón, means "yon," although at present generally translated "that." Yoón is a dialectical form. It is declined:

SINGULAR.

PLURAL.

Nom.	Yon (that).	$Ya \delta n$.	Yon (those)	Yaóng, mañgá.
Gen.	Of yon.	Niyaóu; dóon sa.	Of yon.	Niyaong mangá, etc.
Dat.	To, for yon.	$D\acute{o}on\ sa.$	To, for yon.	Dóon sa mañgá.
Acc.	Yon.	Niyaón; dóon sa.	Yon.	Niyaong mañgá.
Loc.		$D\acute{o}on\ sa.$	At, in yon.	Dóon sa mañga.
Ins.	By, with yon.	Niyaón.	By, with yon.	Niyaong mañgá.

The particle sa follows the pronoun in each case as given, but it, as well as the pluralizing particle manya, belongs to the person or object pointed out, and not to the pronoun.

These four demonstratives have a peculiar idiomatic use in that they are repeated in the nominative after the person or object modified as well as preceding the same, in the latter case agreeing in number and case. Examples: This man (Itong tauong itô), both nominative singular. That boy's clothes (Ang damit niyang batang iyán); first, genitive singular; second, nominative singular. That man (has) much money (Maraming salapi niyang (niyaong) táuong yaón); lit., "much money of that man that." (Generally with nominative.) Itong bulaklak na itô'y diyán sa batang iyán (This flower is for that child). In the second clause, the first pronoun is in dative and second in nominative.

ADVERBS OF PLACE.

From the four demonstrative pronouns the following adverbs of place are derived:

Here (close to the speaker). Dini. Here. Dito. There (near addressee). Diyân. Yonder (there). Dôon.

With the particle na prefixed to this class of adverbs, the idea of "am," "is," "are" is expressed. It will be noted that the initial letter d is softened to r where the particle na is used alone.

Am, is or are here (close).

Am, is or are here (more distant).

Am, is or are there.

Am, is or are there.

Am, is or are yonder.

Narini; nayeri; nandini.

Narito; naitó; nandito.

Nariyán; naiyán; nandiyán.

Naroón; nayaón; nandoón.

The particle dl with the same class of adverbs expresses the past tense. For euphony the particle changes to do with $do \delta n$.

Was or were here (close).
Was or were here (more distant).
Was or were there.
Was or were yonder.

Dirini.
Dirito.
Diriyan.
Doróon.

The particle pa with the same adverbs expresses the future.

Will be here (close). Parini.
Will be here (more distant). Parito.
Will be there. Pariyan.
Will be yonder. Paróon.

Ex. Is the man there? (Nariyán bagá ang táuo?) He is not here, he is yonder (Walá rito, naróon). Where is Captain Tino (Faustino)? (¿Saán naróon [or naandoón] Si Capitán Tino?) In Manila (Nasa Maynilà). When will he come back? (¿Kailan babatik?) Possibly within a week (Marahil sa isang lingó). Who is his agent? (¿Sino ang kaniyang katiwala?) The Chinaman Ong Laico on Calle Real (Ang insik Ong Laico sa Calle Real). Thank you (Salámat).

THE PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

The personal pronouns in Tagalog should receive careful study, as they exhibit several peculiarities of form and use not found in English.

All personal pronouns have two genitives, the first form being prefixed to the accompanying noun or verb, and the second form suffixed. The two forms are not used in the same clause, the second form being preferred with the definite form of the verb. However, if the sentence commences with an adverb or negative particle, or is a question, the suffixed forms are placed before the verb.

The first person plural, like nearly all Malayan and Melanesian languages, has two forms, the first corresponding to "we" in a general sense, and including those spoken to, while the second form, like the editorial "we," excludes the person or persons addressed. There are also two dual forms, which may be translated "thou and I." These dual forms have the same meaning, the first form, kitá, being more general and used in Manila, Rizal, Laguna, Batangas, and Tayabas, while the second form, katá, is found in Bulacan, Nueva Ecija, and the Tagalog-speaking parts of Pampanga and Tarlac. Bataan probably follows Bulacan in style, while in Cavite the usage is like that of Manila, etc.

In the use of the personal pronouns together, a very different order is observed from English. The Tagalog order is "I (we), thou (you), and he, she (they)," ignoring the European custom of mentioning the listener first, the absent or third person next, and the speaker last. The Tagalog says "I and you, "I and John," and with the further peculiarity that he literally pluralizes the first pronoun and gives the pronoun or noun following its genitive form in the correct number. The examples will apply the metter more always.

explain the matter more clearly.

The use of the word "it" is avoided by speakers of Tagalog. It is only used when objects are personified, as in stories, etc. See example.

FIRST PERSON SINGULAR.

POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS.

These are the same as the genitives of the personal pronouns and are generally preceded by the article ang. The following examples will show the variations:

My child.

Thy child.

His (or her) child.

Our (of we two) child.

Our children (all of us).

Our child (excluding person spoken to).

Your child.

Their child.

{Ang áking anak. (Ang anak ko.

∫Ang iyong anak.

(Ang anak mo. \(\bar{Ang kaniyang anak.}\)

Ang anak niya.

Ang kanitanganak. Ang atang anak. Ang anak ta. Any anak ta.

(Ang ating mañgá anak. Ang mañgá anak natin.

 $\{Ang\ aming\ anak.$

\Ang anak namin. ∫Ang inyong anak.

Ang anak ninyó. Ang kanilang anak. (Ang anak nilá.

The genitive forms of the personal pronouns used without a following noun are expressed with the article prefixed to the first genitive:

Mine. Thine (yours). His; hers. Ours. Yours. Theirs.

Ang ákin. Ang iyó. Ang kaniyá. Ang atin (incl.); ang amín (excl). Ang inyó.

The oblique cases with sa and the article also express this idea in Tagalog; as, Mine, Ang sa ákin.

Examples of two pronouns, or a pronoun with a noun:

He and I (lit. "we of him"). Kami niyā. He and his father (they and his Silá nang kaniyang amā.

father). John and I (we of John). You and they (you of them). You and we (we of you).

Kamí ni Juan. Kayó nilá. Kami ninyó.

Ang kanilá.

In Manila and large towns these forms are dying out of use, the Spanish style being used; as, John and I (Si Juan at akó).

To avoid the use of siyá, "it," to indicate an inanimate object, the word. itself is repeated, or in answering a question a particle like nga (certainly) is used. Ex.: [Mabuti bagá ang lakatán [a species of banana]? (Is the lakatan good?) Mabuti nga (Certainly [it is] good).

The third person plural is used to indicate great respect for a person, coupled with pô, and for still greater respect the word kamahalan (excellency) is used. Your excellency (Ang inyong kamahalan).

THE AFFIRMATIVE PARTICLES.

This name is applied to several adverbs, and also to some words which by themselves have no signification, which, added to pronouns, give them an intensive or indefinite meaning. The following are the ones most generally used. None begin a sentence except kayá.

Self; selves. Perhaps. Perhaps; for that. Also. Also. Now. Certainly. Certainly.

Kayá. (May begin sentence.) Man.Man din. (Southern Tagalog only.) Na. (No meaning alone.) \widetilde{Nga} . \widetilde{Ngani} . (Southern Tagalog; Bicol, gñani.) Рa, Palá. (Idea of wonder inherent.) Sa. (Greatly used word.) Sarili.

Din. (Rin after preceding vowel.)

Bagá. (Generally with indef. verb.)

Yet. Actually! Is that so! At; in; to; for, etc. Own. Enough now; plenty.

Ex.: Akó rin; akó man (I myself). Siyá nga (he, certainly). Ikáo man (you also). Ang sarili kong cabayo (my own horse). Oó nga (yes, certainly). Hindi nga (no, indeed).

Siya na.

The particle man attached to an interrogative pronoun converts the latter into an indefinite pronoun. Ex.: Anoman (anything; something). Alinman (whichever; whatever). Sinoman (whoever). Sinoman tauo (anyone whomsoever).

These particles follow the monosyllabic pronouns, but precede the pronouns of more than one syllable, unless the latter begin the sentence, in which case the particle follows, as with a monosyllabic pronoun.

INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.

Besides anoman, alinman, and sinoman, there are several words which may be used at times as indefinite pronouns, and at other times with adverbial force. One of these is bálang, which can be used for "some, any, and each." Ex.: Bálang árao (some day). Ang bálang táuo (any man).

Sa bálang isá (for each one).

The numeral isá (one), prefixed to words like árao (day), and táuo (man) gives the idea of "one day; a certain man," etc. It is also used with demonstrative pronouns as follows: Itong isá (this one); diyán sa isá (to that other); doon sa isá (to that other yonder). Isá may be said to mean "other" among a few persons or objects, and the word ibá to designate "other" among many. Ibang táuo (another man completely); ibang bágay (another thing entirely).

Tanan, dilan, and paua mean everyone, "all" (persons). "All" (the adjective) is lahat.

RELATIVE PRONOUNS.

These pronouns, which in English are expressed by "which," "that," "who," etc., are expressed very obscurely in Tagalog by means of the article ang, and the ties g, ng, and na. The Tagalog also has a negative relative pronoun di, translated by "who not," "which not," "that not." Ex.:

He who is well behaved is esteemed by all.

Ang mabuting ásal ay minamahal nang lahat.

The book which you are reading is mine. I did not receive the letter that you sent to me.

Ang librong binabasa mo'y ákin. Di ko tinangap ang súlat na ipinadalá mo sa ákin.

The man who does not disobey the laws will be protected in his rights.

Ang tánong di sumasalansang ipagtatangol nong katuiran.

The phrase "each other" is expressed by the particle nagka or magka, together with the appropriate noun or pronoun. Ex.: Do they understand each other? ¿Nagkakaalam silá (from alam)?.

The principal difficulty the student of Tagalog will experience here will be in the use of the exclusive and inclusive forms of the first person plu-The dual forms are little used in the nominative, but are quite frequently heard in the oblique and accusative cases. As has been remarked, these exclusive and inclusive forms are to be found in nearly all the Malayan languages, while in some of the allied Melanesian tongues, such as that of Fiji, the second and third persons have not only a dual, but a triple form, in addition to the ordinary plural. The Fijian first person has also the dual and triple forms, each of which are divided into an inclusive and exclusive form.

SECTION THREE,

As has been previously explained, Tagalog root words may be used as nouns, verbs, adjectives, and adverbs in many cases, either by the context or particles affixed or suffixed. Naturally the noun is generally the simplest form, especially the concrete noun, but secondary or derivative nouns may be quite complicated in their construction. The noun is invariable in form, number being expressed by the word manga, or such words as "all," "many," etc., for the plural. Cases are expressed by the article or prepositions, and no gender is known. A great many common nouns in Tagalog are derived from the Spanish, a few from Chinese, and some from Arabic and Sanskrit sources. All Tagalog nouns may be used with the article.

The words for meals and some articles of food, cooking utensils, etc., vegetables, and fruits not previously mentioned are:

SECTION FOUR.

THE ADJECTIVE.

The adjective is a word used in a grammatical sense to qualify, limit, or define a noun, or a word or phrase which has the value of a noun, and it expresses quality or condition as belonging to something: Thus, "blackness" is the name of a quality and is a noun; "black" means possessing blackness and so is an adjective. The adjective is used (1) attributively, (2) appositively, and (3) predicatively. Examples, (1) "A good man," (2) "A man good and great, (3) "The man is good."

Equally in Tagalog as in English, this is the meaning of the adjective, and owing to the greater flexibility of the former the construction of such

Equally in Tagalog as in English, this is the meaning of the adjective, and owing to the greater flexibility of the former the construction of such words is much more clearly to be seen. Like English, some root words are adjectives by intrinsic signification and may be called "simple adjectives." Among the simple adjectives are bago (new), mahal (dear, precious, noble), hámak (vile), hunghan (foolish), tahimik (quiet, tranquil), and totóo (true). But the greater number of adjectives in Tagalog, as in English, are compounds formed from roots, which may be sometimes nouns, by means of prefixes, infixes, and suffixes like the English suffixes "ly," "like" "able," etc., as in "friendly," "childlike," "remarkable," etc. The ordinary particle in Tagalog used in the formation of adjectives is the prefix ma, undoubtedly a contraction of may, to have or possess, as there are nouns with which may is still retained with the noun to form an adjective. Among such ma adjectives may be mentioned magandá (beautiful), from gandá, the root expressing the idea of beauty or good appearance, and maránong (wise), from dúnong, the root expressing the idea of wisdom. It will be observed that ma, like some other particles softens d to r when d commences a word.

When prefixed to nouns denoting things which may be had or possessed, ma denotes an abundance of whatever may be signified by the noun. Examples: Si Juan ay maginto (John has much gold); masilid ang bahay (the house has many rooms).

The particle ma has at least nine other functions, which will be explained in the appropriate places.

May is used really as the verb "to have" in the phrase Ako'y may sakit (I am sick [ill], literally, "I have sickness or pain"). In asking if a person is ill or in pain the verb is sometimes reduplicated; e. g., May maysakit ka? (Are you ill [or in pain]?).

Ma adjectives may be conjugated with the definite infix in to express opinion; e. g., minamaránong ko itó (I think this is wise). Ma is reduplicated to express the present tense; minarunong ko ito would mean "I thought this was wise."

Conjugated with the indefinite particle may (nag in present tense), the adjective assumes a verbal form, with the implied idea of boasting or pretending what may be signified by the root; as, nagmamarinong si Felipe (Philip boasts of being wise); nagmamagandá si Loleng (Dolores [Lola] pretends to be beautiful). The idea may also be conveyed by "believes himself" (or "herself"), what may be denoted by the root; e. g., "Lola believes herself to be beautiful."

The particle na also forms some adjectives, in which the first syllable of the root is generally repeated. These na adjectives also have an indefinite verbal meaning. Ex.: Nauuháo (thirsty, to be thirsty), from uháo; napagal (tired, to be tired); pagalin (a tired person): namatay (dead, to be dead, from patay). P is here changed to m for euphony.

Some adjectives are also formed from roots by the prefix mapag, as mapagtungayao (abusive, insulting [words or acts implied]).

Others are formed by the prefix mapa; as, mapamansag (boastful, vainglorious, ostentatious), from bansag, ostentation. B is softened to m.

The indefinite particles mag and nag, when prefixed to some roots, generally with reduplication of the first syllable of the same, form adjectives in some cases. Ex.: Magdaraya (fraudulent, cheating), from daya, the initial d being softened to r; and naginal (sole unique, only), from isd, one.

The particle maka, in its signification of cause, forms adjectives similar in meaning to those in English ending in "able," "ing," etc., when prefixed to roots capable of such significations. The first syllable of the root is generally reduplicated, but not always. Ex.: Makatotóna (agreeable, pleasure causing), from toua; makatatáua (laughable, comic), from táua, and makasáua (disgusting), from sáua, etc.

A few adjectives are formed by the prefixed particles mala and pala, as malahininga (lukewarm, applied to water), malakoko (quite warm), and palaauáy (quarrelsome), from auáy (quarrel, enmity).

Some adjectives are formed by the reduplication of a root when the root has no more than two syllables. If there are more than two syllables the first two only are reduplicated. This rule is general in Tagalog. Ex.: Hálohálo (mixed), from hálo, root of the idea "to mix;" sunodsunod (consecutive), from sunod, root expressing the idea of following, etc. restrictive particle ka is sometimes prefixed to these reduplicated roots, implying a lesser degree than with ma or may; as, kasakitsakit (painful), from sakit, root expressing the idea of illness or pain. An example of how far a polysyllable is reduplicated is furnished by the word kaginhaginhaua (wholesome, salubrious), from ginhaua, idea of relief, betterment, rest.

There are a very few adjectives formed by the union of two words of opposite meaning, of which urong-sulong (neutral, indecisive), from urong

(to go back), and sulong (to go ahead), may be taken as the type.

The particle in (hin atter an acutely accented vowel) suffixed to many adjectives gives the idea of a person or object having the quality denoted by the root. Ex.: Masintahin (a loving person), from sinta, love; tamohin (a useful [or available] article), from tamó, use, utility, and babasagin (a broken or trail thing), from basag, idea of breaking, fracturing, etc., anything like glass, a plate, the head, etc. The first syllable of the root is here reduplicated.

An (han), which is generally a place suffix, is sometimes added to adjectives in which the idea of place or location is inherent, and occasionally with those which do not admit the suffix in for euphonic or other reasons. Ex.: Di madaanan (impassable or impenetrable), from di (not), and dáan (road), and matiisan (patient person), in denoting what may be suffered when suffixed to matiis; as, matiisin (what suffered or endured). This, however, belongs more properly under the particles, where the difference in the use of in and an is set forth at length.

In when inserted after the first consonant of some nouns gives the idea of like, and one at least is sometimes used as an adjective. It is binata (youth), from bata (child), and is sometimes used to mean "young," although bago (new) is sometimes used with the same idea, as in the words bagong táuo (unmarried man or bachelor, literally "new person").

The English nouns and phrases which are used as adjectives are expressed in Tagalog by means of the ties g, ng, or na, the word which is modified preceding the modifier, the opposite to what is done in English. The tie is attached to the modified word and answers somewhat to the English "of." Ex.: Salaming pilak (a mirror of silver, a silver looking-glass) (g); tinterong bábog (an inkstand of glass, a glass inkstand) (ng); singsing na gintó (a ring of gold, a gold ring); báhoy na bató (a stone house, a house of stone), the last two examples showing the use of the tie na. Sometimes the tie is omitted if the modified word ends in a consonant other than n, but it is not considered elegant to do so.

other than n, but it is not considered elegant to do so.

Adjectives like the English "golden," "silvery," "wooden," etc., are expressed in different ways in Tagalog, generally by means of the ties or by different particles indicating "likeness," which will be explained hereafter.

Negative adjectives like those formed in English by the prefixes un (Anglo-Saxon), in (before b and p softening to m for euphony), im (Latin), a, an (Greek), are formed in Tagalog by the particles di (not), vala (without), and sometimes hindi (no). Ex.: Di malapitan (unapproachable), from lapit, idea of approaching; di mabilang (innumerable), from bilang (to number); di madaanan (impassable or impenetrable), from dáan (road); valang bahala (apathetic, indifferent, careless); valang hangán (without end, lasting, eternal, infinite), and hindi namumunga (uniruitful), from bunga (fruit), with na and reduplicated first syllable of root (softened to m from b) to indicate present tense (literally, "not fruit-bearing"). The use of di and wald is illustrated by di makabayad and valang maybayad, the first meaning "not able to pay" and the second "without means of payment," both being about equal to "insolvent."

As in English, there is no variation in the adjective for gender and case, but the adjective may be pluralized. For the plural (the modified word being understood in some cases) the word mangá is used with simple adjectives—as, ang mangá hunghang (the foolish [persons])—and the first syllable of the root is repeated if it consists of one or two letters for compound adjectives. If the first syllable of the root contains more than two letters, the first two letters only are reduplicated. Mangá is also used by many with the plural compound adjective. Ex.: Ang maruránong, or ang mangá maruránong

The adjective may precede or follow the noun modified, and it would seem that the latter form is to be preferred, as it agrees with Malay (as with Spanish) construction. However, with the spread of English it is not unlikely that the custom of using the adjective before the noun may become the usual construction, as it is equally as correct as the other way. Ex.: Ang mangá babayeng magandá; ang mangá magandang babaye; ang mangá babaye; ang babayeng magagandá, and ang mangá magagandang babaye. All six of the foregoing phrases mean simply "the beautiful women," the first four being preferable.

The following list of adjectives will give the principal ones in ordinary use. The plan has been followed of giving adjectives with certain meanings, followed by those of opposite significations, or at least in well-defined groups. Words having substantially the same meaning are called synonyms; those of opposite meaning, antonyms. Words with the same sound but different meanings are called homonyms. Some Tagalog adjectives require several different words in English to express their varying meaning, just as occurs in translating English into Tagalog or any other language. Practice alone will fully instruct the student, owing to the localisms and provincialisms of the language. As many examples will be given as space justifies.

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES.

The Tagalog adjective, like adjectives of other languages, has the three degrees of quality to be indicated—the simple form (which is generally called the positive), the comparative, and the superlative. Of course, as in English, some adjectives are excluded from comparison by their meaning, such as those for "dead," "alive," "entire," and some others.

The positive adjective is that form discussed in the preceding pages, and the comparative will now be taken up. Of this there may be said to exist three varieties, the comparative of equality, that of superiority, and that of inferiority. In English the first form is expressed by "as (adjective) as (noun)," the second by "er" or "more," and the third by "er" or "less,"

In Tagalog there are three ways by which the comparative of equality may be expressed. The first is by using the adverb para (variation paris), meaning "as," "so," etc. In some cases "like" expresses the Tagalog idea best. With adjectives or common nouns para (paris) takes the tie ng, but with names of persons, etc., and pronouns is followed by what is compared, which takes the genitive case. Ex.: Parang mobuti (how good), maputi parang gatas (as white as milk), maitim parany úling (as black as charcoal), parang patay (like a dead person), parang háyop (like a beast); Akô'y para mo? (Am I like you?) siyô'y paris ko (he [she] is like me), malit paris ko (as small as I am [small like me]), siyâ mabait para ni Juan (he is as prudent as Juan), ang ilog sa Naga'y malouang para nang Pasig (the river at Naga [Nueva Cáceres] is as wide as the Pasig). With the particle ka denoting likeness, para indicates equality, the particle being prefixed to the adjective in such cases. Ex.: Para niyong mangá tiuo, kabubuti (equally good as these people). This word para, which as a root denotes "equality," "close resemblance," etc., should not be confused with the Spanish word para, meaning "to," "for," etc., as the resemblance is purely accidental. The Tagalog word is Malayan, the Javanese word pad'a having substantially the same signification.

The second way of expressing equality with an adjective is by means of the particle sing, which denotes this idea precisely. Ex.: Rô'y singhabà niyân (this is as long as that), siyâ'y singhaki ko (he is as large as I am), singlaki si Pedro ni Juan (Pedro is as large as Juan). It will be seen by the examples that the object or person compared takes the genitive case and the subject the nominative.

The third way of indicating equality with the adjective is by means of the consolidated particles ka and sing, i. e., kasing, the syntax being the same as with sing only. Ex.: Itô'y kasinghabà niyan (this is as long as that), si Pedro'y kasingtaas ni Juan (Pedro is as tall as Juan).

When equality is to be indicated for more than two objects it may be expressed in two ways. The first is by prefixing sing to the root, of which the first syllable is reduplicated. Ex.: Singhahaba (equally long [things]), singbubuti (equally good [persons or objects]), singtatais ang magina mi Bangoy (Maria) (Maria and her mother are the same in height). The second is by prefixing kasing to the root, the particle mag being prefixed to kasing, forming magkasing. Ex.: Magkasingdúnong (equally wise [learned]), magkasinggaman (equally wealthy [rich]), ang maginá ni Bangoy (Maria) ay magkasingtaás (Maria and her mother are the same in height [equally tall]), ang mañgá cabayoat ang mañgá kalabao ay magkasingdami sa bayan itó (there are as many horses as there are carabao in this town), magrácul langhagá higás na kasinadami nang nalaga. (Haye you this town), mayróon kang bagá bigás na kasingdami nang palay? (Have you as much hulled rice as you have of the unhulled?).

Equality in quantity may also be expressed by magkapara, magkaparis, or magkapantay, the two objects compared taking the nominative, and the root denoting quantity having ka prefixed to it. Ex.: Ang bigás ko at ang bigás niyá magkaparis karami (he and I have the same quantity of rice). Literally "my rice and his rice is the same in quantity." Those influenced by Spanish are liable to say "his rice and my rice," but the other redering that of the Molecup languages generally.

order is that of the Malayan languages generally.

The comparative by decrease is formed by the use of the adverb kúlang, (less), preferably with the negative particles di or hindi, as kulang alone has many times the force of "not," "without," "un-," etc., but, as in every language, the context serves as the best guide. Ex.: Hong bigás na itó'y kúlang sa ákin binilí (this rice is less than the amount I bought), ang halagá itong cabayo itô'y kúlang sa halagá nang ibá (the value of this horse is less than the value of the other), ang mangá kalabao kúlang nang dami sa mangá cabayo sa bayan itó (there are fewer carabao than horses in this town), ang mañgá Tagalog ay kúlang nang taás sa mañgá Americano (Tagalogs are not as tall [literally, "less in stature"] than Americans), ang kakulañgan (the difference in price, the balance, the difference in amount, etc.).

Alangan (lacking, insufficient, etc.) is sometimes used in place of kúlang. Ex.: Ang kayamanan ni Capitan Tino'y alangan sa kayamanan ni Capitan Luis (the wealth of Capitan Faustino is less than the wealth of Capitain Luis), alangan pa itong batà itó (this child is not old enough yet).

There are three ways in which the comparative by increase may be The first is by the position of the words only, what exceeds taking the nominative and what is exceeded the ablative with kay or sa, these two particles expressing "than." The particle ay is sometimes used with the nominative word.

The second method is by prefixing the adverb laló (more) to the adjective, with the same construction as the foregoing.

The third way, which is only used correctly for comparing qualities, is formed by suffixing pa (yet, still to the adjective) either alone or in conjunction with laló. Ex.: (1) Mataás akó sa iyó, or akó y mataás sa iyó; (2) akó y lalong mataás sa iyó; (3) mataás pa akó sa iyó, or lalong mataás pa akó sa iyó. All the foregoing may be translated by "I am taller than you are." (1) Payat ka sa dati (you are thinner than you were before), si Pedro'y masipag kay Juan (Pedro is more industrious than Juan), alin ang padiksi hay Pedro ni Juan? (Which is the more alort, Pedro or Juan?); si maliksi, kay Pedro ni Juan? (Which is the more alert, Pedro or Juan?); si Juan (Juan); si Juan ay mabait sa kaniyá; (2) si Juan ay lalong mabait sa kaniyá; (3) si Juan ay mabait pa sa kaniyá (Juan is more prudent than he [or she] is). (1) Ang kabanala'y mahal sa kayamanan; (2) lalong mahal ang kabanalan sa kayamanan (worth is more precious than wealth), itô'y lalong magaling sa diyan (this is better than that), iyan ay lalong maputi sa dito (that is whiter than this), lalong marami ang mañgá cabayo sa mañgá kalabao sa bayan itó, nguni't ang mangá taga búkid mayróon lalong kalabao sa ang mangá taga bayan; (3) there are more horses than carabao in this town, but the farmers have more carabao than the town people, si Ciriaca ay batà pa sa akin, nguni't ang kapatid kong babaye'y marikit pa sa kaniyá (Ciriaca is younger [literally, "more of a child yet"] than I am, but my sister is prettier than she is), siyá'y laló pang kayumangi sa kaniyang iná't maliit pa siyá sa ákin (she is still darker [more brunette] than her mother and is shorter yet than I am).

A laconic but correct form of comparison is expressed by using pa after a pronoun, especially in asking a question. Ex.: Hindi mo naábut, akó paf (It was not reached by you; shall I?). Hindî ko naaalaman; ikao pa? (I do not know it: do you?).

For the negative form of the comparative, as in such phrases expressed in English by "without comparison," "there is nothing like it," "there is nothing resembling it," etc., Tagalog has several expressions almost alike in meaning, which are formed by prefixing ka to various roots; the negative wala, (there is no [t]) with the tie ng preceding the root and its prefix. An is sometimes found as a suffix with these expressions.

Walang kahalimbáua, without comparison;

Walang kahalintúlad, without similarity (generally in speaking of objects); Walang katúlad, without similarity; unlike; both the foregoing from túlad;

Walang kahambing, without resemblance; synonym;

Walang kawangis, without resemblance;

Walang kaholilip, without likeness (this phrase is rare);
Walang kamukha, without facial resemblance, from muk-ha, face;

Walang kapantay, without an equal; referring mainly to height, length, rank;

Watang katalamitan, without resemblance (a rare expression); Walang kawangki, without resemblance (also a rare phrase).

To ask questions as to comparative equality, inferiority, or superiority is done in Tagalog with ga (how) prefixed to alin (which), or and (what), in conjunction with ka prefixed to the root of the quality. With many adjectival roots ga and ka thus serve to show that the degree of the quality is the subject of inquiry. Ex.: Gaalin kalayo? (About how far is it?); is the subject of inquiry. Ex.: Gaalin kalayo? (About how far is it?); Gaanong kalaki? (About how large is it?); Gaanong kahabà? (About how long is it?); Gaalin kaputi? (How white is it?). The answer may be given with the same construction, prefixing ga to a demonstrative pronoun or a noun, as the case may be, but if an adjectival root be used, it should be prefixed by ka. Ex.: Gaitó; ganitó (like this); ganiyán (like that); gagatas kaputî (as white as milk); ganitong kalakî (about as large as this); ganóong kahabà (about as long as that). Gaya is a variation. Ganga, another form, is generally used to indicate plurality. Ex.: Ganga nitó kalakî (about as large as these); ganga niyán kahabà (about as long as those). The noun, pronoun, or adjective compared sometimes takes the nominative and sometimes the genitive in these answers. Ga and its varinominative and sometimes the genitive in these answers. Ga and its variations may be said to express likeness, and is but an offshoot of ka. In many cases na is also inserted in the sentence. Ex.: Gaaling na gaitó kaonti? (How small is it, like this?). The letter n instead of ng is used in some phrases. Ex.: Ganan ákin (that which belongs to or affects me); ganan inyó (that which affects you), etc.

THE SUPERLATIVE.

The superlative degree of the adjective may be divided into the simple and the absolute forms. The first, usually expressed in English by the use of the adverbs "very," "extremely," "excessively," "exceedingly," "surpassingly," etc., is expressed in Tagalog by the following adverbs:

Lubhá, very, very much, exceedingly.

(2) Masákit, extremely, exceedingly, hard (as in the phrase, "to rain hard"). Distinguished by difference in accent from masakit, (ill). This adverb is used more with verbs than with adjectives. In some places sadyá has the sense of "very;" ex., sadyang linis very clean.

(3) Di sapala, extremely, exceedingly, from di, not, and sapala, humble, unworthy, the idea of the adverb being that of plenty or sufficiency.

(4) Di hámak, extremely, from di, not, and hámak, vile, worthless, mean, the whole idea being "not paltry," "not mean."

(5) Dî palak, far, widely.

(6) Labis, too, too much. This adverb has sometimes a slight idea of craft, cunning, or slyness.

Totóo, truly, exactly, precisely.

The adverbs formed with di always follow the adjective in the sentence, but the simple adverbs may either follow or precede the adjective.

He (she) is very old (extremely, etc.):
$$\begin{cases} \textit{Matandâ} \ siy\^{a} \ \begin{cases} \textit{di sapala.} \\ \textit{di hâmak.} \\ \textit{di palak.} \end{cases} \\ \textit{Matandâ} \ siy\^{a} \begin{cases} \textit{lubhâ.} \\ \textit{labis.} \\ \textit{tot\^{o}o.} \end{cases}$$

The following phrases will illustrate the various idiomatic uses of the adverbs with the adjective: (1) Lubhá ang pagkapagal ko (I am very tired; lit., "very great is my fatigue"); (2) ngani, lalong masákit ang kay Pedro (That's so, but Pedro is still more tired; lit., "but more excessive is [that] of Pedro"); Iniibig katang masákit (We like you very much); Pinagsisisihan silang masákit (They are repenting deeply); (3) Mayaman di sapala siyá (He is exceedingly wealthy [very rich]); (5) Ungmulán nang labis (It rained too much); (verbalized) Napakalabis ang kabutihan mo (You are entirely too good [honest]); Linabisan ang utos ko sa inyó (You exceeded your orders; you did more than I told you to do); (6) Tinototóo niyá ang wiká (He is complying with his word [verbalized form of totoo]).

The absolute superlative degree of the adjective (in the singular number) which is made in English by the suffix "est" and by the adverb "most" is generally expressed in Tagalog by repeating the entire adjective, whether it be simple or compound, by means of the proper tie, which is determined by the ending of the adjective. Ex.: Mabuting mabuti (best); masomang masamá (worst); banal na banal (most virtuous); masipag na masipag (most diligent); mahal na mahal (dearest, most precious); maputing maputi (whitest, very white); maitim na maitim (blackest, very black).

The plural of such superlatives as the foregoing is formed by using the particle manigá with those formed from simple adjectives, and either with maniga or the reduplication of the first syllable of the root with those compounded with ma, the superlatives thus formed, either in the singular or plural, generally being printed as two words in order to avoid unnecessary length and also to distinguish more clearly from some diminutives. Ex.:

The dearest [persons or objects understood] (ang mangá mahal na mahal). The best [persons or objects understood] (ang mangá mabuting mabuti; ang mabubuting mabubuti).

The worst (persons or things understood), ang mañgá masamang masamá;

ang masasamang musasamà. The bravest men (ang mañgá matápang na matápang na lalaki; ang matatápang na matatápang na lalaki).

The ugliest animals (ang mañgá pañgit na pañgit na háyop).

What may be called the relative superlative degree, made in English by adding the expression "of all" or a similar phrase to the superlative, is formed in Tagalog by adding the words sa lahat (of all), sa kanilá, (among them), etc. Ex.: Sino sa kanilá'y ang lalong matápang! (Which of those two is the braver?); Sino sa kanilá'y ang matatápang na matatápang? (Which of them is the bravest?); Ang maliit sa lahat, siya'y matapang sa lahat (The smallest of all; he is the bravest of all).

Superlatives are also formed by prefixing ka and suffixing an (kan) to reduplicated bisyllabic words, and in the same manner with polysyllabic words, in the latter case only the first two syllables being reduplicated. Ex.: Katamistamisan (sweetest), from tamis; kabanalbanalan (most virtuous), from banal; kaginhaginhauahan (most wholesome), from ginhaua. The first two roots have two syllables and the last has three. This form may also be applied to abstracts formed with ka and an (han), and intensifies them. Ex.: Katamisan (sweetness); katamistamisan (sweetness itself); kabanalan (virtue); kabanalbanalan (virtue itself); katamaran (laziness); katamartamaran (laziness, laziness itself).

Verbs have a certain superlative form, which may be mentioned here for the sake of association. It is made by repeating the verbal root united by nang. Ex.: Hingi nang hingi (ask and ask over again); lákad nang lákad (walk and walk); "yes" nang "yes" ang wikain mo (say yes over and over). This form is also found with nouns, etc.

SECTION FIVE.

THE NUMERALS.

The numerals form a small noun-group by themselves, having the three-fold character of substantive, adjective, and adverb. While the distinction between adjective and noun is not so sharp as with some other words, yet it is clear that the cardinals in Tagalog are nouns, as they show by always preceding the noun affected that "of" must be understood. Thus limang kalabao literally means "five (head) of cattle," and this holds good in all cases.

In Tagalog there are four classes of numerals—cardinals, ordinals, adverbials, and distributives.

The cardinals are:

One. Isá. Seven. Pitó. Two. Dalawá. Eight. Waló. Three. Tatló. Nine. Siyam.

Four. Apat (accent on first sylla- Ten. Sangpouó (contr. of isang pouó, "one ten").

Five, Limá.

Six. Anim (accent on first sylla-

As in English, decimal numeration, by tens, is that used in Tagalog and throughout the Malayan family of languages. But Tagalog uses a peculiar form in the numerals from eleven to nineteen, inclusive, which differs from the method followed in every other language of Luzon. Labi, meaning "adding," and a variation of labis, is prefixed to the digits by means of the euphonic tie \widetilde{ng} ; poub, ten, being understood.

Labing isá. Sixteen. Labing ánim. Eleven. Twelve. Labing dalawá. Seventeen. Labing pitó. Labing tatló. Eighteen. Thirteen. Labing waló. Fourteen. Labing ápat. Nineteen. Labing siyam. Labing limá. Fifteen.

The multiples of ten below one hundred are formed by prefixing the digit used as the multiplier to the word pout, united by the proper tie.

Dalawang pouó. Sixty. Anim na pouó. Twenty. Tatlong pouó. Seventy. Pitong pouó. Thirty. Eighty. Walong pouó. Forty. Apat na pouó. Limang poub. Siyam na pouó. Ninety. Fifty.

The intermediate digits, when used with the foregoing, are joined by means of 't, a contraction of at (and).

Twenty-one. Dalawang pouô't isá. Fifty-five. Limang pouô't limá. Thirty-three. Tatlong pouô't tatló. Sixty-six. Anim na pouô't ánim. Forty-four. Apat na pouô't ápat.

The word for "hundred" is dáan, which has a homonym meaning "road." It is always preceded by the appropriate multiplier, to which it is connected by the proper tie, d softening to r before na.

One hundred. Isang dáan; sang-Five hundred. Limang dáan. dáan. Six hundred. Anim na ráan. Two hundred. Dalawang dáan. Seven hundred. Pitong dáan. Three hundred. Eight hundred. Tatlong dáan. Walong dáan. Nine hundred. Four hundred. Apat na ráan. Siyam va ráan.

Numbers below twenty added to hundreds are united with 't, the n of dáan being dropped.

One hundred and one. Two hundred and eighteen. Sangdúa't isá. Dalawang dáa't labing waló.

The n is retained with multiples of ten.

Two hundred and fifty-three. Six hundred and sixty-six. Eight hundred and eighty-eight. Nine hundred and ninety-nine.

Dalawang dáan limang pouó't tatló. Anim na ráan ánim na pouó't ánim. Walong dáan walong pouó't waló. Siyam na ráan siyam na pouó't siyam.

The word for "thousand" is libo, which is found as ribo and ribu in other Philippine languages.

It is governed, like dáan, by multipliers and suffixed numbers. purely Malayan numerals end with libo, those for higher numbers being of foreign origin. Some higher numbers are said to have Malayan names, but it is doubtful as to whether their values are definite or not. They are noted. however.

One thousand. One thousand and eight. Nineteen hundred and five. Two thousand. Six thousand.

Sanglibo.Sanglibo't waló. Sanglibo siyam na ráa't limá. Dalawang libo. Anim na libo.

For "ten thousand" the term $laks\acute{a}$ is used. This is from the Sanskrit laksha (one hundred thousand), through the Malay sa-laksa (ten thousand), the latter people mistaking its value. Lakh, with the original value of "one hundred thousand," is used by Anglo-Indians, as in the phrase "a lakh of rupees."

For "one hundred thousand" another Sanskrit term is used, also with altered value. This is yuta, from the Sanskrit ayuta (ten thousand).

"One million" is now expressed by sangpouong yuta, or "ten one hundred thousands." Gatos and añgao-añgao are given in old dictionaries as equivalent to "million," but the former is the word used for "hundred" in most Philippine dialects, and the latter seems to have more the idea of "uncountable," "infinite," etc.

In expressing numbers Tagalogs sometimes give a round number, less the few taken off, as "three hundred and sixty less two" for "three hundred and fifty-eight;" e. g., kúlang nang dalawá sa tatlong dáan ánim na pouó.

Cardinals may be preceded by ang (the), when a concrete noun is modified, as in the phrase Ang dalawang pisos na ibinigay mo sa ákin (the two dollars which you gave me).

Manīgā preceding a numeral indicates the idea of "about," "some," etc., as in the phrase manīgā pitong tāuo (about seven men). When the exact number is indicated mangá is omitted as a sign of plurality. Ex.:

Manīgā tāuo (men, people); pitong tāuo (seven men, persons).

By reduplicating the first syllable of the cardinal the idea of "only" is brought in. Ex.: Isā (only one, alone, etc.); dadalawā (two only, only two), etc. For greater emphasis upon the idea of limitation the number may be repeated with the initial syllable reduplicated. Ex.: Iisáisá (one only); dadaladalawá (only two). The adverb lámang (only) may also be used for this same idea, the adverb following the cardinal affected. Isá lámang (only one); dalawá lámang (only two), etc. It will be observed that the first two syllables only of polysyllable numerals like dalawá are repeated, following the general rule in Tagalog.

The question "How many?" is expressed in Tagalog by ilán?

Tagalog has no abstracts like "a dozen," "a score," etc., these phrases requiring roundabout means of expression. "A dozen" may be translated by isang kapisanan nang labing dalawá, which literally means "a joining of twelve." The same is true of English abstracts like "monad," "decade," etc.

"More," with a cardinal following, is expressed by labis or high, which precede the numeral and are united with it by sa, which expresses "than." Ex.: Labis sa limá, or higit sa limá (more than five). Labis is the more correct, as high has an idea of excess in weight rather than in number.

Kúlang (less) is used in the same way.

The indeterminate numeral "some," "a few," is expressed in Tagalog by ilán. With the first syllable reduplicated or with lámang the idea of "only" is expressed; as, iilán or ilán lámang (only a few).

"Much," "many," and similar words are expressed by marami (from dami), and "a great many" may be translated by maraming marami. By making an abstract of dami and prefixing the definite article of common nouns is expressed "the most," "the majority," etc. Ex.: Ang karamihan.

For the meaning of the numerals, see the work by T. H. Pardo de Tavera, entitled "Consideraciones sobre el Origen del Nombre de los Números en Tagalog," published at Manila in 1889.

ORDINALS.

The ordinals, which are the numerals designating the place or position of the object in some particular series, have more of the character of adjectives than have the cardinals. They answer the question Ikailán? what order?) and are formed in a very simple manner in Tagalog for all numbers except "first," which is quite irregular, ika being prefixed to the cardinal. It should also be noted that the first syllable of dalawa (two) is omitted, as well as the initial letter of tatló (three) and ápat (four) when preceded by ika. "Twentieth," however, is formed with ika and the entire cardinal.

The ordinals up to "tenth" are:

The first. The second. The third. The fourth. The fifth. The sixth. The seventh. The eighth. The ninth. The tenth.

Ang naóna. Ang ikalawá. Ang ikatló. Ang ikápat. Ang ikalimá. Ang ikánim (initial letter dropped). Ang ikapitó. Ang ikawaté. Ang ikasiyam.

Ang ikapouó; ang ikasangpouó.

In the southern provinces ang ikapoló is sometimes heard, due to Bicol and Visayan influence. Poló and pol-lo is also to be found in the dialects spoken to the north of the Tagalog region, and this form may be found in the north, but should be regarded as extraneous to the language.

The following synopsis of the ordinals above "tenth" will give an accurate idea of their formation:

The eleventh. The twenty-fifth. The thirtieth. The fortieth. The forty-fifth.

Ang ikalabing isá. Ang ikadalawang pouó't limá. Ang ikatlong pouó. Ang ikápat na pouó. Ang ikápat na pouó't limá.

The fiftieth. The sixtieth. The seventieth. The eightieth. The ninetieth. The one hundredth. The one thousandth. The one ten-thousandth.

Ang ikalimang pouó. Ang ikánim na pouó. Ang ikapitong pouó. Ang ikawalong pouó. Ang ikasiyam na poub. Ang ikasangdáan, Ang ikasanglibo. Ang ikasanglaksá.

Nouns following ordinals are tied to them according to the ending of the numeral. Ex.: Ang ikalimang táuo (the fifth person); ang ikatlong árao

(the third day).

In Tagalog, contrary to what obtains in Spanish, the ordinals are used for all days of the month, and thus agreeing with English. Ex.: Ikailán árao ngayón nang buang itó? (What day of the month [is] this?); ang ikadalarang pouo't pitó (the twenty-seventh). Anong árao kayá ngayón sa sang-lingo! (What day of the week is to-day?); Ngayo'y viernes (to-day is Friday). Anong taon? (What year?); sanglibo, siyam na ráa't limá (nineteen day). Anong toon? (What year?); sangtibo, siyam na raa't tima (nineteen hundred and five). Anong buan nagayón nang taón? (What month is this?); ang buan nang enero, pó (the month of January, sir). Anó ang pañgalan mo? (What is your name?); Glicerio, pó (Glicerio, sir). Ang ikatunang pañgalan (The second name [surname]?); Manalo, pó (Manalo, sir). Tuga saán ka? (Where are you from?); Batangas, pó (Batangas, sir). Ibín ka nang taón? (How old are you?); Mayroón akong dalawang pouó't limá (I am twenty-five years old). Saán naroon ang presidente? (Where is the presidente [mayor]?); Nariyán sa ikalawang báhay (There in the second house)

Fractions are expressed by the use of ang (the) if the numerator is one, the denominator being the ordinal desired, and bahagi (a part) following the denominator either expressed or understood. Numerals may replace Ex.: Ang ikalawang bahagi (the second part); ang ika pat (the fourth), etc. Also isang bahagi (one part); tatlong bahagi (three parts). Where the numerator is greater than one it is placed in the nominative and the denominator in the genitive, the two being connected by nang and the phrase followed by bahagi. Ex.: Tatló nang ápat na bahagi (three-quarters); dalawá nang tatlong bahagi (two-thirds).

"Half" is expressed by kalahati, as kalahating tinápay (half a loaf of bread). The noun "a half" is expressed by kahati, meaning generally a a half-salapi or 25 centavos.

It should be mentioned that unauna means "in the first place," and when made an abstract and preceded by the definite article of common nouns, as in the phrase ang kaunaunahan, means "the very first." In like manner, huli (last), when made an abstract in the same way, as ang kahulihulihan means "the very last."

ADVERBIAL NUMERALS.

Adverbial numerals, expressed in English by "once," "twice," etc., and answering the question Nakailán* (past tense) and Makailán* (present and future tenses), "How often?", "How many times?" are formed like the ordinals except that maka is prefixed instead of ika to the cardinals. The word for "once" is wholly irregular. In some districts these adverbial numerals also express the idea of "fold," as "twofold," "threefold." As with the cardinals the sense of "only" may be imparted by reduplicating either the first syllable of the prefixed particle or following the adverbial numeral with låmang.

Once. Twice. Minsan, var. ninsan

(rare). Makalawá. Nine times. Ten times. Fourteen times.

Makasiyam.Makasangpouó. Makalabing ápat. Thrice. Makatatló. Twenty times. MakadalawangFour times. Makaápat, var. mapouó. Makudalawangkaipat (rare). Twenty-five times. pouô't limá. Five times. Makalimá. Makasangdáan. Six times. One hundred times. Makaánim. Seven times. Makapitó. A thousand times. Makasanglibo: makalibo. Eight times. Makawaló.

Naturally, as in all languages, the restrictive form is not used for very high numbers.

Only once. Miminsan. Only twice. Mamakalawá. Only three times. Mamakatatló.

In this connection it should be remembered that kaitán? means "when?" used interrogatively.

DISTRIBUTIVE NUMERALS.

These numerals, expressed in English with "by" between the numerals, as "one by one," "two by two," etc., answer the question Ilán ilán? (How many at a time?) and are formed in Tagalog by the simple repetition of the cardinal if bisyllabic, or the first two syllables thereof if longer, no tie being used.

One by one.
Two by two.
Three by three.
Four by four.
Five by five.
Six by six.
Seven by seven.
Eight by eight.
Nine by nine.
Ten by ten.
Eleven by eleven.
Twelve by twelve.
Twenty by twenty.
One hundred by one hundred.
One thousand by one thousand.

Isáisá, Daladalawá.
Tatlótatló, Apatápat.
Limálimá, Animánim.
Pitópitó.
Walówaló.
Siyamsiyam.
Sangposangpouó.
Labilabing isá.
Labilabing dalawá.
Daladalawang pouó.
Sangdasangdáan.
Sanglisanglibo.

Nouns repeated in this manner acquire the idea of "every."

Every day; daily. Weekly (also every Sunday). Yearly; annually.

Arao-árao. Lingo-lingo. Taón-taón.

Oras-oras (from Sp., hora).

The Tagalog word for "every" is tuwi, which may also be used.

Distributives, answering the question Tigitlán? (How many to each one?) are formed by prefixing the particle tig to the cardinals, the first syllable of the latter being reduplicated in those greater than "four". The first syllable is dropped from dalawá and the initial t from tatló.

One to each one. Two to each one. Three to each one. Four to each one. Five to each one.

Hourly.

Tigisá. Tigalawá. Tigatló. Tigápat. Tiglilimá. Six to each one. Seven to each one. Eight to each one. Nine to each one. Ten to each one. Tigaánim, Tigpipitó. Tigwawaló. Tigsisiyam. Tigsasangpouó.

These may be also translated by "one apiece," etc.

Tig prefixed to cardinals may also express the stamped, coined, or fixed value of money, stamps, etc. In this case the initial syllable of those numerals above four is not reduplicated. Na is now more generally used than tig for this purpose. Ex.: Seyong tigalawang centavos (a two-cent stamp); salaping tiglimang pisos (a five-peso bill or gold piece); tigdalawang pouong pisos (a twenty-peso bill or gold piece). It must be borne in mind that the Philippine peso is equal to a half dollar United States currency, and that it is the legal currency in the islands. Hence the old debates over "gold" and "mex." should be relegated to the past.

In the southern dialect tig is sometimes used to express the time at which something may be done or has been done, as in tigaga (to do something in the morning); tighapon (to do something in the afternoon).

The particle man, prefixed to nouns denoting money, weights, and measures, imparts the idea of "each," "apiece," etc. This particle causes cuphonic changes with some initial letters of roots, as follows: b and p change to m, the final n dropping from the particle; initial c (k), and q drop out, modifying n to $\tilde{n}g$; s and t drop out; d drops out in most cases; initial m, n, and \widetilde{ng} also drop out, and an initial vowel (a, i, o, and u) modifies the final n of the particle to ng.

The former monetary system was founded upon the salapi, or half peso, nominally worth 25 cents at a gold basis, and now restored to that value. Nalapí also means money in general. The peso of one hundred centavos In the old system the salapi was divided into 80 is worth two salapi. cuartos, and upon these the people reckoned their market and other minor transactions. As these values and terms will linger for some time to come, especially in districts where Tagalog only is spoken, the following examples will prove of use:

A peso each or apiece. A half peso each or apiece. A half (salapi) each or apiece. A real (12½ centavos) each, etc.

A half real (6) centavos) each, etc.

A cuartillo (5 cuartos or $0.03125, or P0.0625) each, etc.

A cuarto ($0.00625, or $0.0125) each, etc.

Mamisos.Manalapî.

Mangahati (from kahati, 25 centavos). Manikápat (from sikápat, a contraction of sa ikápat, to the fourth of a salapî).

Manikoló (from sikoló, a contraction of sa ikawaló, to the eighth of a salapî).

Mangaliu (from aliu).

Mañgualta (from cualta, a corruption of cuarto).

The only measure of weight incorporated into Tagalog appears to be the table (from the Chinese tack, which was a very uncertain standard). By treaty the haikwan tael or customs tael of China is now 31 ounces avoirdupois. As a monetary unit the haikwan tack varies from 55 to 60 cents, but is only quoted in banking operations and is not used by Tagalogs.

The Philippine táhil may be regarded as slightly heavier than a troy ounce, weighing 509.75 grains, the troy and apothecaries' ounce weighing 480 grains, and the avoirdupois ounce 4371 grains.

One táhil each.

One pound Spanish each.

One kilogram each.

One arroba (dry) each.

One "fardo" each.

One quintal each.

Manáhil,

Manlibra (1.0144 United pounds).

Mañgilogramo (2.2046 United States pounds).

Mañgaroba (25 libras or 25.36 United States pounds).

Mamardo (33 Sp. or 33.475 United States pounds; used in weighing tobacco).

Mañgintal (4arrobas or 101.44 United States pounds).

6855---05-----6

Rice and grain is sold by the caván and its fractions, which are as follows:

One "apatán" each. One "chupa" each.

One "ganta" each.

One "caván" each.

Mañgapatán (0.1981 of a pint, dry).
Mangatang (4 apatán or 0.7925 of a pint).

Manalop (8 chupas or 3.1701 United States quarts) (from salop).

Mañgabán (25 gantas or 19.81 gallons).

There are 8 gallons to the United States bushel. United States dry measure is slightly different from British imperial. To reduce United States to British divide same named measures by 1.031516, and to reduce British to United States multiply by same. For common purposes use 1.032, which is close enough. Trautwine.

A "caván" of rice weighs 133 "libros."

One "picul" each.

Mamikul (137.9 United States pounds. Two piculs constitute a "bale" of hemp, abaká).

The metric system is now official in the Philippines, and its use is gradually spreading to all sections.

Among the native measures of length used with man are the following:

One inch each.

Mananali (from sangdali, which in turn is contracted from sang, "one," and daliri, "inch").

The Spanish inch is 0.91 of an inch. Dalirì also means finger or digit, and the length of a Tagalog "inch" almost exactly corresponds to the "digit" of the early Hebrews, which was 0.912 of an inch.

One "span" each.

Manangcal (from dangcal, a "paim").

The American "span" is 9 inches, while the Tagalog dangeal is one-fourth of a vara, hence 8.25 United States inches.

One "vara" each.

One "braza" each.

Mamara (from vara, a Spanish yard, equal to 33 United States inches, approximately, and actually 0.914117 of a yard).

Mandipá (from dipá, a braza, equal to 5 feet 5.8 inches United States, approximately 5½ feet).

To express the idea of "at such a price apiece" the former monetary units were used with in (hin) suffixed to the unit, of which the initial syllable was reduplicated. The article or object of which the price was to be denoted preceded the unit of value, the two words being linked with the appropriate tie, according to the ending of the first word. Ex.: Pipisohin (at a peso each), librong sasalapiin (books at a half peso each), tinapay na sisicapatin (bread at a real a loaf), tabacong aaliuhin (cigars at a "cuartillo" apiece).

These terms will now only be found used with those people still unfamiliar with the new currency, but as these people speak only Tagalog as a rule they will naturally retain the old terms the longest.

The following dialogue fairly represents what may be said in making a purchase in the market:

A. Magkano bagá ang halaga nitô? (What is the price of this?)

B. Isang pisos, po (a peso, sir).

A. Mahal na totoo iyan (that is too dear).

B. Hindi pô't mura (no, sir; cheap).
A. Anong mura? (How [is it] cheap?)

B. Kayó na'y tumauad (you set a price, sir).

A. Totlong pesetas ang ibibigay ko (I will give 3 pesetas [60 centavos]).

B. Hindî pong mangyayari; ápat na pesetas, pó (I can not do it; 4 pesetas. sir).

A. Mabuti (very well [offers a peso]).

B. Wald akong sukli, pó (I have no change, sir).

A. Dalá mo nga sa aming báhay, doón babayaran kitá (bring it [them] to our house, we will pay [you] there).

B. Malayo yatá? (Is it far?)

A. Hindî, at doon l\u00e1mang sa may cuartel (no, it is there close to the barracks [quarters]).

It should be borne in mind that "magkakano" is used when pricing objects of which a part only is desired, such as eggs, bananas, etc. "Magkano" indicates that the entire quantity is priced.

The verbalized forms of the numerals will be given under the respective particles, as too lengthy explanations would be required in this place.

Section Six.

THE ADVERB.

By the name of adverb is distinguished that class of words used to modify the sense of a verb, adjective, participle, or other adverb, and usually placed near what is modified, as he writes well, I readily admit, you speak correctly, very cold, naturally brave, very generally acknowledged, much more clearly. (All but one of the foregoing are from the Century Dictionary.)

Adverbs may be classified, according to the same authority, as follows:

(1) Adverbs of place and motion, as here, there, up, out, etc. (2) Of time and succession, as now, then, often, ever, etc. (3) Of manner and quality, as so, thus, well, truly, faithfully, etc. (4) Of measure and degree, as much, more, very, enough, etc. (5) Of modality, as surely, not, perhaps, therefore, etc.

According to Earle, one of the most distinguished authorities on English, there are three kinds of adverbs, the flat, flexional, and phrasal.

 The flat adverb, which is a noun or adjective used in an adverbial position, is not considered as correct in books and papers, but is to be heard daily in conversation, as in walk fast, walk slow, speak loud, speak low, etc. In German, this form of the adverb is also literary, as ein ganz schönes Hous (a wholly beautiful house); er schreibt gut (he writes well [lit., good]). Adjectives of certain classes may be used this way in Tagalog, and especially those of manner or degree, such as magaling (well); masama (badly); maduli (quickly, briefly), etc., which are also adjectives. There are also flat adjectives by signification, which are explained under the section to which they belong by meaning.

(2) The flexional adverb, which is that distinguished by a termination in English and allied languages like ward, ling, long, meal, and ly, as in backward, darkling, headlong, piecemeal, and the great number in ly, such as quickly, quietly, rapidly, etc. Tagalog has no particle which thus marks out an adverb from other parts of speech.

(3) The phrasal adverb, which is also called an adverbial phrase, is greatly used in English, and is to be found in abundance in Tagalog. Among English examples may be cited at best, at length, by all means, for good and all, on every side, etc.

There are also both in English and Tagalog what may be styled the adverbial pronouns, such as yes and no, together with the negatives not, nor, and neither.

Unlike English adverbs nearly every Tagalog abverb may be made into a verb if the proper particle is used, and the border between adverts and prepositions is very indefinite in some cases and must be determined by the aid of the context.

As the form and composition of a word is subordinate to its meaning, the Tagalog adverbs hereafter considered will be classified according to meaning, irrespective of form.

I. Adverbs of place and motion which answer the question sáan? "where?" are usually expressed in Tagalog by sa followed by a root. root sometimes has the expulsive particle i prefixed.

Where. Saan.Where? Sáan? Where indeed? Sáan ñga. Sáan man. Anywhere, wherever, somewhere.

Sáansáan man. Sáan reduplicated. Everywhere. Sáan ma'y walú. Nowhere.

From all parts, may also mean to or Sa sáan man.

Where are you from?

Taga sáan ka? Siyá "he" and silá "they" may be used in place of ka.

Sáan may be verbalized with um inserted, forming sumáan (to be somewhere permanently), and also with ma (na), in the latter case taking the idea of to be somewhere either temporarily or permanently, as the case Ex.: Nasáan ang mababao na ilog? (Where is the ford of the river?); Masasáan siyá bagá? (Where will be be?).

Sian may be further verbalized by pa, in which case "to go" is inherent Ex.: Napasáan siyá? (Where did he go?); Napasasáan in the meaning. siyá? (Where is he going?); Pasasáan siyá? (Where will he go?).

Sáan has been corrupted to háan in some districts, owing to Bicol and Visavan influence, the former using haen and the latter hain.

Saan has an entirely different meaning with pa following or even alone in some cases, expressing a negative idea similar to "not yet," etc. Ilocano $s\acute{a}an$ is also the negative participle "no."

Sian pat also means "where then?" in rather a sarcastic manner. With di added to súan pa an affirmative interrogative meaning is expressed, as Sáan pa dí totóo? (How can it not be true?).

It must also be noted that in Manila and places where Spanish is largely spoken that some particles are used in a different manner than is the custom in rural districts. Thus, "Where are you going?" is expressed in the country by súan ka paroroón, but in Manila by sáan ka paparoón. Other expressions of like nature are Saan any paroroonan mo? in which the definite is used, and sian ka nagmulá? (Where did you start from?). Another similar question is Sáan ka nañgagáling! (Where are you coming from?). The answer is generally given with sa in the sense of from: Sa Malabón (from Malabôn); sa Imus (from Imus); sa báhay ko (from my house), etc.

There are four simple adverbs of place, which have heretofore been explained at length, and here only some idiomatic uses will be set forth.

These adverbs are dini, ditô, diyan, and dôon.

Dini, meaning "here" (toward the speaker), is verbalized by um, in the sense of taking a place near the speaker, etc. Ex.: Dumini ka (take your place here); dungmidini akó (I am taking my place here); dungmini akó (I took my place here); dirini akó (I will take my place here).

With mag (nag) it is verbalized in the transitive sense, requiring an object. Ex.: Magrini ka niyang tinapay (put some bread here by me).

With pa the idea of motion toward the speaker is expressed. Ex.:
Parini ka (come here toward me). This last form may be further compounded with the particle pa, definite, corresponding to magpa, indefinite, to express the idea of commanding, requesting, etc. Ex.: Paparinihin mosi Carlos (tell Carlos to come over here). "Over there" is expressed by sa rini.

Ditó, meaning "here" (equally close to both speaker and person addressed), is verbalized in the same way as dini. Ex.: Dumito ka (take your place here); paritó ka (come here); paparitohin mo si Carlos (tell Carlos to come here); Pinaparitó mo siyá? (Did you tell him to come here?). The four adverbs under discussion admit the definites of i and an. That in i is compounded with ka, forming ika, ikina; and in may be used when united with pa, the definite of magpa, as may be seen in the last two examples. The future is Papariritohin mo siyá? (Will you tell him to come here?) and the present Pinapariritó mo siyá? (Are you telling him to come here?). Reason or cause is expressed by ika, ikina prefixed to the adverb as a rule, although "why?" can also be expressed by ano? as in Aanó ka ritó? (Why are you here?). The more idiomatic way, however, is with ikina, as Anó ang ikinaparitó mo? (What was the reason you came here?). Han is used if the idea of place is to be made emphatic, as Sino bagá ang pinaritohan mo? (Who did you come here to see?). "Time" is generally expressed by panahón, which also means "weather," as Anó't di ka maparitó sa kapanahónan? (Why didn't you come here in time?). "What" is expressed by anó, as Nagaanó ka ditó? (What is your business here?); Magaanó sigá ditó? (What is he going to do here?); Anhín bagá? (What of that?) or (What is there to do?); Inaanó ka? (What is being done to you?); Inanó ka? (What was done to you?); Hindí ka maaanó (nothing can be done to you). Dumitó, with the particle magka and its variations, signifies "to come here for a particular reason or cause." Ex.: Ay at nagkadumitó ka? (For what particular reason did you come here?); Ang ipinagkakadumitó ko'y si Cabesang Tomás (the "cabeza" Tomás is particularly responsible for my being here).

The first of these two sentences is indefinite, grammatically speaking, and the last definite. For their grammatical construction see the particle magka, which is used with this signification with all four of the simple adverbs of place under discussion. For a tabular conjugation of ditó see the tables of verbs. To express simply the time or reason for "coming here," i with pa may also be used, although ikina is more correct. Ex.: Anó ang ipinaritó mo? (Why did you come here?). The indefinite is more usual with kailán, "when." Ex.: Kailán ka naparitó? (When did you come here?); Kahapon (yesterday).

Digin, "there" (near at hand), has the same construction as the foregoing adverbs. Ex.: Magdiyan ka nang tabig (put some water over there).

Doon, there, yonder, is perhaps more commonly used in its various modifications than the other three simple adverbs of place. It may be verbalized with um, pa, puma, and magka as they are, with the same effect upon the root. Pa and magka modify the d to r.

Ex.: Dumóon ka (station yourself there). Paróon ka (go there). Paparoonin mo si Carlos (tell Carlos to go there). Pinaparóon mo siyá? (Did you tell him to go there?) Sáan ka paroróon? (Where are you going?) Some localities, notably Manila, repeat the particle pa with the present and future of the adverbs of place; but this is irregular and incorrect. It is unknown to the early writers. Aling bayan any paroroonan mo? (What town are you going to? Lit. "Which town will be your going place?") Anó ang ikimaparoróon mo sa Maynilà? (Why are you going to Manila? Lit. "What the cause of going there your to Manila?") Ay at magkadumóon ka? (For what particular reason are you going there?) Ang ikimaparoróon ko'y dalauin ang áking kapatid na babaye (I am going there to visit my sister).

Magka prefixed to doon alone means "to have."

Ex.: Kung magkaróon saná akó nang maraming pílak, ay hindi akó magkakaganitó (If I had plenty of money, I would not be in this fix). Ang pinagkakaroonan niyá ang Bulacán (He has considerable property in Bulacán). Ang ipinagkakaróon niyá ang pamana sa kaniyá nang iná niyá. (He [she] has plenty on account of the inheritance to him [her] from his [her]

The foregoing illustrates the indefinite idea of the third singular personal pronoun, which may mean either "he" or "she." In English this is contined to the plural, "they" indicating either sex, as Tagalog silá, while Spanish distinguishes by ellos, "ellas." Man gives the idea with dóon, "to be there," "to have there," magka indicating really "to have plenty." Ex.: Bigyán mo silá nang mandóon (take one of those over there), isang mandóon (sangdóon) (one out of many things over there); sandóong lamilang sukà (a small bottle of vinegar); isang madoróon (a person who has plenty). The word may prefixed to doon forms the well-known and muchused indefinite mayróon, to have. Ex.: Mayróon kang bagá nang tinátised indefinite mayroon, to have. Ex.: Mayroon king oligin hand time-pay? (Have you any bread?) Mayroon kang paroroonan? (Do you have to go there?) Oo nga, mayroon akong paroroonan (Yes, indeed, I have to to go there?). Mayroon ka nang ilang taon? (How old are you? Lit. Have you of how many years?) Mayroon akong dalawang pouo (I am twenty; lit. Have I twenty.) With some suffixed particles doon is modified as follows: Doon din (in the same place there); doon so iba; doon dao (in another place).

other place); sa dóon (over there); sa dóon man (anywhere over there).

Many phrasal adverbs are made by the particle sa which means among other things at and in when placed before a root. Among the most important phrasal adverbs of place with sa are:

In front; facing.

In the presence of; before; opposite; to the front. Behind; back of.

Joined to. At the edge or side of. On the other side of; beyond.

Outside. Inside; within.

Below; down.

Sa tapat; tapat sa. Ex.: Itong báhay ay tapat sa silangan (this house faces the east). Tapat has also the idea of setting out in rows, regular order, etc., such as trees, plants,

Sa hárap. Sa hárap nang capitán

(before the captain).

Sa likod. Ex.: Ang mangá báhay sa liked nang cuartel (the houses back of the barracks). Ang likod (the back).

Sa pîling.

Sa tabi; synonym sa siping.

Sa kabila. With mag the idea of "both" is brought in. Ex.: Samagkabild (on both sides); and by the reduplication of the first two syllables of the root the idea of "all" is expressed. Ex.: Sa magkabikabilá (on all sides). Naparoón silá sa kabilá nang ilog (they went over there beyond the river). Sa magkabila nang katauan (on both sides of the body). Kabila has also the idea of "partly" and is used idiomatically when speaking of rice. Ex.: Itong kanin ay kabilán (this rice is but half cooked). In speaking of anything else, with the same idea in mind, the usage is quite different. Ex.: Itong sisiu ang kabilá'y luto't ang kabilá'y hindi (this chicken is partly cook and partly not).

Sa labás.

Sa lóob. This phrase is much used to express the idea of the heart, speaking in a moral sense. Ex.: Sa tanang 160b (whole-heartedly; with all the heart).

Sa itáas (from táas and expulsive particle i).

Sa ibabá (from babá, idea of low, humble, with expulsive particle i). This word should not be confused with the following.

Upon; on; above.

Under; beneath; at the bottom of.

Halfway (between two points).

In the middle.

Around; about; close to.

As far as; up to.

To the right, To the left. Forward. Back ward.

At home; in, to, or from the house. In, to, or from town.

In, to, or from the country. In, to, or from the mountains. Sa ibabao (from babao and i). Ex.: Sa ibabao nang bundok (upon the mountain [mountains]). Babáo, with accent upon the last syllable, means past, as babáo sa hating gab-i (past or after midnight). It also means "near" in some places. Ex.: Babáo bagá ang bayan sa atin! (Are we perchance near the town?) Malápit is now the ordinary word used for "near."

Sa ilálim (from lálim, root of idea of depth and expulsive particle i).

Sa gituâ. Ex.: Nasagituâ tayo sa paglakad (we are halfway in the march [trip or journey]).

Sa pagitan (from gitná). Sa pagitan nang lansangan (in the middle of the street). Also means "term." Ex.: Walong buan ang pagitan (a term [period] of eight months). Sa may. Ex.: Sa may cuartel (close to the barracks).

Hangán. Ex.: Sáan ang tungo mo? (Where is your trip to?) Hangán Maynilà. Hangán ditó (up to here). Also has the meaning of "until." Ex.: Hangán búkas \mathbf{Ex} .: Hangán búkas (until to-morrow).

Sa kanan. Sa kaliwâ. Pahárap. Patalikod. Sa báhay. Sa bayan. Sa búkid. Sa bundok.

These adverbial phrases can be indefinitely increased by the use of sawith the proper root.

Toward.

Dako. Ex.: Dako sáan ang tuñgo ni Juan? (Toward where is John's trip?) Dakong Maynilà (toward Manila). Dako sáan ang tungo mo? Toward where is your trip?) Dakong bayan ko'y ang tungo ko (my trip is toward my town). sáan ka? (Where are you from)? Bosoboso, pô (Bosoboso, sir). Dakong kanan (toward the right). Dakong kaliwa (toward the left).

ápit. Ex.: Dápit Maynilà (approaching Manila). Dápit ibabá $D\acute{a}vit.$ (approaching the lower country). Dapit sa iyó (approaching you). Dápit has also an idea of "beyond," "on the other side of."

II. Adverbs of time and succession, which generally answer the question kailán? (when?), are quite numerous in Tagalog, showing that the conception of time was well developed for a primitive people, only the hour and its subdivisions being unknown to the language, except as derived from Spanish. However, the day was quite minutely subdivided according to the position or absence of the sun, and while now generally out of use these terms are also given.

Approaching.

When?

When (used relatively).

Then.

constantly (sometimes Always; "whenever").

Kailán? Ex.: Kailán silá naparitó? (When did they come here?) Kailán man (always). With negative, translated by never. Ex.: Kailán man-hindí---(always not or never). Kailán man siyá'y hindî ungmiinum nang capé (he [she] never drinks coffee). Kailán pa man (no more), also kaikailan ma'y hindî. Dî mamakailân (many times). Kun. Commonly used only with present and future tenses, but may be used with past indefinite if action is represented as customary. Ex.: Kun daráting ang capitán, alamin mo akó (when the captain comes, let me know [future]). Kun akô'y naroróon sa Maynilà akongnapasasaluneta malimit(when I was in Manila I often went to the Luneta [past time with customary action]). Kun tuwi (whenever). Kung minsan (sometimes). Kun is also used as a preposition, "if". See under "if".

(2) Nang. Used with both definite and indefinite past tenses. Ex.: Nang silá' y dinálaoniyá kagabí, walá ritó silá, (when he came to visit them last night, they were not here). Nang dumating siyá nakakain na akó (when he came I was through eating).

(3) Nóon, niyón, niyáon. These words mean really "in those days," "at that time," etc. Ex.: Nóon isang árao ay nangyari ang pagbabaká sa Imus (on that day the fight at Imus took place). Noon, narito pa sa Mannilà ang manga Castila (while the Span-iards were yet here in Manila). Perhaps "then" in some cases would be the best translation.

Ex.: Kun kumain ka, dóon maaalaman mo, kun anó ang kanin (when you eat then you will know what you are to have). With pafollowing doon has an idiomatic Ex.: Bata pa'y gumagawa nang ganitó, dóon pa kun lumakí? (A boy yet, and doing so, what will he be then when grown up?)
Tuwi. Ex.: Tuwing tuwi (tuwi nang tuwi) mayróon kang gawá (you have something to do always). Tuwing sumúlat ka---(whenever write—). As adjective tuwi means "every." Ex.: tuwing árao (every day). In some cases it means "as long as." Ex.: Tuwing di mapouì ang pagkatauo (as long as manhood is not extinct).

Among other expressions may be mentioned walang humpay, without end; walang likat, without fail; walang tahan, without stop, incessantly; walang togot, without rest.

There are two expressions used for "eternally," formed with the prefix magpa to a root which is followed by man sáan. Ex.: Magpatúloy man sáan; and magparáting (dáting) man sáan. Another phrase is magpakailán man, or magpasakailan man, both of which signify always.

Kailán man---hindí.

Kung minsan. Maminsanminsan, (from time to time; now and then). Misandouá (rarely). Ex.: Misandoua lámang ang pagparitó mo (your coming here is rare).

Bihrra. Ex.: Bihirang tungmatangis itong batang itó (this child seldom cries).

Malimit, Ex.: Mulimit akong sungmusulat (I write often).

Tambay. Ex.: Tambay kang nalis (ungmalis) (since you left).

Mulá. Ex.: Mulá kahapon (since yesterday). The particle pagka sometimes denotes "since," as in the phrase pagkabatà ko (since my childhood). "From" would be an equally correct translation.

Kamaka (from ka and maka). Kamakailang árao (some days ago). Before a cardinal followed by árao, "day," kamaka indicates the number of days which have elapsed. Ex.: Kamakalawá (day before yesterday), lit., "two days ago;" kamakalimang árao (five days ago). Ka prefixed with pa following a root also indicates "since." Ex.: Kahapon pa (since yesterday). Ka alone indicates past time, with some roots. Ex.: Kahapon (yesterday), from hapon (afternoon). Kagabí (last night), from ka and gabí (night).

Sa, used adverbially, denotes immediate action, usually beginning a subordinate clause, which refers to a principal clause. Ex.: Sa pagkamálay niyá nang lindol siyá'y tungmakbó sa labás (as soon as he

Ex.: Pagsabi ko sa kanilá (as soon as I told them). Pagka may also have the same meaning, as pagkapagaáral ko, magpapasial ko (as soon as I have studied, I will go for a walk).

Ngayón. Ngayón din (right now).
This is also expressed by ngayón ngayón. Nagpangayón or nagpakangayón (up to now). Magpangayón (for the future). Ngayong árao

(this day).

Na. This particle is in constant use, and is always placed last. Ex.: Naparbon na siyá (he has gone already). There are many other uses of na in Tagalog, which will be set forth as they occur in the examples examples.

Pa. This particle, as an adverb, is, like na, always placed after the word modified. Ex.: Isá pa (one yet); may rian pa? (Is there anything there yet)? It is also used speaking ironically. Ex.: Akó pa ang paroróon? (Will I have to go there yet?). Indí pa (not yet).

Bago. Ex.: Bago kang bumasa, walisan mo ang silid (before you read, sweep the room).—L. Bago pa (a while ago). Bago, as an adverb of time, always precedes the verb it modifies.

Kangina, variation kanina. Kanginang tanghali (before noon); kanginang umaga (this morning a while ago). Balanain mo yaong sinabi kangina (go back to what you were talking about before). [Return to the thread of your story.] Kangikangina pa (a little while ago, a short time ago). Ex.: Kangikangina naritó silá (they were here a short time ago).

Sa una. Sa una pang sa una (very anciently). Ex.: Sa unang árao (in the days of old). Muna, which always follows its verb, means "first" either in time or place. Ex.: Mások ka muna (you enter first [polite expression]). Bago kumain ka, manhinao ka muna (before you eat, wash first [i. e., your hands]).—L. Gawin mo muna (do it first [def.]). Hintay ka muna

Sa datí.

Sakà. Ex.: Ginavá ang Pañjinóon Dios ang lañjit, sakà ang lupa (the Lord God made the Heavens, afterwards the earth). Bib. Natauá siyá (she laughed); at sakà? (andaíterwards?) L. Sakarî't sakà (long afterwards). Manakanakà (after a long delay). Nagsasakà-sakà (one who is dilatory in his work or duties).

Manaya. Ex.: Susalat ako mamaya (I shall write by and by).—L. Mamayang hapon (later in the afternoon). Mamayamaya (one time or another, little by little). Ex.: Itô'y minamayamaya ko (I did this little by little). Magmaya (to do anything little by little). Magpa imparts the idea of waiting to this root and its combinations. Ex.: Nagpapamayamaya ako (I am going to wait a little while).

Tambing. This word is out of use in Manila. Ex.: Kumain ka tambing [indef.]; tambingin mo kumain [def.] (eat at once). Tambingin mong kumin (take it at once); itambing mong ibigay (give it at once).

Agad. Ex.: Agarin mong gawin (do it at once). Commonly used in Manila.

Alipala. Ex.: Alipala nagálit siyá (he became angry at once). Also means "one by one" in some places. Ex.: Alipala't áking kunin (I will take them one by one).

Kagiat. Ex.: Kagiat nagtagibulag siyá sa aking matá (like a flash he disappeared from my view; he was out of sight instantly). Tagibulag, idea of disappearing or becoming invisible.

Kaginsaginsa (from ginsa, repetition of root and prefix ka). Variation kahinsahinsa. Kaalamalam sometimes means suddenly (from alam reduplicated, and prefix ka). Karakaraka.

Kapag —, Ex.: Kapagkain ko (after I commenced to eat). Kapagpagáral ko (after I began to study).—L. Kapagdaka (from the Hangán. Ex.: Hangán búkas (until to-morrow). Hangán nabubúhay siyá (while he [she] is living). Bagkús also means "until".

Sa mantala.

Maaga (from aga, morning). Ex.: Magtipon kang maaga, kung dumáting ang árao, houag kang ngumapanyapa (get ready early, so when day breaks you will not be grop-ing around looking for anything). Ngapa, root of "to look around in haste for something".—T. P., 3. Huli. Ex.: Nahuli siya (he was late). Ang huling arao (the last day).

Kahapon.Kahapon sa hapon (yesterday afternoon).

Kagabi.Ngayón árao.

The following adverbs of time are also used in Tagalog:

Hourly.

Daily.

Weekly.

Monthly.

Yearly.

Continually.

Oras-oras (from Sp., hora, "hour").

Arao-árao.

Lingo-lingo (from lingo, "week," which also means "Sunday," and is derived from Sp., Domingo, "Sunday").

Buan-buan (from buan, "month and

Taón-taón (from taón, "year").

Parati. Verbalized, this word has the idea of "perseverance," and in the phrase magparating man súan means "eternally." A synonym for parati, in the sense of "continually," is palági.

Balang árao.

Some day.

The particle maka, in addition to its meanings as a verbal particle, signifying power, ability, cause, etc., indicates completed verbal action with verbs of doing, saying, etc., translated by the word "after" with the verb. Ex.: Makayari nitô'y parôon ka (after you do this, go there).

III. Adverbs of manner and quality, which generally answer the question maanô? "how?" are numerous in Tagalog, many adverbs of manner being the corresponding adjectives used adverbially, especially those compounded with ma. Not all ma adjectives can, however, be so used, and neither can adjectives which are roots by themselves be used as adverbs. Thus adjectives like marning (wise), mabait (prudent, etc.), ulul (crazy) are not used as adverbs in Tagalog.

How?

So; thus; in this way.

Ex.: Maanó kayó? (How Maanó? are you?) Magaling Maanó ang amá ninyó? (well). (How is your father?) Ganitó (from ditá).

So; thus; in that way.

So; thus; in that way. Like (requires genitive); thus.

Like; as; so. How large; how much in extent? Ganiyán (from diyán). Gumaniyán (to act in that manner).

Ganóon (from dóon).

Gayón (from yaón). Gumayón (to act in that way). Ex.: Gayón ni Pedro si Juan (Juan is like Pedro). Gaya.

Gaalin? Ex.: Gaalin kalayo? (How far? [about]). Isang horas, pô

(one hour, sir.)

Ga has been quite fully explained under the comparative of adjectives, to which the reader is referred. Among some examples may be quoted ga bató ang lóob mo (your heart is like stone), and gaitohin mo (make it like this). "Both alike" is expressed by kapouá, as may be seen by the examples: sauain mo kapouá silang dalawá (prohibit them both alike); ang kapouá mo táuo (like you, a person [fig., your "neighbor"]); akó wari kapouá mo, walang bait? (Am I perhaps, like you, without judgment?)

Ex.: Kinusá bagá niyáa? (Did he [she] do it willingly?) Kinusa niya (He [she] did it willingly). With verbs kuså follows the same construction as to the particles as do the verbs. Ex.: Kusain mong tauagin siya (call him purposely, i. e., do not for get to call him). Ikusa mong itapon itó (throw this out purposely, i. e., you should have thrown this out yourself). Pagkusaan mong bigyán si Juan (give it to John voluntarily). Kusá is intensified by reduplication. Ex.: Wald kang kusakusang gumawá nang anoman (you do not do anything with the least willingness).

Sa pilitan (from pîlit). Ex.: Pilit na akô'y parôon (I am going perforce). Bukod. Ex.: Bukod siyang natáuag (he was [has been] summoned especially). Bukod ka sa lahat (you are the only one among all). Marami man ang ginóo'y bukod mayaman si Capitan Luis (there are many "principales," but the only rich one is Captain Luis). Ex.: Libán sa iyó, walang ibang makaparoróon (except you, there is no other person who can go there). Libán sa iyó ang muha, ay dilí ko ibibigay (except that you are to be the one taking it, I should not give it).

abí. Ex.: Tabí pô, akô'y daráan (excuse me [for going before you, for leaving first, etc.].) This is the shout "cocheros" use, Tabí! It literally means thus: "Aside." Tabi. Tabí is also used for a polite correction or contradiction: Singtabi sa iyó, hindî gayón (you will pardon me, but it is not just like that). Tabihan, refuse heap, rubbish heap, etc.

Bahagya, var. bahagia. Ex.: Bahagia na makasiya (it is hardly sufficient).—L. A synonym is Bihirà. Syn. ara; dat-ha. Datha kong inabutan (I scarcely reached it). Bihirà also means "seldom." Ex., as "hardly:" Binibihirà ko na ang nagsiparitó (I think scarcely anyone has come here yet). Bihirang di naparóon (scarcely anyone was not there); e., nearly everyone was there). Mahina pa siyá'y bihirang makalákad (she [he] is weak yet, and can hardly walk [is hardly able to walk]). Bihird is verbalized with mag and magka. Ex.: Pagbihirain mo ang kanin (change the food). Nagkakabihirà silá nang pagdaramit (they differ in their manner of dressing).

Hálos. Ex.: Hálos namatay siy á (he [she] almost died).

Ayon.

Alinsúnod (from súnod, to follow, obey).

aliktad. Ex.: Baliktad ka niyan (indef.); baliktarin mo iyan (turn Baliktad. that inside out).

Touarik (from touad). Syn. touandik. Touarik na bantá (lightheaded; injudicious).

Marahan (from dahan). Marahandahan or dahan dahan, very slow-Dumahan, to go away slowly. Magdahan, to go slowly. Magpakarahan, to go very slowly. Ex.:

Well.

Carefully; in an orderly manner.

Badly.

Hard; roughly; vigorously.

Briefly; quickly.

Strongly.

Magpakarahan kang lumákad (go very slowly [indef.]). Pakarahanin mo ang paghila (throw it deliberately [def.]). Mapakarahan, to go very smoothly; slowly, etc. Ex.: Napakarahan na (it has slowed up already; it has quieted down already, etc.). There is also a definite with an. Ex.: Dahanan mo iyang gawa mo (do that work quietly, etc.). Met. adject. Ex.: Marahan ang lóobniyá (be has a magnanimous heart). Inot inot, very slowly; "little by little," is not much in use. Louay louay, little by little, is about equal to whoa, etc., and is used generally calling to animals. Mabuti. Mabuting mabuti, very well.

Syn. Maigi.
Mahúsay. Mahúsay na mahúsay, very carefully; in a very orderly manner. Ex.: Itô'y gawîn ninyong mahúsay (do this carefully).
Balotin mong mahúsay (wrap it up carefully). Humúsay, to put in order; to arrange; to disentangle.
Magpakahúsay, to arrange well; to settle things with care. Adj.:
"well kept," etc. Ex.: Húsay na buhok (well kept hair). Ang hinúsay (what disentangled or set in order). Husay na úsap (a careful conversation).

Masamán masamá, very badly. Ex.: Natúlogakong masamá kagabí (I slept badly last night). Malakás. Ex.: Houag mo akong lakkasan nang pangungúsap (do not talk to me so much in such a rough manner). Kalalakás kang lumákad (walk with vigor). Itinolak niyá nang malakás ang bangká (he pushed the banca [canoe] vigorously).

Madali, var. marali. Combined with both um and mag, an anomalous verb is formed, magdumali, to make haste, and in turn this is used with a noun to indicate time. Ex.: Magdumaling árao (a short while, or time). Examples as an adverb of madali are: Gawin mong madali (do it quickly); sabihin mong madali (tell it quickly).

Matibay. Ex.: Talian mong matibay (tie it strongly). Walang uunang tibay pagkasira'y halinhan (there is no repairing stronger than to replace what is destroyed).—T. P., Finely.

Ex.: Ang mangá gamot ay siyang ikinagagaling nang mangá may sakit (medicines are what cause the sick to recover). Magpagaling, to prosper. Magpakagaling, to improve; reform, or correct one's self. Ex.: Magpakagaling kayó nang mañgá ásál ninyó (improve yourselves in manners). Kagalingan, goodness. Ang pinagagaling, thing bettered (present tense).

Malimit. Ex.: Malimit akong naliligò (I bathe often). Also name of a close-woven basket made around Bosoboso, Rizal Province.

Not expressed by a single word, but by phrases, the adjective maránong, wise, being expressed with the subject in the nominative, and the verb in the infinitive. Ex.: Maránong siyang umáral (he teaches wisely), not ungmaáral siyang maránong, which would be a proper construction if maránong were an adverb.

Matulin. Tumulin, to do anything swiftly. Magtulin, to go swiftly. Ang ipagtulin, the cause of going swiftly. Ex.: Papagtulinin mo ang bangká (make the banca [canoe] go swiftly). Matuling tumakbó to run swiftly). Katulinan [abst.)] swiftness).

Sa bait.

Sa ugali, also with abstract, sa kaugalian.

Sa háyag.

Sa lihim. Lihim na gawa, a secret deed. Ang gawang lihim ay nahahayag din (secret deeds are the very ones found out).—T. P., 515.

Ang lihim ay siyang hayag (the hidden is what is discovered).—T. P., 414.

Haní? var. "haniá?"

Differently.

Jointly.

Inasmuch.

Forthwith; instantly.

Why not?

Why?

It would be better.

If it were not.

Certainly.

Truly.

Certainly; indeed.

Truly; really.

1bá. This word also means "other," "different," etc. In some phrases it has the idea of "better." Iba ang pogong huli na, sa suñgayan dadakpin pa (better a quail already caught than a horned animal yet to be caught).—T. P., 443; i. e., "a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush."--Cervantes. earliest form in English says, "better one byrde in hand than ten in the wood," Heywood, abt. 1565.-T. P., 442, is ibá ang pogong hulì na, sa huhulihin pa (better the quail already caught than the one still to be caught). This is found in Greek: "He is a fool to let slip a bird in the hand for a bird in the bush."

Sampun. When followed by nang, nitô, naman, etc., the final n is dropped. Syn., pati.

Gagaunti (from unti, idea of a little).
Ex.: Munting tubig (a little water).
Kaunti, a little, as in speaking a language, etc.

Sa sandali. Ex.: Houag kang mabalam dóon, sumandali man lamang (do not delay there more than an instant). Sa isang kisap matá (in the twinkling of an eye).

the twinkling of an eye). Súan pa dí? var. Sa dí? Súan pa dí gayón? (Why not that way?) At anó? Ay anó? (Who doubts it?)

At ano? Ay ano? (Who doubts it?)
At or ay joined with certain particles means "why?" Ex.: At di?
(Why not?)

Mahanga. Si mahanga (better). Kahangahanga (admirable).

Kun dangan. Pakundangan (for the sake of).

Tantó. Verbalized tantó means to undertstand. Ex.: Natatantó mo! (Do you understand it?) Dili ko pa natatantó (I don't understand it yet).

Totóo mandin. Also totóo din; totóo nga; totoong totóo (very truly). Totóo manding totóo (very truly, indeed).

nga, var. nganit. Ex.: Siyá nga ang nagnakao (he is certainly the thief).

Din. (Changes to rin after some words.)

IV. Nearly all the adverbs of measure and degree have been fully explained under the comparative and superlative of the adjective. It may be noted here that the adverb is made superlative by the reduplication of the adverb, with the proper tie, in the same manner as the adjective. Many examples have been given on the foregoing pages. The only adverbs noted here will be lâmang, "only;" siyâ na; and sukat na, "enough."

V. Adverbs of modality, such as "surely," not, "perhaps," etc., have been treated under other adverbs or will be included with the adverbial pronouns and expressions of affirmation, negation, and doubt.

Affirmative adverbs are fairly numerous in Tagalog. The principal are:

Yes.

Indeed; without doubt.

Also; likewise; as well. Should.

Would; should; could (idea of compulsion).

The principal negative adverbs are as follows:

No. Not.

I don't want to.

Not.

Not.

o. Opô (yes, sir [or madam]). Oo nga and oo nganit (yes, indeed). Paóo (to say yes). Ang ipaóo (what said). Ang pinaoohan (person to whom yes has been said).

Pala. Siyá pala (it is he, indeed). This word is used in asserting when a thing is certain. Indi pala si Pedro ang nagnakao? (Is Pedro the thief without doubt?) Siyá pala (he is, indeed).
Kapala pa (it is clear). Ex.:
Kapala pa'y paroróon akó (it is clear that I am going there). Kapala pa'y di paroróon akó (it is clear [of course] that I am not going there).

Namán. Man (even). Disin. Ex.: Kun siyá'y susúlat disin, ay paroróon sana akó (if he should write, I would go there). Sana. Ex.: Ibig ko sana'y sumúlat, nguni't wald akong kapanahonan (I would like to write, but I have no time). Akó ang paróon sana, bago ikac'y naparitó (I had to go there, before you came here).

 $Hind\hat{i}$ Indi. Indí pa (not yet). Indí man; indi rin (neither; not either). Indi na (not now). Indi lámang (not only, solely). Indi iyán (not that). Aayáo akó. A' [pronounced abruptly] (I don't like it). Kaayauan [abst.] (dislike). Ang inaayauan

(what disliked or refused).

Dî. Ex.: Dî isa man; dî man nauá (in no way). Di man; di pa (not yet). Di anhin? (What matter?) Di anhin dao na (for it is said that ---). Di umanó (it is said). Di anó par (How can it be?) Di nga salamat (may it be thus). Itó'y di maigi (this is not good). Di sino (to who else). Ex.: Di sino ang daingan mo, kundi ang capitan? (To who else should your complaint be made except the captain?)

Dill, varia. diri. Mapadiri, to say no. Ang pinadiririan, person to whom no is said (present tense). Magpadiri, to say "no" repeatedly. Ang pinagdirian, the person to No (forbidding).

whom "no" has been said many times (past tense). Padili ka, say no. Dili rin, no indeed. At the end of a sentence dili some-times means "or not." Ex.: Ba-báyad silá, duli! (Will they pay or

Ex.: Houag na (do not do it now [presupposes previous com-mand]). Houagi iyan (leave that! drop that!) Houagan mo iyán (let that alone). Houagan mong kunin (do not take it). Houagan mong itapon (do not throw it out). Houagan mong tingnan (do not look at it). Houag kang paróon (do not go there). Pahouagin mo iyang táuo niyán (tell that man not to do that). Pahouagan mo iyan diyán sa batà (forbid that to that child).

There are a few adverbs of doubt in Tagalog, as well as some phrases meaning the same. They are:

Perhaps. Possibly.

Why? For what reason?

Perhaps.

N Holl

I don't know.

If it could be thus.

Bagá.

Kayá nga (just because, just Kayá. for that reason). Used with affirmative sentences. Kayá nganit (as soon as). Kayá ũggani (since). Used with negative sentences. Makakayá, to be able (in a physical sense). Kayá is also any hunting or fishing utensil or instrument.

ari. Ex.: At akó wari paróon?
(Why do I have to go there?) With neg., At di wari akó paróon? (Why don't I have to go there?) It is never put last in a sentence.

Auán. Do not confuse with aáyao

(I don't want to).

Nauá. Sigá nauá (it may be this way). Used for "amen."

THE PREPOSITION.

The preposition, which serves to connect a noun to the sentence, in the same manner that the conjunction introduces or attaches sentences, is not as highly developed in Tagalog as in English, and for this reason the same preposition means what it would take several different ones to express in English. The principal Tagalog prepositions are:

In; to; from; against; at; by; on; Sa. per; between; with; of; among; sc for; across.

Ex.: (in) Sa bayan (in town); se báhay (in the house); (to) sa ali ko (to my aunt); sa amain ko (to my uncle); sa amá ko (to my father); sa ina ko (to my mother), these also mean "for" my aunt, etc.; sa báhay (to the house); sa iyan bahay (to that house); (from) sa báhay (from the house);

Without.

(against) laban sa kaauay (against the enemy); (at) sa báhay (at the house); (per) tatló sa sangdá (8 per cent); (between) sa magaling at masama (between good and bad); (with) sama sa kaniyáng ának (she is going with her child); (of, rare); (among, unusual); (for) patungo ko sa America (I am leaving for America); (across, rare). Sa is verbalized, the verbs thus formed being explained later.

Wald. Ex.: Wald akong salapi (I am without money). Magwald, to run away; to get rid of. Mawalá, to lose; to miss. Ex.: Nawalán akó nang lakás (I lost the strength). Makawala, to be able to run away. Ex.: Hindî makawalâ nyayôn (it is not possible to run away now).

Magpawala, to pardon, forgive.

Wala with in also means to remit or cancel. Ex.: Walin mo na ang útang ko sa iyó (cancel the debt Ì owe you). Magkawala, to go apart, to break away. Ex.: Papagkawalin mo kami (let us quit [as partners]) (excl.). Sinong walá! (Who is absent?) Walá ka kahapon (you were absent yesterday). May ikinawawalâ ka nang balang na? (Is there anything you lack?) Walang wald (absolutely nothing). Nawalá sa kamay ko (it escaped from my hand). Mawald man isang anuang kalakian, houag ang isang salitaan (better to lose a carabao bull than a moment of conversation.—T. P., 869. Ibá ang may ay-ay sa wald (it is better to have a scarecrow than to be without one), -T. P., 866. Nagmamayróo'y wald (they pretend to have something, but are destitute).-T. P., Mapipilit ang marámot, ang wald'y hindi (the miser may be forced [to give something]. but he who has nothing, no).—T. P., 868. Walang masamang kaniyá, walang maigi sa ibá (faultless what is his, good for nothing what is of another).—T. P., 870. Walá also means "the open sea, a gulf," etc. Magpawald (to put to sea). Ex.: Nagpawala ang Moro nang kani-yang samsamin (the Moro put to sea with his booty).

Kana. Ang bukid kana ali ko (the field of my aunt and her family). Paka ná sa Juan kaná (go to Juan and his family).

Of —— (and family or associates).

Of (genitive of si).

Of (gentitive of ang).

To (dative, etc. of si).

Against.

From.

From.

Ni. Ex.: Ang niogan ni Luis (Louis' cocoanut palm grove). Ang bahay ni Tomas (Thomas' house).

Nang. Ex.: Ang báhay nang amá ko

(my father's house).

Kay. Ex.: Itong tungkôd ay kay Juan (this cane is John's [is to John]).

Lában; lában sa. Ex.: Ikao'y lában sa ákin (you against me). Isang hokbolában namán sa ibá (one army against another). Maglában (to resist or struggle against).

Búhat, Ex.: Sáan ha nagbúhat? (Where did you come from?)

Mulá. Ex.: Mulá ngayón (from now on). Sa mulá (from the beginning). Ex.: Mulá sa lúnes hangán sa viernes (from Monday until Friday). Mulá sa Maymilá hangán sa Santa Mesa (from Manila as far as Santa Mesa). Magmulá (to start; to commence).

THE CONJUNCTION.

Genuine conjunctions are rather scarce in Tagalog, but many other words may be used as a conjunction would be in English to join sentences together. The principal ones are:

And.

Together with.
Not only—but.
Unless.
Even; as well as.
Or.
Or not.
Either—or.
Or.

At. This loses the vowel in many cases, being pronounced with the word preceding as a final t, and in such cases is written 't.

Kasamà (from ka and samà). Hindi lámang—kundi bagkús.

Houag lámang.

Sabáy. Kayá. Dili Also

Dili. Also man. Magin—magin.

O (Sp.)

The foregoing are called binding conjunctions as to the first four and alterative conjunctions as to the last four. The following are called adversative conjunctions. They are:

But.

Nguni; kundi; datapoua; subali; alintana. Nguni never begins a principal clause, but always a subordinate one, and generally in an answer. Ex.: I big ko sanang kumain, nguni't hindi ako mangyayari (I would like to eat, but I am not able to).—L. 't, from at, is almost invariably joined to nguni. Kundi is used for subordinate clauses, generally when the principal one has a negative meaning. Ex.: Hindi lalaki, kundi babaye ang ibon (the bird is not a male, but a female). Datapoua, which generally take 't, means "but" still stronger than

But rather.

Neither—nor.

Although; though.

Although (more formal than above).

Ever so much, although (giving a reason or making an excuse).

Since; whereas.

No matter if: even if.

What; because ——. But; yet.

Some conjunctions may be styled "eausative." The principal ones in Tagalog are:

Why?

Because (giving reason).

kundi, denoting a sharper contrast, as between rich but miserable, etc. Subali means "but for," etc., as conditional. Alintana, which takes 't in beginning a clause, means "but for all that," etc. Verbalized the two foregoing words mean "to except." Bago is sometimes used in the sense of "but." Ex.: Tanghali na, bago'y walá pa siyá (noon already, but he is absent yet).

Kundî bagkûs. These words may be used alone in this sense, and may also be joined together.

Man — man. Man — mankindî rin. Ex.: Walâ kamî bigâs man, itlog man (we have nothing, neither rice nor eggs.

Bagamán. Ex.: Bagamán dukhá si Juan, sa purí nama'y mayáman siyá (though Juan is poor, he is rich in a good name).

Bistá't. Bistá't napopoot siyá sa akin, ay bibigyán din akó (although he is angry at me, it will be given to me).

Mataymán. Ex.: Mataymán akóynaa kaibig paritó, ay di ko makayanan, (although I wished to come, I was not able to [I had no strength]).

Kahí, var. kahimat, kahimyá, kahinyá man, kahí't. Ex.: Kahima't di máyag silá, paroróon din akó, (although they do not consent, I shall go there).

Palibhasa (from Sanskrit, paribháshá, sentence, reprimand, etc.). It is followed by 'y in sentences. As an adverb it is equal to kayá ñga; kayá pala, as well as to "since" and "whereas." As a noun it means "irony." Magpalibhasa (to speak ironically).

Sukdán. Ex.: Magpapakabusog muna siyá, sukdán siyá'y magkasakit (he will gorge himself first, even if he makes himself sick).

Mayapá, var. mayapá'i, little heard. Bago. Ex.: Silá'y ang may sala, bago akó ang pinarusahan (they are the ones at iault, but I am the one who has been punished).

Bakin? var. bákit. Bákit dí? (Why not?) Bákit also means "as," "how," etc., in sentences. As a noun bákit means an old monkey with developed teeth. Anó't? also means "why?"

Sa pagka't.

A fifth group of conjunctions is generally that called "conditional." The significations of the members of this group are self-explanatory.

If; rather. Unless.

As if it were. Were it not for. Provided. Lest.

Kun.Kun diri lámang; kun dî lámang; liban na.

Kun sana sa.

Kun dañgan; dañgan. Kun lámang; houag lámang.

Baka, var. maká.

The sixth and last group of conjunctions is that of the class called "conclusives" in some grammars and "illatives" in others. In Tagalog the principal ones of this class are:

That (relative).

That.

Consequently; that is to say. Therefore (consequently).

In order that.

Inasmuch; in so far as.

Nang. Ex.: Magpagamot ka, nang ikáo ay gumaling (allow yourself to be treated, so that you may be better).—L. Na. Ex.: Nagsabí siyá na akô'y natúlog (he said that I was asleep).

Sa makatouid (lit. "in other words") Ex.: Nakita ko silá kagab-i, sa má-katouid hindî silá sungmakay (I saw them last night, therefore they did not embark).

Upan. It is never put last in a clause.

Yamang, var. yayamang; yayang; hayamang; hamang. Ex.: Mangyayaring gawin niya yayaman siya y gobernador-general (he is able to do it, inasmuch as he is governorgeneral).

THE EXCLAMATION.

The exclamation, or interjection, can hardly be regarded as a part of speech, compared with verbs, nouns, adjectives, etc., but for want of a better classification they may be treated here. They are generally selfexplaining, and many seem to be roots used as imperatives of the verb. The most characteristic Tagalog interjections are:

Dear me! Alas! Ouch! Wow!

Oh how ----! (Always follows.) -! (Always follows.) Oh how —

Good! Fine! Poor thing! Would that it may be so! Ohthat ----!

Quick! Be silent (to one)! No talk! Silence! Lightning! (Oh, hell!) My mother!

What a pity! Move on! Go ahead! $Ab\acute{a}!$ Aroy! Aray!

Ayaá! (mostly used by women). Bapáa. May be used together, bapáa preceding. Bapáa is more in use by men.

Buti $\tilde{n}ga!$ Kaanáaná!

Kahimanuari! Nauá! Maanó!

Dal i!Houag kang magiñgay! Houag kayong magingay!

 \boldsymbol{L} intik!

Nak6!Nakú! (Contraction from iná ko.)

Sayang!Sulong!

Look out! Aside! Take care! Stand back! Look! Behold! Here it is!

Tabi! Ilag! Urong!Mana'a!

Tagalog cursing is rather peculiar. It has evidently been derived from native sources and not from contact with the Spaniards. Among the most usual expressions are:

May a crocodile eat you! May the earthquake swallow you up! Lamunin ka nang lindol! May a snake bite you! May the lightning strike him!

Kanin ka nang buaya! Tukain ka nang ahas! Tinamaán siyá nang lintik!

Section Seven.

THE VERB.

I. "The verb is distinguished from all other words by marked characteristics and a peculiar organization."—Earle. The eminent philologist speaks thus of the English tongue, but his remarks apply equally to Tagalog. He further defines a verb as "the instrument by which the mind expresses its judgments," a definition which was first enunciated by the Danish philologist Madvig, in his Latin grammar (Copenhagen, 1841, 8th ed., 1889). Madvig calls a verb udsagnsord, literally "out-saying-word." Other characteristics of the verb have been noted and have given names to the class, such as the German Zeitwort (time-word), and Ewald's Thatroot (deed-word). But in Tagalog the line between nouns and "The verb is distinguished from all other words by marked characteris-Thatwort (deed-word). But in Tagalog the line between nouns and verbs is much less than in English, where it is still less than in Latin, Greek, and other languages of southern Europe.

II. The simplest verbal form is the imperative, which consists of the root, followed by ka (thou) or $kay\delta$ (you; ye). An adverb of time is sometimes added to the phrase for emphasis. Ex.: $L\acute{a}kad$ ka na! (walk on, now!) Isip ka! (Think!) Aral ka! (Teach!) Dalá mo dóon (take it there). Dalá mo ditó (bring it here). As in English, many of the roots used as imperatives may be used as nouns also. Aral, as a noun, means "doctrine" or "teaching." Ex.: Ang áral ni Monroe' y ang áral nang América Saguén (the Monroe doctrine is now the doctrine of America) América ngayón (the Monroe doctrine is now the doctrine of America).

III. By prefixing ka to the imperative, and reduplicating the first syllable of the root at the same time (sign of the present tense) the idea of quickness, intensity, care, etc., is imparted to the command. Ex.: Kalalákad ka! (Go quickly! [to one]). Kalalákad kayó! (Go quickly! [ye]). Kalalákad kayó! (Go quickly! [ye]). Kalalákad kayó! (Go quickly! [ye]). As a general thing the agent takes the indefinite form, as will be seen by the general takes the indefinite form, as will be seen by the general takes the indefinite form. be seen by the examples, but the definite is used when necessary. Ka with the reduplicated first syllable of the root has a very different meaning with any other person than the second. With the first and third persons it has the idea of "time just past," when followed by pa, as will be seen by the following examples. Sometimes pa may be omitted. Din may also take the place of pa, as may also lámang. In English the time may be expressed by "has" or "had," according to the contex. Kararáting ko pa (I have [had] just arrived). Kararáting ni Gat Tomás (Don Tomás has just arrived). Ibig mong makakain sa ámin? (Do you wish to eat with us?) Salámat, ayáo akô't kákákain ko pa (thanks, I do not care to, I have just eaten). Kagagáling nang kanatid na habaye ko sa hayan (my sister has just come Kugagáling nang kapatid na babaye ko sa bayan (my sister has just come Kahihigà ko din (I had just lain down). Kapapanaog ko din at hapapanhik lámang nilá (I had just gone down and they had just gone up [i.e., the house ladder]). Kapapások lámang niyá sa báhay (he had just entered the house). Kapapások din ngayón ni Esteban sa basahan (Esteban Sabasahan (Esteban Sabas [Stephen] has just entered the reading place [i. e., the master's place]). Kasusúlai ko (I had just written it). Katatapus ko (I have just finished it). Katatagpî ko (I had just mended it). Kauutas na ko (I had already finished

Kaaalis lámang niyá (he has just gone away). Kaaalis pa nang áking amá (my father has just gone away). Kaaalis din ngayón nang capitán (the captain just now left). With roots like áral, which have several distinct meanings according to the verbal particle prefixed, ka does not require the first syllable to be repeated. Ex.: Kapangangáral din ngayón nang paré (the priest has just finished preaching). In this case the prefix is reduplicated, mangáral meaning "to preach." Kapagalis din ni Benigno nang damit (Benigno just took the clothes away). Magalis means "to take away."

IV. Ka has many other functions, which will be taken up later. It is a most important particle and should be carefully studied. It should be noted that the pronouns with the imperative are mostly in the nominative, while with the first and third persons they are in the genitive.

V. All such sentences are in the definite or so-called "passive," which is by far the most usual form in Tagalog, but which would look very strange many times if translated by the English passive.

VI. The foregoing form is also used to express opposites, the words being linked by ay. It may be expressed in English by "now, again," or "now, then." Ex.:

Now he sleeps, then he wakes. He comes in and goes out. He is coming and going. Sometimes he walks, then he rests a little.

Katutúlog ay kagigising niyá. Kapapások ay kalalabás niyá. Karartáing ay kaaalis niyá. Kalalákad ay kahihintóhintó niyá.

Now she laughs and then she cries. Katatana ay kaiiyak.

VII. When a prefix changes the meaning of a word, it is retained in the imperative. Ex.: Aral ka (teach); pagáral ka (study); pañgáral ka (preach).

VIII. With the exception of the forms already cited, the verb is always accompanied by particles, which sometimes modify the root itself for euphonic reasons. Nearly every word in the language can be made a verb of some kind or another by the use of these particles, which are the striking peculiarity of the Malayo-Polynesian languages, but have been retained in the primitive tongues of the Philippines much more than in the Malay, Javanese, or other cognate dialects. There are some twenty of these verbalizing particles, of which seventeen are used as prefixes to roots, and three are the definite auxiliary particles in, i, and an. Of these particles, which are tabled at the end of the handbook, the most important are in, i, an, um, mag, and ma, the last three being indefinite particles. Pag, corresponding as a definite to mag, is also important. The mastery of these particles is the mastery not only of Tagalog, but of every other Philippine dialect, as well as a valuable aid in learning Malay or any similar tongue of the family.

IX. The root with any one of the indefinite particles prefixed may be translated as the infinitive, provided the particle is merely attached to give the meaning of the root so modified, but whenever a tense is expressed the particle or the root is modified, and sometimes both. Besides the imperative and infinitive, Tagalog has really but one other mode, the indicative, as the subjunctive, including those modifications known in various European languages as the optative, conditional, dubitative, potential, etc., is expressed by certain words corresponding to the English "could, should, would, may," etc.

X. Strictly speaking, there are but three tenses in Tagalog, the past, present, and future; but it is possible to render the imperfect, pluperfect, and future perfect tenses by means of auxiliary particles. The first three, however, are those in common use. The participle is also in use, corresponding literally to the English participle in some cases, and in others must be rendered by a phrase. The same remark may be made of the gerund in English, which is variously rendered in Tagalog. One tense is sometimes used for another, when the context clearly indicates the time of the event, as happens in English.

XI. As in English, Tagalog verbs may be transitive, requiring an object to complete the meaning; or intransitive, in which the meaning is complete within the verb. These do not always correspond in the two languages, and a Tagalog root may sometimes be intransitive with one prefix and transitive with another, which may reverse or modify the meaning.

XII. Within the tense the verb does not change for the person or number, and requires a noun or a pronoun to indicate the same.

XIII. The eminent Indo-Tibetan philologist Bryan H. Hodgson (1800–1894), in his Monographs upon the Tribes of Northern Tibet, reprinted in Part II, pages 73-76, of "The Languages, Literature, and Religion of Nepal and Tibet' (London, 1874), gives it as his opinion that the Gyarung dialect of Eastern Tibet has a very similar structure to that of Tagalog, quoting Leyden and W. von Humboldt (the latter at secondhand) in support of his views. Rockhill, the Tibetan scholar, now United States minister to China, who has a wide acquaintance with Tibetan, says that Gyarung is merely a variation of ordinary Tibetan, and this being the case there can be no possible affinity between the two languages. As Hodgson's error has been given wide publicity by its incorporation as a footnote to the article by de Lacouperie upon Tibet in the Encyclopedia Britannica, it should be corrected as far as possible by any student of Tagalog.

XIV. As quoted and corrected by Hodgson, the remarks of Leyden, as taken from the Researches of the Bengal Asiatic Society, Vol. X, page 209, upon Tagalog are as follows: "Few languages present a greater appearance of originality than the Tagala. Though a multitude of its terms agree precisely with those of the languages just enumerated (western Polynesian), yet the simple terms are so metamorphosed by a variety of the most simple contrivances that it becomes impossible (difficult—B. H. H.) for a person who understands all the original words in a sentence to recognize them individually or to comprehend the meaning of the whole. fices which it employs are chiefly the prefixing or postfixing (or infixing-B. H. H.) to the simple vocables (roots) of certain particles (serviles), which are again (may be) combined with others, and the complete or partial repetition of terms in this reduplication may be again combined with other particles."

XV. Hodgson notes upon the foregoing as follows: "I may add, with reference to the disputed primitiveness of Ta-gala, owing to its use of the 'artifices' above cited, that throughout the Himalaya and Tibet it is precisely the rudest or most primitive tongues that are distinguished by uscless intricacies, such as the interminable pronouns, and all the perplexity caused by conjugation by means of them, with their duals and plurals, and inclusive and exclusive forms of the first person of both. * * * The clusive and exclusive forms of the first person of both." more advanced tribes, whether of the continent or of the islands, have, generally speaking, long since cast away all or most of these 'artifices.' " As has already been noted, the Tagalog pronouns do not modify the verbs, which have the same form within the tense for all persons and numbers. As compared to tongues like Fijian and other Melanesian dialects, Tagalog has made long strides toward becoming a vehicle of a much higher culture than it now enjoys.

XVI. W. von Humboldt says in his Kawi Sprache, Vol. II, page 347: "The construction of the Malayan verb (to speak of the entire linguistic stock) can be fully recognized from the Tagalog verb alone. The Malagasy and true Malay contain but fragments thereof, while the Polynesian languages have a more primitive scheme of the verb-fewer in forms.

therefore seems appropriate to present:

First, the Tagalog verb complete without any regard to the other languages;

Second, the Malagasy (verb), which has in itself very much of the same construction;

Third, to show what the Malay language in its discarding and grinding of grammatical forms has still retained; and Fourth, to make a research as to how the simple but uncultivated Polynesian verbal construction stands in relation to the partially cultivated Tagalog.

THE DEFINITE.

I. As has been stated before, the definite form of the verb, which is really a verbal noun with tense-indicating particles, is more common than the indefinite form, which is more of a true verb in construction. One of the great difficulties to be overcome by speakers of non-Malayan tongues is the improper use of the definite and indefinite. It is as easy to begin right as wrong, and if attention is paid to the conditions existing, an idiomatic mastery of Tagalog may readily be required.

II. The true definite particles, in (hin after the final vowel with acute accent, and nin in a few cases for euphony), i, and an (han after a final vowel with acute accent), are used either alone or in combination when emphasis is to be placed upon the object or there is a special idea implied. These three particles are further combined with pag, the definite verbalizing particle corresponding to the indefinite mag; i, in, and pag many times commencing a definite verb with the combinations ipag and ipinag. root begins after these combinations, subject to tense reduplications, as will be seen by the table at the end. The subject takes the genitive with the definite, the object taking the nominative case. Ex.: Root gava (idea of making or doing). Gumawa (to make or do). And ang gawa mo? (What is your work?; i. e., What are you doing or making?). This is an indefinite question, with the verbal idea almost absent, the verb "to be" being understood. With an adverb of time, such as kahapon (yesterday), ngayón (now), or búkas (to-morrow) the verb could be "was," "is," or "will be." But the more usual form is with the definite particle in and the proper tense. And ang ginava mo? (What did you do? [or make?]). For the past tense in is inserted with consonant roots between the initial consonant and the rest of the root. Anó ang ginagawā mo ditô? (What are you doing here?) As will be seen, the present tense is formed by the reduplication of the first syllable of the root, in which in is infixed. Anó ang gagawin mo? (What are you going to do? [or make?]; what will you do?; what will you make?) The future of this verb is formed by reduplicating the first syllable of the root and suffixing in. Anó ang gagawin nang amain mo niyang káhoy na iyán? (What is your uncle going to do with that lumber?) Amain, from amá, father, with in as a suffix, also means "stepfather," as well as "uncle." Káhoy also means "tree." Isang báhay ang gagawin niyá (He is going to put up a house). The imperative is formed by suffixing in to the root. Ex.: Itô'y gawin ninyong mahúsay (Do this carefully [in an orderly manner]).

III. In is the principal definite particle in Tagalog, corresponding to the same particle in Ilocano and to on in Bicol and Visaya, the two last mentioned also using in in combination with other particles.

WHICH DEFINITE.

IV. While it is not so very hard to lay down fairly clear rules as to when the definite and indefinite should be used (the former laying stress upon the object and the latter upon the subject or the action), it is extremely difficult in some cases to say which one of the several definite particles should be. As ageneral rule, in signifies motion toward the agent, or something by which the agent obtains control of something; i indicates motion away from agent, or an action by which the agent loses control of something, and an generally has either the idea of place or of person connected with its use. I joined with ka, resulting in ika, and further combined with in to produce ikina, denotes cause, etc., with roots when joined to them, either alone or with verbalizing particles. For this reason the proper definite to be used in sentences having a definite object without other modifying circumstance is determined by the nature of the action, subject to some exceptions, mainly for euphonic reasons. Such words, however, as require an, for example, in place of in are not numerous. I can not be replaced by in or an, and an only replaces in as a suffix, never as a prefix or infix. The following examples will show the different use of the same verb: Root, panhik. Panhik ka! (Go up! Come up!). Panhikin mo akó sa hagdan (come up [to me] by the ladder). Ipanhik mo sa báhay itong mangá ságing (Put these bananas up into the house). Panhikan mo akó nitong mangá ságing (Put these bananas up there for me). Pumanhik (to ascend). Magpanhik (to hoist, or put something upstairs [or up a ladder]). Ang panhikin (the person upstairs). Ang ipagpanhik (what hoisted or taken up).

Ang panhikan (the ladder [stairs or place] ascended).

With sentences containing but one direct object which is directly connected with the action, the prevalence of cause, instrument, or time requires i, and place an. Ex.: Ihánap ninyó akó isang cabayong mabuti (look out for a good horse for me). Ang bayan ang hahanapan mo nang cabayo mo (You will have to look around town for your horse). With in a proper use would be: Hanapin mo ang cabayong nawala (Look for the horse which has disappeared). Ang pinaghanapan ko ang corral nang cabayo, pô (Where I did look for the horse was at the corral, sir). Hindnap ko ang aking cabayo sa bayan ay nahanap ko (I looked for my horse in town and found him). Humánap, (1, to look for) (2, to claim). Manhánap (to scout, to reconnoiter). Ang panhanapin (what scouted for). Ang paghánap (the act of seeking). Ang paghanapan (the place of seeking). Ang panhanapan Ang hinanap (what sought for (place scouted or reconnoitered over). [past tense]). Ang hinahánap (what is being sought for). Ang hanapin (what is to be sought or looked for). Ang hanapan (person from whom something is claimed or sought). Ang ihánap (the means for something to be looked for). Ang ihinanap (the means with which something was The foregoing illustrate the ease with which verbal nouns can be formed from verbs and vice versa.

VI. When a sentence has more than one indirect object, and stress is to be laid upon one or the other object, the nature of the action determines the particle to be used. The following examples, taken from Lendoyro, show this excellently: Sulatin mo itong súlat sa lamesa nang kámay mo ("Write this letter" yourself at the table [i. e., with your own hand]). Isúlat mo nitong súlat ang iyong kámay sa itong lamesa (Write this letter "with your own hand" at this table). Sa lamesa ang sulatan mo nitong súlat nang iyong kámay (write this letter with your own hand, using the table as a writing desk). It will be seen from the foregoing that many of the definite verbs are verbal nouns with ang (the) left off. Bearing this in mind the use of the definite is made much easier.

VII. Circumstantial members connected with the action should be carefully distinguished when using the definite from adverbs or adverbial expressions. Some examples of the definite with adverbs or adverbial expressions are: Sadiyang ginawâ niyâ itô (He did this willfully). Dinalohong nilâ siyâ nang boong bagsik (They assaulted him [her] with great barbarity).

VIII. Ipag, ipinag, and ipina, the two first being combinations with pag and the last of i with pa, the definite verbal particle corresponding to magpa, confuse the student at first, but are simple when analyzed. Ipina, ipa, when followed by a root commencing with g, should not be confused with iping and ipinag, as the idea of pa is "to order to do" what is signified by the root. Combinations with other particles, like magka, are also found, forming ipagka (imp.), ipagkaka (fut.), ipinagka (past), and ipinagkaka (present). It will be noticed that the last syllable of the particle is redublicated with pagka for the future and present tenses. Ex.: Ipagabutan himpó ipang mañgá libro (Pass those books from hand to hand). Ang abutan (the person reached for or overtaken). Sino ang ipinaglulutò mo? (Who are you cooking it for?) Anó kayá ang ipinagutos mo sa kaniyá? (What were your orders to him?) Ipaghuhugás sana kitá nang itong damit ñguni't madá akong sabón (I would wash your clothes, but I have no soap). Kitá is really "we two," but here means "I." Ipaglagà mo nang sa itong oficial itó (Make some tea for this officer). Ang inilagà (what boiled or made [as tea, coffee, etc.]). Ang ipaglagà (the person for whom boiled, made, etc.). Ang lagaán (the teapot, coffeepot, etc.). In the foregoing examples pag is used because the sentence expresses the person for whom an act is performed. Pag is also used with in and an combined in like cases. Ex.: Îtong báhay na ilő'y ang pinagauayan nilá (This house is where they quarreled). Root, áuay.

IX. Pag must also be used with the definite whenever the sentence expresses plurality of acts or agents, or of feigning or reciprocal actions. The article being generally used, the idea of a verbal noun is most prominent. Ex.: Ang ipinagsakitsakitan niyá'y ang hindi dusahin (He was malingering so as to escape punishment). Root, sakit (illness). (Diminutives made by repeating a bisyllabic root or the first two of a polysyllabic one, add an to impart a scornful or contemptuous meaning). Ang cuartel ang pinagmurahan nilá (They insulted each other in the barracks). Pinagsirà nang mañgá tulisán iyang mañgá báhay (The ladrones have destroyed many of those houses). Maraming báhay ang pinagsirà nilá (Many houses have been destroyed by them).

X. With verbal roots which have different meanings with um and mag, the definite is accompanied by pag when the verb formed by mag is used. Ex.: Root, bili (idea of trade, barter, etc.) Bumili, (to buy). Magbili (to sell). Itong báhay ang ipinagbili ko, or Ipinagbili ko itong báhay (I have sold this house). Itong báhay ang binili ko, or Binili ko itong báhay (I have bought this house). Pag (pinag) prefixed to bili with han suffixed nave bought this house). Pag (pinag) prefixed to bit with han suffixed indicates the purchaser; the place or the price (past tense). For the present tense the first syllable of the root is reduplicated. Ex.: Ang pinagbilihan (past); ang pagbibilihan (pr.). Ang åking kapatid na lalaki ang pinagbilihan ko nitong båhay (I sold [have sold] this house to my brother [lit., "my brother was the purchaser from me of this house"]). Root, útang (debt). Umútang (to borrow). Magútang (to lend). Magpaútang (to lend willingly). Magkaútang (to owe). Ex.: Pinagútang ko iyang salapt sa kaniyá (I lent him that money).

XI. The use of the particles gives a great freedom in Tagalog for the

XI. The use of the particles gives a great freedom in Tagalog for the variation of sentences, which, however, have the same idea. Thus the English "Didn't I order (or tell) you to do this?" may be rendered by the following with equal accuracy: Hindî ko ipinagálos sa iyó na gawin mo itô? (def.). Hindi akó nagútos sa iyong gumawá nitó! (indef., stress on action). Hindi akó nagpagawá sa iyó nitó! (indef., stress on action). Hindi ko pinagawâ nitô (def.). Hindî ko ipinagawâ sa iyô itô? (def.). Dî ipinagawâ ko sa iyó itó? (def.).

XII. In and i are combined with each other also. Ex.: Anó ang ilinulatà mo? (What are you cooking?) For euphony the verb with this combination is much varied, there being also found the forms inaluluto, inituluto, and even nilulutà.

XIII. The verbs mayroon and may (to have) and wald (not to have) require the definite form of a verb following them in a sentence which expresses what is had or done, or vice versa. Both subject and object, however, take the nominative in such cases. Ex.: Magroon kang gagawint (Have you anything to do?) Walá pô, welá akong gagawín (No, sir; I have nothing). May silang ginawa? (Have they done anything?) Wald po. wald silang ginawd (No, sir; they have not done anything).

XIV. The definite is also used in sentences having a person for the object, or in which the object is modified by an attribute or attributive adjunct. Ex.: Tauagin mo si Pedro (Call Pedro). Dalhin mo rito iyang librong binasa kong kagab-i (Bring me that book I was reading last night). Houng mong wikain iyan (Don't say that). Lutoin mo itong manuk (Cook this chicken). Dalhin mo iyang tabig (Bring that water).

XV. Further discussion of the definite particles is reserved until the indefinite has been explained.

THE INDEFINITE.

I. The indefinite particles most in use are um, mag (nag), and ma (na), which will be explained in detail hereafter. These are called active particles by the Spanish grammarians, but indefinite seems to be more appropriate and correct.

II. Sentences in which the subject is emphasized have this in the nominative, the verb being expressed with the proper indefinite particle which is sometimes preceded by the article of common nouns. The imperative indefinite does not require the article in any case. Ex.: Siyâ'y babasa nitong libro (He is going to read this book). Ikao nga nagsabi niyân (You said that yourself). The object, it will be noted, takes the genitive. Siyâ ang magpapasial (He is going for a walk [lit., "He will be the walker]). Ikáo ang tumâuag kay Juan (Call Juan [be you the caller to Juan]). Si Juan ay ang nagnâkao (Juan was the thief).

III. The indefinite is generally used in an intransitive sentence, where an object is not required to complete the meaning. Ex.: Sungmusúlat akó (I am writing). Sungmúlat akó (I wrote). Susúlat ako (I shall write). Nagaáral kayó (You are learning). Magaáral kayó (You will learn). Kungmakain siyá (He is eating). Kungmain kamí (We were eating [but not you]). Kakain tayo (We will go eat [all of us]).

An object may be called indefinite when the idea of "a, an, some, any" is inherent, or an undetermined part of the whole is indicated, provided that there are no modifying circumstances of time, cause, purpose, instrument, or place in conjunction with the action. Ex.: (1) Maránong ka nang wikang castila? (Do you understand any of the Spanish language?) Maránong akó lámang nang wikang tagálog, hindt maránong akó mangusap sa wikang castila, pô (I understand the Tagalog language only; I do not know how to talk in Spanish). Magsalitá ka nga sa wikang tagálog (Then speak in Tagalog). (2) Maglabas ka nang manga silla (Bring out some chairs). Magdalá ka dito nang fosforos (Bring some matches here). Magdalá ka dito nang tabacos (Bring some cigars here). Magdalá ka dito nang tábig (Bring some water here). Maglutò ka nang isang manuk (Cook a chicken).

IV. The indefinite is also used with sentences having a definite object if a part and not all of the object is meant. In some cases the place-particle "an" is used for this purpose, as it does not indicate an object. In or i would be used if all the definite object were to be indicated. Ex.: Akô'y kungmain na nitong lamangkati (I have already eaten some of this meat). Uminum kayô nitong tubig na malinao (Drink some of this clear water). (1) Magbigay ka sa ūkin niyang tubig (indef.) (1, Give me some of that water). (2) Bigyán mo akô iyang tubig (def.) (2, Give me that water). Ibig ninyong magbili nitong bigás? (Do you wish to sell some of this rice?)

V. Actions expressed by intransitive verbs which do not require an object take the indefinite unless there are modifying circumstances of cause, purpose, means, instrument, or time in conjunction with the action. Ex.: Natisod akó (I stumbled). Anó't hindi ka lungmalákad nang matulin? (Why don't you walk quicker?) Tungmataná siyá (He is laughing).

VI. A sentence commencing with an interrogative pronoun takes the indefinite if the subject of the inquiry is an agent, and the definite if a determinate object is asked about. Ex.: Sino ang nagdalá nitong mangá kihoy? (Who brought [was the bringer] of this lumber [timber]?) Akó ang nagdalá, pô (I brought it, sir [was the bringer]). Anô't di ka nangungúsap? (Why don't you talk?) Nahihiyá ka bagá! (Are you ashamed to?) Sino ang nagsalitá nang sinabi mo sa ákin? (Who related to you what you have told me?) [indef.]. Anong ibig mo? (What do you want?) Anong cabayo ang hanili nilá! (Which horse did they buy?) Anong is a contraction for anó ang (def.).

VII. The indefinite is also used with complex sentences in which the subject is amplified by an adjectival clause. Ex.: Any táno gungmagana mang kabanala'y magkakamit nang kapalaran (The person who does right will obtain happiness [be happy]).

VIII. It must be noted that maka in the sense of cause, used with roots denoting conditions, wrongs (torts) and betterments, has a different construction from all other particles, even maka with other meanings. In the definite, which only exists with i, combined with in in the past and present tenses, the agent takes the nominative and the object the genitive, like indefinites of other particles. In the indefinite the agent remains in the nominative, but the object takes the accusative, which is always preceded by sa (not by nang). Some other verbs have this use of sa also. Roots conjugated by mag and man retain the definite forms pag and pan with maka.

IX. The Tagalog verb demands that the subject of a sentence shall be expressed, the tense being indicated by the verb or verbal noun. The subject may be omitted, however, when a number of verbs depend upon the same subject, except in the first clause, where the verb must have a subject. As will be seen by the examples, the syntax of Tagalog is very simple, but care must be taken to use the right particles and tenses. If not, some annoying errors are liable to be made in conversation.

V. For any common verb see the vocabulary (English-Tagalog). It must be borne in mind that Tagalog has many words expressing variations and modifications of the general verb as well as other languages. These will be noted in the proper place.

THE DEFINITE PARTICLE "IN."

I. The plain root, if capable of being verbalized, is sometimes used without a definite particle if an adverb of time or the context makes the tense clear. The definite particle may also be used with an adverb of time, but as a rule, if the tense is to be emphasized or the context is not clear, tense particles, according to the rules of the language, are used in the verbal forms. Anó ang sabí mo kahapon? (What did you say yesterday?) Anó ang sabí mo ñgayón? (What do you say now?) Anó ang sabí mo búkos? (What will you say to-morrow? [with adverbs of time]). Anó ang sinabí mo? (What did you say?) Ano ang sinasabí mo? (What are you saying?) Anó ang sasabíhin mo? (What will you say?) Ang sabíhin (the person or thing mentioned). Anó bagá ang sasabíhin ko kay Ignacio? (What shall I say to Ignacio?) Sabíhin mo sa kaniyá na tináuag ko siyá (You say to him that I have been calling him). Ang sabíhan (the conversation).

that I have been calling him). Ang sabihan (the conversation).

II. In (hin after acute final vowel, and nin in some cases) is the true definite particle. In is prefixed, infixed, or suffixed, as the case may be; hin and nin are suffixes only. In is prefixed to a vowel root and infixed between the initial letter and the first vowel of a consonant root for the past (perfect) and present tenses. It is suffixed for the imperative and future tenses. The first syllable of the root is reduplicated in the present and future tenses. The tenses called the pluperfect and future perfect may be expressed in Tagalog in two ways. The first pluperfect is formed by adding na to the past tense, and the second pluperfect by prefixing na to the root. The first future perfect is formed by adding na to the future tense, and the second future perfect by prefixing ma to the root. These tenses are little used in conversation. Na and ma correspond to the indefinite verbalizing particles naka and maka respectively.

III. The subject of a verb conjugated with a definite particle takes the genitive, except in the cases already noted. If the subject is a pronoun, it may either precede or follow the verb, the latter usage being much more common than the former. If the subject is a noun or phrase it always follows the verb.

IV. For the conjugation of a root with in, whether a vowel verb, or a consonant one see the type-scheme folder at the end of this handbook.

V. In prefixed to or infixed with roots of the following classes forms words denoting a showing of the properties of the root or a resemblance thereto, as the word "like" does as a suffix in English. (1) Roots denoting flowers, fruits, or other objects imitated in gems or precious metals by jewelers.

denote ornaments or jewels of the shape or pattern of the object named, when in is used as above explained. Ex.: Balingbing, an octagonal berry; binalingbing, a jewel with eight sides like the berry. Sampaga, Arabian jasmine; sinampaga, a jewel imitating the sampaga flower. (2) With roots of colored objects in denotes the color. Ex.: Dumero (Sp. romero), rosemary; dinumero, rosemary-colored. Gúlay, verdure, vegetables; ginúlay, greenish. (3) With some objects in denotes rice which resembles the object in the shape, taste, or smell. Ex.: Kandá, a lily-like flower; kinandá, rice, with an odor like the kandá. Karáyon, needle; kinaráyom, needle-shaped rice. Kamálig, warehouse; Lalauigan Kamaligan, Ambos Camarines (province); kinamálig, Camarines rice. Kastuli, musk (from Sanskrit kastúri, through Malay); kinastuli, rice with musky odor. Ang kató, the carabao tick; kinuto, rice of a variegated appearance, resembling the kato. Kastila (Sp.), white person: kinastila, a white class of rice. Alangilan, a tree with fragrant flowers (Cananga odorata), the ilang-ilang; inalangitan, rice with this odor. Bambang, an herb; binambang, a class of rice which resembles the bambang when growing. Ang dulong, a very small fish; dinulong, rice shaped like the dulong. Batad, a kind of pea-like vegetable; binatad, rice so shaped. Bulaklak, flower; binulaklak, rice which opens like a flower when heated, or like pop corn. Porak, the flower of the pangdan or sabutan; pinorak, rice resembling this flower. Sanki, the Chinese anise; sinangki, rice resembling anise. Sumbilang, a species of sea fish without scales; sinumbilang, rice of this shape. Tuma, body louse, grayback; tinuma, rice shaped like a tuma. Tumbaga, copper; tinumbaga, rice with a metallic luster. Tumbaga is copper alloyed with a small amount of gold; it is from Sanskrit támraka (copper), through Malay tambaga; tembaga Taláhib, common reed grass; tinaláhib, rice which resembles taláhib when growing. There are many other names for different classes of rice, but the foregoing are the principal terms derived with in following the rule cited. (4) With names denoting relationship in expresses the idea of persons occupying the place of such relative to some degree. As this condition is regarded as permanent, the first syllable of the root is reduplicated to express present tense. Other nouns also follow this rule, with some exceptions. Ex.: Alí, aunt; inaalí, uncle's wife. Amá, father; inaamá, godfather. Amain, uncle; stepfather; inaamain, aunt's husband. Anak, child (son or daughter); inaanak, stepson or stepdaughter, also godson or goddaughter. Asáua, spouse (husband or wife); inaasána, lover or mistress (concubine). Bayao, brother-in-law; binabayao, husband of sister-in-law. Bianán, father-in-law or mother-in-law; binibianán, wife or husband of father-in-law or mother-in-law (not parent of wife or husband). Manúgang, son-in-law or daughter-in-law; minamanugang, one regarded as such. Kapatid, brother or sister; kinakapatid, half brother or half sister, or foster brother or foster sister. Hipag, sister-in-law; hinihipag, wife of brother-in-law. Bilás is the equivalent for binabayao or hinihipag. Nund, grandparent; ninununo, one regarded as a grandparent; kanununuan, ancestors. grandchild; maapó, descendant. Apó sa túhod, great-grandchild; apó sa talampakan, great-great-grandchild. Pamangkin, nephew or niece; pinapamangkín, one regarded as such. Pinsán, cousin; pinipinsán, one regarded as a cousin. Pinsáng boò, first cousin; pinsang makalawá, second cousin, (5) With verbal roots denoting the preparing of food, etc., in denotes the food so prepared, provided the root is conjugated in the infinitive indefinite with um, although there are some exceptions. Ex.: Maglagà, to cook with a spit; such as camotes, etc.; Linagà, vegetables so cooked. Magsigang, to cook meat or fish with a spit; sinigang, meat or fish so cooked. Lumugao, to stew, to boil meal; ang linugao, the mush or stew. Maglugao is more usual. Sumaing, to boil rice; ang sinaing, the boiled Magsaing is also more usual. Magtambong, to cook fish entire; ang tinambong, the fish so cooked. Tumápay or magtápay, to knead; ang tinápay, what kneaded; bread. (6) With verbal roots conjugated by um, the product of such action is denoted by in, prefixed to a vowel root or infixed with a consonant root. Ex.: Sumúlid, to spin; sinúlid, thread, anything spun. Some mag roots also have the product denoted by in. Ex.: Magpipig, to press, to crack rice, etc.; pinipig, roasted and cracked rice. (7) With some roots in forms adjectival nouns, the first syllable of the root being reduplicatd. Ex.: Kuan, known; ang kinukuan, the person known. Mahal, dear; ang minamahal, the esteemed (person). Sintá, love (from Sanskrit, chintá, thought, through Malay); ang sinisintá, the beloved (who loves in return). Ang nasintá indicates a person loved without being aware of the fact.

VI. As in has the idea of attraction inherent within it, there are many classes of verbs, conjugated in the indefinite infinitive by um, which take in to form the direct object. (1) According to this rule verbal roots of taking, asking, and appropriating something take in. There are some verbs conjugated with mag which also admit in.

To buy (general term).

To take (general term), bring or take.

VII. Under this section may be considered in prefixed to or infixed with the personal pronouns, with which it implies the idea of possession. As a suffix with these pronouns, in (hin) expresses the sense of regarding, holding, reputing, etc., in some cases. Ex.:

Your.

His; her.

Their.

Our (all of us).

Our (you and I).

Our (but not you).

My.

Inyó. Ang iniinyó, your property; your. Inyohin mo, consider it as your own; take it for your own.

Kaniyá. Ang kinakaniyá, his [her] property. Kakaniyahin ko (I will hold it as his [her's]).

Kanilá. Ang kinakanilá, their property. Kanilahin mo, regard it as belonging to them.

Atin. Ang inaatin, our property. Inatin niyá, he regarded it as ours.

Kanitá. Ang kinakanitá, our property. Kinakanitá ko, I regard it as yours and mine.

Amin. Ang inaamin, our property, but not yours. Aminin ninyô (you [plural] regard it as ours, but not yours).

Akin. Ang inaákin, my property; mine. Inákin ko (I held it as mine). Inaákin ko (I am holding it as mine). Aákinin ko (I shall hold it as mine).

VIII. Verbs of calling, whether by voice or signs, also follow this mode of conjugation. Ex.:

To call.

To call; also to bring; to fetch.

To make signs for; to motion to.

Tumáuag. Ang tináuag, who or what called. Ang itáuag, the call, instrument, or cause. Ang tauagan, the person called in order to be given something. Ex.: Sino ang linatáuag mo? (Who are you calling to?). Tináuag ko si Pedro, pó (I was calling to Pedro, sir). Tauagan mo siyá nang isdá (Call him to come and get some fish). Kumaón. Ang kinaón, what called.

Kumaón. Ang kinaón, what called, or brought, etc.

Kumauay. Ang kauayin, what motioned for. Ang ikauay, what motioned with, or the cause. Ang kauayan the person motioned to. IX. Verbs of "searching for" also take in for the direct object. Ex.:

To look for.

To search about.

To look in every corner for.

To go in search of another.

To grope for (as in the dark or like a blind person).

 Verbs of moving, when not due to turning away of what is moved, also take in for the direct object. Ex.:

To move.

To move restlessly.

To shake (like objects badly packed) or to move (like loose teeth).

To move anything.

To shake (as something in a sieve); also to rock or dandle (as a child). To shake a basket or measure so it will hold more.

To shake the head in negation. To shake anything, as a tree to gather the fruit.

To wave the hands while dancing.

Humánap. Ang hinánap, thing sought for.

XXXV. Some transitive (requiring an object) verbs do not, and some intransitive verbs do, admit in.

IN-AN.

XXXVI. In prefixed to or infixed with a root to which an is suffixed at the same time is used to express the result of an action when the said result is a concrete object. Ex:

To embroider mats (petates).

To do fine needlework; to do fine sewing.

Magsábat. Sinabatan, an embroidered mat (petate).

Sumulam. Simulaman, fine needlework, as a handkerchief or other article of fine sewing.

XXXVII. The same construction is also used to express the following:

(1) Things prepared for food from the raw material. (2) Acts done with the object expressed by the root. (3) The refuse caused by some actions. Plurality with the last is expressed by the use of the definite prefix pag in connection with in (pinag). Ex.:

Egg.

Honey.

To peel rattans (bejuco).

To thresh.

To saw.

To sort cotton or silk; to cull; to pick over. Rlog. Initlogán, anything made from eggs, as cake or an omelet, etc.

Kumimkim. Magkimkim, to grasp; to close the hand upon. Ang kimkimin, what grasped. Ang kinimkim, what was or has been grasped. Ang ikimkim, the grasping instrument; e. g., the hand.

THE PARTICLE I.

I. The definite particle i, which is almost invariably a prefix and found as an infix with a very few words for strictly euphonic reasons, is used with sentences or phrases by which the subject is represented as losing control of something, expulsion, cause, means, instrument, time (not tense), and verbs of adjusting, copying into, transferring, translating, transplanting, etc., in the latter case indicating the object of the verb.

II. Sentences or phrases including a verb with i have the agent in the genitive, the direct object in the accusative (if there is a direct object), and the word denoting the instrument, time, or cause in the nominative. The nominative word is emphasized by being placed at the beginning of the sentence or phrase.

To pinion; to tie the hands.

Gumápos. Ang igapos, the means—
i. e., the rope. Ex.: Igapos mo sa bilangoin itong pantali (Pinion the prisoner with this rope). Emphatic: Itong pantali igapos mo sa bilangoin (with this rope pinion the prisoner).

III. I, meaning cause, is generally combined with ka, the definite form of maka, forming ika; and further with in for the past and present tenses, ikina.

To come here.

Pumarito. Ang ipinarito, the reason or time of coming here. Ang ikinaparito, the reason or time thus (past tense). Ex.: Anó ang ikinaparito mo? (What did you come here for?) Si Juan ang ikinaparito ko (Juan was the cause of my having come here). Sino ang pinaritohan mo? (Who did you come to see here?) Si Juan (Juan).

IV. Some verbal roots have the idea of going away, leaving, etc., inherent in themselves, and therefore have the definite in either in or i. Ex.:

To go away; to leave.

Umalis. Ang inalis, the leaving (pref. to ang ialis). Kahapon, ang inalis ko (yesterday, I left). Ang pagalis, the act of leaving. Magalis, to take something away. Ang pagaalis, the action of taking something away. Kapagaalis ko nito ngayón (I have just finished taking this away). Makaalis, to be able to go away. Makapagalis, to be able to take away.

V. An indirect object following a preposition takes the genitive with a sentence or phrase using i, but the construction of the rest of the sentence or phrase is unchanged. Ex.:

To buy.

To carry; to accompany.

To look for.

Bumili. Ibili mo ang batà nang kakanin (Buy some sweets for the child).

Humatid. I hatid mo akó sa báhay nang amá mo (Accompany me to your father's house [to the house of your father]). Maghatid, to send; to remit. Maghatidhatiran, to send to each other mutually.

Humánap. Ihánap mo akó nang isang mabuting cabayo (Look for a good horse for me). Ihánap mo ako nang mañgá itlog (Look for some eggs for me).

VI. The person for whom some act is done and the indirect object of an action benefiting or performed for the benefit of another, take the nominative; the verb being used with i and the proper tense forms. The foregoing sentences are also examples of this, as well as the following examples:

To cook; to make by cooking or like Maglutò. Ex.: Ipaglutò mo ang capiprocess. Maglutò. Ex.: Ipaglutò mo ang capitán nang sicolate (Make some choc-

Maglutò. Ex.: Ipaglutò mo ang capitán nang sicolate (Make some chocolate for the captain). Ipaglutò mo akó nang kanin (Cook me some rice).

To build a house.

Magbáhay. Ipagbáhay mo akó (Build me a house).

VII. I generally replaces in with verbs which admit both direct and indirect objects, i being used to express the direct object (accusative) and an expressing the indirect object (dative, etc.). Ex.:

To recommend.

To make a gift; to present with.

To advise.

To give back; to restore.

To tell; to narrate; to report.

To talk; to speak.

Magbilin. Ang ipagbilin, the rec-ommendation. Ang ipinagbilin, what was or has been recom-mended. Ang pagbilinan, the person recommended (no tense idea). Ang pinagbilinan, the person who was or has been recommended.

Magbiyaya. Ang ipinagbiyaya, what was or has been given, i. e., the gift. Ang pinagbiyayaán, the person to whom something was or has been given. Mabiyayang táuo, a liberal person.

Maghátol. This verb also means in some cases to procure women. Ang ihátol, the advice. Ang ihinátol, what was or has been ad-Ang hatolan, the person vised. advised. Ang hinatolan, the person who was or has been advised. Ang ipaghatol, the woman procured. Mapaghátol na lalaki, procurer; panderer. Mapaghátol na babaye, procuress.

Magsaoli. This verb also means to go back, to return to the place of starting. Ang isinaoli, what was or has been restored. Ang sinaolian, the person to whom something was or has been restored. Ang pagsaolán, the place returned to.

Magsalitá. Ang salitin, what told or reported (no tense idea). Ang sinalità; ang isinalità, what was or has been told, etc. Ang sinasalitā; ang isinasalitá, what is being told, etc. Ang sasalith; ang isasalitá, what will be told or reported. Ang pagsalitaán, the person told or reported to (no tense idea). Ang pinagsalitaán, the person told, etc. (past tense). Ang pinagsasalitaán, the person being told or reported to (present tense). Ang pagsasalitaán, the person to be told or reported to (future tense). Ang ipinagsalitá, what was told and the reason for telling. Ang nagsalitá, the teller (past tense). Ang nagsasalita, the (present tense). Ang magsasalitá, the teller (future tense). Ang kasalitaan, the companion in telfing; the coreporter. Masalità, garrulous, like an aged person.

Sumabi. Ang sabihin, what said or the person or thing mentioned. Magsabi, to converse; to say. Ang isabi, the reason or cause of the conversation. Ang isinabi, what was or has been said. Ang ipinagsabi, what was or has been said and the reason or cause. Ang sabihan, the conversation or story. Ang pinagsabihan, what said to a certain person or said at a certain place.

Tumurd.Magturò, to point out; to show; (f.) to teach. Ang itinuro, what signaled, pointed out or taught. Ang tinuroan, person shown (taught) or signaled to.

To signal.

Other verbs which have two objects like the foregoing are umáral, "to teach;" magbalitá, "to report;" magbigay, "to give;" and magbilí, "to sell," which have been or will be explained in other places.

VIII. In the majority of cases i expresses the means or instrument by which an action is brought about. It is prefixed directly to the root for those conjugated with um in any manner, and to the verbalizing particle in the other conjugations. This applies to all tenses. The first syllable of the root or the last syllable of the particle, as the case may be, reduplicate in the present and future tenses. In the second pluperfect and second future perfect tenses the particle i is inserted between the particle na or ma and the root, whether the latter be simple or compound. (See tables.)

IX. The root denoting an instrument, if capable of conjugation, may denote the indirect object, if there is no nominal direct object in the sentence. Ex.: Anó ang ipinatay niyá? (What was he killed with?) Ibináril niyà (he was killed with a gun). With in the sentence would be: pinatay niyà nang báril (he was killed with a gun). In the last example the nominal subject báril is expressed. (See tables for the conjugation of an instrument with i, and with means for accomplishment of an action.)

X. I is also used, as has been stated, to express the means for the accomplishment of an action. Ex.: Wald siyang ibili nitong báhay (he is without the means to buy this house). Mayroon ako ibabayad sa iyo (I have the means to pay you).

XI. I combined with in may express the direct object (accusative) of actions performed for the benefit of others, which may also be expressed by in alone; an expresses place in general with such verbs; and i combined with pag and pinag according to the tense, expresses the person who is, was, has been, or will be the beneficiary of the action.

or meat).

To scald or make, as tea; to boil (as potatoes, etc.).

To cook.

To roast (meat); to bake or fry (fish Magihao. Ang iniihao, what is being fried or roasted. Ang ipinagiihao, the person for whom something is being roasted, etc. Ang ihaoan, the frying pan or roaster. pinagihaoan, the place of roasting.

Maglagà. Ang inilagà, what boiled or made thus. Ang ipaglagà, the person for whom to be made. And lagaán, the cooking pot, teapot, etc. Ex.: Ipaglagà mo akó nang sa (make me some tea).

Magluto. Δng lutoin, what cooked. Ang inilutò, what cooked (see next paragraph). Ang lutoán, the cooking utensil. Ang paglutoán, the cooking place.

XII. When roots beginning with h, l, or a vowel (including w) are coningated with in and instrumental i, etc., the Tagalog reverses the particle in to ni or changes it to na, in order to avoid the harsh sounds of the double i, especially with roots commencing with i. Ex.:

To throw down.

Maghúlog. Ang ihúlog, what dashed to ground or thrown down (no tense idea). Ang ihinúlog or ang inahúlog, what was or has been thrown down, etc. Ang ihinuhulog or ang inahuhilog, what is being thrown down, etc. Ang ihuhúlog, what will be thrown down, etc. (See tables for these.)

Maglagay. Ang ilagay, what placed. Ang ilinagay; ang inilagay or ang inalagay, what was or has been placed.

Magwald. Ang iniwald, what was or has been gotten rid of, etc.

To place; to put.

To get rid of: to disappear.

XIII. With certain classes of verbs such as (1) those requiring two complements, e. g., magsalitâ, "to tell;" magátang, "to lend;" magbigay, "to give," etc., and (2) with those expressing expulsive or dispersive action, e. g., magtapon, "to throw away;" magsábog, "to scatter seed, etc.," i forms a true passive, which may be so expressed in English.

XIV. With verbal roots not included in the foregoing classes i forms an expression peopliar to Tagalog and allied languages by denoting either the expression peculiar to Tagalog and allied languages by denoting either the instrument, cause, or time of the action. In these cases the cause, reason, instrument, or time becomes the subject of the sentence in the nominative case, especially if the sentence should include an indirect complement expressive of such instrument, cause, time, etc., in addition to a direct object.

 $\mathbf{E}_{\mathbf{x}}$.:

To give.

(2) To throw away.

To plant; to sow.

Magbigay. Ang ibinigay, what was or has been given. Ex.: Ibinigay ni Juan iyang salapi (that money was the gift of Juan).

Magtapon. Tumapon, to cast (as a net). Ex. with magtapon: Itinapon ko ang súlat (I threw the letter away). Anó ang gagawin ko nitong isdá! (What shall I do with this fish?) Itapon mo (throw it away). Ex. with tumapon: Minsang itapon nahuli ko itong isdá (I caught this fish with one throw [of the net]). Ang taponan, the fish line; also, where anything may be thrown; the scrap hole or heap.

Magtanim. (2) Also to bear hate or rancor toward another. Aking itinatanim itong pálay (I am planting this rice). Ang tamnón, the place of planting. As will be seen, besides being contracted, there is a transposition with m and n with this word with suffixed an.

(See tables for conjugation of sumábog, to sow, with i.) XV. If the instrument is expressed in full with a verb using the expulsive i, the instrument takes the proper preposition in the genitive. Ex.: Itinapon niyá ang buhangin nang panhákay (he threw the sand away with a hoe).

XVI. (1) Roots which take mag for the primary idea in the indefinite generally have i for the corresponding definite, combined with in for the past and present tenses. Um roots generally take in only for the simple definite (direct object). (2) Roots which vary in meaning according to the verbalizing prefix or infix um, mag, etc., generally retain the definite form of mag, magka, etc., with i, forming ipag, ipinag, ipa, ipina, etc., as prefixes to the root. (See tables for conjugation of kumálat, to spread, to propagate (of its own accord); magkálat, to spread widely (by outside agency). Ex.:

To sun; to put in the sunshine.

To pour out.

To scatter.

To add.

To heap up; to lay in layers.

(2) To spread; to propagate (of its own accord).

To spread widely (by outside agency).

Kumálat. Ang ikálat, what may spread. Ang ikinálat, what has spread.

Magkálat. Ang ipagkálat, what may be spread thus. Ang ipinagkálat, what was or has been so spread. Ex. (indef.): Nagkakálat si kuan nang wikang nakasasamá sa kapoua tauo (what's his name has been spreading bad reports all over about his neighbor). Kálatkálat ang dilà niyá (he has a most tattling tongue).

Umútang. Ang utañgin, the loan.
Ang utañgan, the person from whom borrowed. Ang iútang, the cause.

To lend (money only).

To lend willingly.

Magútang. (Also to borrow much.)

Ang ipinagútang, the loan.

Magpaútang. Ang ipaútang, the loan made thus. Ang pautangin, the person lent to thus. Ex.: Pautangin mo akó nang pisos (lend me a peso). Isang salapî lámang ang ipauútang ko sa iyó (I will only lend you a half peso). Ipinaútang ko sa iyó ang salapî ko (I have lent my money to you). Bákit hindi mo akó pinauútang nang salapî! (Why won't you lend me some money?) Sa pagka't walá, (because I have none). Paútang, credit. Kautanyan, debt.

XVII. This is also shown by bumili, "to buy;" and magbili, "to sell," already explained).

To buy by retail (on a small scale).

To sell on a small scale.

Umutay. Ang inutay, what was bought thus.

Magutay. Ang ipinagutay, what was sold thus.

Ikinahahapis ko ang pagkamatay niyá (I am saddened by his death). Ikahahápis mo ang pagkamatay ni Gat Juan (You will be saddened by the death of Don Juan). Kahapisan, sadness (abstr.). Kahápishápis, sad or sorrowful object or spectacle; also great sorrow.

(2) Ika (ikina) also expresses well-perfected acts resulting from a slow process or development.

To become better.

Gumaling. Maggaling, to adorn. Ang galingin, what adorned. Magaling, to be better; also "good," "clever." Mangaling, to become much better. Makagaling, to do good. Ang ikagaling, the cause of betterment. Ex.: Ang mangá gamot ay siyang ikinagagaling nang mangá may sakit (medicines are what cause the recovery of those who are ill). Ang panahó'y ang ikinagaling niyá (the weather caused his improvement). Any paginum nitong gamot any ikinagaling nilá (the taking of this medicine was what caused them to recover). Magpagaling, to prosper. Any pinagagaling, person or thing prospering. Any nagagaling, person improving. Magpakagaling, to improve one's self; to correct one's self. Ex.: Magpakagaling kayó nany mangá ásal ninyó (Improve yourselves in your customs [or manners]). Kagalingan, goodness; improvement.

(3) Ika, as well as i alone, prefixed to intransitive verbs indicate time as well as cause or reason. Ex.:

To repent.

To be asleep or sleepy.

Magsisi. Ang ipinagsisi, the time, cause, or reason of repentance (past tense). Sumisi, to quarrel with openly. Ang isisi, the cause. Magpakasisi, to repent deeply.

Matúlog. Natutúlog bagá kayó? (Are you sleepy?) Oó; ibig ko sana ngá matúlog (Yes; I would like to go to sleep). Makatúlog, to fall asleep. Ang ikatúlog, the time or cause of falling asleep.

XIX. I is generally used alone to express cause or reason with verbs which do not require an object to complete the meaning (intransitives):

To obey; to follow.

Sumunod. Ang isunod, the cause of obedience or following. Ex.: Anó ang isinusunod nang mañgá sundalo sa kanilang punò? (Why do soldiers obey [follow] their commanding officer [chief]?). Ang panunumpa 't pitagan ay ang isinusunod nilá (Their obedience is on account of their oath and also their respect).

THE PARTICLE AN (HAN).

 An (han after acute final vowel), sometimes nan, is suffixed with all tenses of the verb. The particle in, either alone or in combination with pag (pinag), etc., is retained in the past and present tenses. For the conjugation of roots with an and han see the tables at end of book.

II. An usually represents place, or expresses the case called locative in many European languages, replacing an adverb of place or the preposition which would be employed with another form of conjugation. Thus, if a sentence with a verb other than those which admit a person or place as the direct object, or those requiring an for euphonic reasons, includes an indirect complement of place relating to the action, the use of an with the verb expresses the relation of case expressed in English by a preposition.

To gather; to pluck (as flowers); to Pumitás. break off.

Ex.: Anó ang pinipitás mo (What are you gather-re?) Akô'y pungmipitás diyán? ing there?) nang bulaklak (I am gathering some flowers). Sabugan mo nitó ang iyong bákid, or ang iyong búkid, sabugan mo nitó, same translation as with i, except in the first the emphasis is on the act, and on the place in the second. Magsábog, to sow much. Ang ipagsá-bog, what sown thus. (See tables for conjugation of sabog.)

Magsabón, from Sp. jabón, soap. Ex.: Anó ang sinasabón mo? (what are you washing with soap?). Sabonan mo ang damit (use soap with the clothes). Wald akong sabón (I have no soap). Mili ka nang sabón (buy some soap). It will be seen that assimilated foreign words follow the same rules as native ones in all respects.

Magtapon. Ang itapon, what thrown away. Ex.: Rapon mo itó (throw this away). Itapon mo itó sa túbig; taponan mo ang túbig nitó; or ang túbig ang taponan mo nitó (throw this into the water [in order to get rid of it]).

Magtayô. Ang $i(pag)tay\delta$, what set up thus. Ang pagtayoan, the place. Ex.: (i) Itayô mo itong mángá haligi (set these posts [pillars] upright). Itong loobang itô'y siya kong pagtatayoan nang áking báhay (I am going to put up my house in this yard). Tumayô, to stand erect (animate being). Ex.: Ang sundalo tungmatayô sa harap nang kaniyang punò (the soldier is standing [stands] erect in front of [before] his companyed on Matawa [before] his commander). Matayê, to be erect (inanimate object). Ang mañgá haligi nang ák∙ng báhay natatayo (the posts of my house stand [are] upright). Matovid also means upright, but generally in a moral sense.

Ang iupa, the wage or pay. Ang upahan, person paid or what paid for, as a rented house, etc.

Ang pagupahan, the place. Ex.: Magkano ang paguupahan sa Maynilà? (how much is being paid in Manila?).

about me).

Nose.

Mouth.

Ilong.Rongán, large-nosed.

For places expressed with pag— $\acute{a}n$ and ka— $\acute{a}n$, see under pag and ka.

CONSTRUCTION.

XII. With an the direct object takes the accusative and the agent the genitive. Ex.: Hinahagkán nang anak (agt.) ang kaniyang iná (dir. object) (the child is kissing his [her] mother). Lit., "Is being kissed by the child the his [her] mother." Tukuran mo iyang káhoy (prop up that tree). Lit., "Let be propped up by you that tree."

XIII. If an indirect object expressing place is included in a sentence, however, it takes the accusative case, and the direct object the genitive or other oblique case, the agent remaining in the genitive, as explained in the preceding paragraph. Ex.: Tinatamnán ni amá nang sarisaring káhoy ang halamanan (Father is planting different kinds of trees in the orchard [garden])—lit., "The garden (acc.) is being planted with different kinds (abl.) of trees (gen.) by father (ins.)." Pinaghanapan mo bagá sa cabayo itang daang itô? (Did you look for the horse on this road?)—lit., "Was-looking-place your perhaps (gen.) for horse (dat.) this road? (nom. as trans., same form as acc.)."

XIV. If an is used modifying a place or person in which to, for, from, have a first a procedure the place or person when translated into English.

by, on, in, etc., precedes the place or person when translated into English, the place or person should be expressed. In these cases the agent, as usual, takes the genitive and the direct object the accusative. The indirect object takes the genitive and the direct object the accusative. The indirect object may either precede or follow the verb, except interrogative pronouns or adverbs of place, which always precede. The person or place is emphasized by being placed before the verb in the sentence. Ex.: Isinúlat niyá ang áking súlat (He wrote my letter for me)—lit., "Was written by him (her) the my letter." Sinusulatan ko itong papel (I am writing on this paper)—lit., "Is-the-writing-place my this paper." Pagsusulatan ko itong papel itó (I will write on this paper). Same construction as foregoing, with future tense; Sino ang pinagbilhán mo nitong cabayo? (To whom have you sold this horse?)—lit., "Who (was) the purchaser your of this horse?" Ang anak nang kapidbáhay ko (To the son of my neighbor) "The son of the neighbor my."

THE INDEFINITE PARTICLE "UM."

1. Um is called the first verbalizing particle by the Spanish writers on Tagalog, and is generally used to verbalize roots when the action is primary or expressed as the act of the subject without special reference to the object. im also has the idea of action toward another person. Some roots differ radically in their meaning with um and mag, or rather in opposite ways from a neutral point. With other roots mag expresses intensity of what is expressed primarily with um. Um, which is found in the so-called indefinite, changes to ungm in the past and present tenses, and drops out in the future tense. There are also pluperfect and future-perfect tenses, but they are not generally used. For the conjugation of a root with um see the tables. There are some irregularities with some roots which are noted in the proper place. In the mechanical structure of the language um is prefixed to roots beginning with a vowel and infixed between the first letter and the following vowel of a consonant root.

II. The philologist Keane gave G. W. Parker, author of the Grammar of the Malagasy Language (London, 1883), the following information as to the use and origin of infixes, which applies to Tagalog as well:

"The infix syllable om (um, am, om) is a feature which Malagasy has in common with Khmêr (Cambojan), Javanese, Malay, Jagana (2017), pine Archipelago), and no doubt other members of the Malayo-Polynesian family.

"Khmêr: Slap, dead; samlap, to kill. Javanese: Hurub, flame; humu-line inflame, Malay: Pilih. to choose; pamilihan, choice. Tagala: common with Khmer (Cambojan), Javanese, Malay, Tagala (sic) (Philip-rub, to inflame. Malay: Pilih, to choose; pamilihan, choice. Tagala: Basa, to read (idea of reading); bumasa, to make use of reading (to read). "Originally a prefix, as it still is in Samoan (Ex.: Moto, unripe; momoto, to die young), this particle seems to have worked its way into the body of the word by a process of metathesis analogous to the transposition common to most languages (compare Anglo-Saxon thridda with third)."

III. As has been stated, um is generally used to express the simple unreciprocated act of the agent, either toward himself or others, provided the action is not modified by conditions of time (not tense), manner, instrument, number (plurality), or otherwise carried away from its simplest sense. Many roots admit both um and mag with little difference in meaning, and hence it is often difficult to decide upon a choice between them, but it is generally safe to use um. Again, many roots differ widely with the two particles. Um refers more to subject and his action, mag to the object and the action of the verb upon it.

CLASSES OF "UM" ROOTS.

For convenience of reference the roots conjugated by um have been arraged into numbered paragraphs, those following the regular conjugation being given in Par. I-XVII, and those having irregularities coming under Par. XVIII-XXI. Diminutives are treated in Par. XXII.

I. Roots which denote qualities capable of being slowly assimilated by the agent form the first class. There are some adverbs which are verbal-ized by um in certain cases.

Sumumpong.

Umumit. Ang umitin, what purloined. Maumitin or mapagumit, purloiner.

Humuli. Ex.: Ibá ang pogong huli na, sa huhulihin pa (Better the quail caught already than that which has yet to be caught).—T. P. Manhuli, to live by robbery.

Among other words coming under this class may be mentioned tumangap, "to accept or receive;" dumákip, "to seize or catch hold of;" umábut, "to overtake; to reach;" and sumalúbong, "to go out to meet anyone;" all of which have been explained before.

X. Um expresses voluntary acts of agents upon others when mutuality, duality, or plurality is not denoted. The latter are expressed by mag, an being generally suffixed for mutuality. Examples:

To accompany.

To leave another.

To join with; to unite with.

To talk to; (2) to sue another or bring suit. Sumama. Magsama, to accompany each other (two or more). Ang kasama, the companion (servant). Ang kasamahan, the person accompanying another. Makisama, to thrust one's self into the company of another. Magkasama, to gather, as a crowd. Sumamá is "to go into partnership," and Sumamá is "to become bad or evil." These examples show the great importance of accent in Tagalog.

Humiwalay. Ang hiwalayan, the person left. Maghiwalay, to separate mutually. Mahiwalay, to part accidentally or casually, etc. Syn. tiwalag, with the same combinations and meanings as above. Both probably from wala, without; not to have, etc. Tiwalag is often used in the sense of divide, but watak is better. Magkawatakwatak, to be divided into many parts.

Pumisan. Magpisan or magkapisan, to associate together. Ex.: Ang pinagkakapisanan nang manga karunongan, the uniting place of the sciences (knowledge, dúnong), i. e., scientific society, university, etc. Pisan as an adjective means "merely; purely." There is a noun pisan meaning "sudden death." Makapisan, to kill another suddenly.

Umúsap. Ang usapin, the person sued. Ang kaúsap, the companion in conversation. Magúsap, to converse (two or more); (2) to sue one another; to litigate. Mañgúsap, to talk much; to talk to an audience. Ex.: Houag mo akong lakasan nang pañguñgúsap (don't talk to me so much in such a rough way). (As the variations of the idea "to sue" are derived, they will be omitted). Makipagásap, to converse with another; (2) to thrust one's self into a conversation. Ex.: Ibig mong makipagúsap sa ákin? (do you wish to have a talk with me?). Opo (yes, sir). Ngayo'y hindî mangyayari, it is not possible just now). Makipakiúsap, to rush uninvited into a conversa-Palaúsap, a tion between others. barrator or perpetual bringer of groundless suits. Maginpalaúsap, to become a barrator. Ex.: Naginpalaúsap siyá't naginmalalangohin (he has become a barrator and common drunkard). The first vice, barratry, is very prevalent with Tagalogs; the second is very rare. It would be unusual to find the combination set forth above, but grammatically it is an excellent example with magin.

Umáuay. Magáuay, to quarrel with. Kaáuay, antagonist; enemy. Ang ipagáuay, the cause of quarrel. Ex.: Ang ipinagáuay nung mañgá kapidbáhay namin ay ang aso ni Feliciano, pó (a dog of Feliciano was the cause for the quarrel of our neighbors). Itong báhay na itó ang pinagauayan nilá (this house is where they have been quarrelling [or where they quarreled]). Makipagáuay, to pick a quarrel or to interfere in a quarrel. Magkaáuay, to quarrel (two or more). Nagkaáuay ang dalawang magasaua sa tiangi (the husband and wife quarrelled in the market place).

XI. Um also expresses movement in itself; movement from an outside agency being expressed by mag, except for the root hango, which takes um. Ex.:

To walk; to pass on; to march; to Lumákad. Ang lakarin, what walked travel (on foot).

Lumákad. Ang lakarin, what walking for, i. e., the object of walking.

Lumákad. Ang lakarin, what walked for, i. e., the object of walking. Ex.: Anô't hindi ka lungmalákad nang matulin! (why don't you walk more quickly?). Maglákad, to walk much or quickly; to carry something while walking. Ang ilákad, the means of walking, as the foot, or the object carried along. Ang lakaran, the person walked to, or the place walked to. Ang paglakarán, the route, path, or road, etc., walked over. Ang maglalákad, the walker; traveler. Maglakadlákad (dim.), to stroll. Lumoksó. Already explained.

Already explained.

Lumubog. Already explained; syn., sisid.

Tumahán. Magtahán, to stop another; Magtahanan, to stop each other (two). Nagtahán street in Manila means "stopping place," as it ends at the bank of the Pasig River.

Humumpay. Walang humpay, endtess.

Tumanan.

Tumakbó.

Tumakas. Ang magtatakas, matakasin, or palatakas, the hider (person hiding).

Humango.This form originally meant to redeem another from slavery, and um has been retained while the meaning has changed. Maghango (now out of use) meant to redeem one's self from the same condition.

Ang batà ay nakagagá-Gumápang. pang (the child is able to crawl).

XII. Um is used with voluntary actions upon or against another. Actions affecting the subject are expressed with mag. Um is not used with involuntary actions, as matisod, "to stumble." Ex.:

To wash the face of another.

Humilamos, evidently from damos; amos, idea of dirtiness of the face. Ex.: Amosamosan ang mukhá mo (your face is very dirty). Ang hilamosan, the person washed.

To comb the hair of another.

Ang panáhit, the means, i. e., the razor. Magpaáhit, to order to shave; also to get shaved. Ex.: Magpaáhit ka kay Juan (Tell Juan to shave you). Magpaáhit kay Juan si Pedro (Tell Juan to shave Pedro). Ang pinagaahitan, the place of being shaved, i. e., the barber shop. Ang ahitan, the person shaved. (See phrases also.)

Gumupit. Maggupit, to cut one's own hair. Ang ginupit, what has been cut, or the person whose hair has been cut. Gumupit also means to cut metal. The use of shears is implied in all cases. (See the phrases for examples.)

Gumamot. Maggamot, to cure onesself. Mangamot, to cure professionally, i. e., to practice medicine. Kagamotan (abs.), medicine. Ang mangagamot, the physician. Ang pangamotin, the person cured. Magamot, to have much medicine, or to have many kinds of medicine. (Idiom:) Walang gamot ang limot, there is no cure for the forgetful. Ex.: Bago dumáting ang sakit, lagyán nang gamot (Before illness comes, apply the remedy).—T. P. 362. This seems to be an adaptation from the Spanish.

Kumámot. (Already explained.)
Humampás. Maghampás, to whip ones-self (as in penance). Ang hampasin, the person whipped.
Ang hampás sa kalabao'y sa cabayo

XV. Um used with sa, "at," "in," denotes permanency in any place. Ex.: Ang mangá Americano sungmasa sangkapuluan (The Americans are settling permanently in the archipelago).

XVI. Um is also used in some places to express the idea that what may be signified by the root is taking place here, there, and everywhere; the idea of confusion being inherent. Ex.: Umáuay (or auayan) doón (all is quarreling there). Umasáua (asauin) dito (everyone is getting married here).

Um is also used for the imperative in Manila, the tenses being distinguished by adverbs of time, but this is probably due to the fact that the speakers of Tagalog in Manila generally have some knowledge of Spanish, which confuses their grasp of the nice distinction of tense in pure Tagalog.

XVII. Um, used with some roots indicating certain actions means to be occupied in a matter, although perhaps not actually performing the act indicated. Ex.: Sumusúlat si Juan (Juan is busy with writing).

IRREGULARITIES.

XVIII. In some parts of the Tagalog region the present tense of the indefinite with the primary idea (besides the regular formation with ungular and the reduplications of the first syllable of the root), is sometimes expressed by the particle na prefixed to the root. Ex.:

To read.

Bumasa, from Sansk. wáchá "word," "discourse." There are three forms of the present indef. with primary idea. Ex.: Akô'y nabasa
(I am [or was] reading). Akô'y nabasa'y nakatúlog akó (I was reading and fell asleep). Nanasa akó (I am reading). Bungmabasa akó (I am reading). (See tables for other tenses.) Ang basahin, what read. Ang basahan, the person read to. Basahán, professor, lecturer. Magbasá, to read much, or by many. Ang pagbasa, the act of reading. Mababasa, anything legible. Ex.: Nabasa mo na ang librong ipinahiram ko sa iyó? (Had you [have you already] read the book I lent you?) Hindi ko pa na-basa (I have not finished reading it yet). Magpabasa, to order to read. Ex.: Nagpapabasa ang mangaáral sa mangá batà (the teacher is ordering the children to read). Mabasahin; mamamasa or palabasa, reader. Tagabasa, reader by occupation. Basa is also applied to a gravestone. Bumasa (from basa), is "to wet, to moisten." This last is evidently a Malayan word; Malay, basahkun, to wet or moisten. Basa(from wâchá) means language, speech, in Malay, while bacha has been selected to represent the idea of read-

To write.

Sumúlat (from Arabic s'urat, a chapter of the Koran, through Malay). This root has been softened to salat in Visayan and Tagalog, but in Bicol and Ilocano it is still surat. Ibanag uses the root tirrak. There is also a root titik in Tagalog, meaning "to write," "to record." There is also a word meaning "to print." It is magpalamán, with a primary meaning of being implanted in the heart. Ex.: Nasúlat siyá (he is writing). Sungmusúlat siyá (he is writing). Ang sulatin, what written. Ex.: Anó ang susulatin nang amá mo sa iyong kapatid na lalaki? (What will your father write to your brother?) Isúlat niyá itong panálat (let him write with this pen) (means of writing). Isinúlat na niyá sa kaniyá na parito siyá pagdaka (he has written him already to come here at once). Ang sulatan, the paper written upon, or the writing desk, place, etc. Ex.: Sulatan mo itong papel (write on this paper). Anó bagá ang sinu-latan mo nang manga pangalan? To pray. To trust; to confide.

To vanquish; gain; conquer; win.

To sing funeral songs.

To descend by stairs or ladder; (2) to spend; to use up.

a variation of pongkd, "to incite to a quarrel," and pan. This root is said to be of Chinese origin.

Panagano. Seiple says from Vis. part. panag and anó, "what."

Panaghili. Seiple also gives this as from panag and hili, "envy." Ex.: Houag kang managhili sa kapua mo táuo (Do not envy your Syn. neighbor). pangimbolo (rare).

Panaghoy, from taghoy, "to pant, to breathe hard," and pan.

Panaginip, from ginip and pana, a combination found by Seiple in but four words of polysyllabic structure. Ex.: Nananaginip ka bagáf (Are you dreaming?) Syn. Bungantúlog, from túlog, "sleep." Panagisuyð, from tagisuyo and pan.

The ultimate root is suyd with the same general meaning.

Panalañgia, from dalañgin and pan. Panálig, from sálig. Ex.: Siyá ang sinasaligan ko, kaya aké matápang (I trust in him, and am brave for that reason). Pinapanaligan mo (panaliganin mo) and Dios (let your trust be in God [trust in God]).

Panalo, from talo and pan. Sino ang nanalof (Who was the winner?) Tumalo, to dispute (one). Magtalo, toargue (two, etc.). Manalo, indef. of panalo. Magpatalo, to allow one's self to be conquered. Patalo, to consent to be vanquished. Makitalo, to interfere in a dispute. Ang mananalo, the winner; con-queror. Ang talonan, the van-quished.

Panambitan, from sambit, "funeral song," an suffixed and pan.

Panáog. Seiple gives a Panay-Visayan root naog, but the Samar-Leyte dialect seems to lack this word. Ex.: (Tag.) Pumanáog, to descend a ladder (also, to go or come down stairs). Magpanáog, to do the above much. Magpapanáog, to order the above to be done; to use up; to spend. Ex.: Nagpapanáog nang ari ang narurukha (The property has been used up on account of poverty). Napapanaogan akó nang limang pisos (I have spent five pesos). Also with ma. Ex.: Ang napanáog sa ákin ay limang pisos (The amount of my spending was five pesos). Magpanáog also means to bring someTo sit down (with the feet crossed and knees apart).

thing down stairs or my means of a ladder. Angipanáog, what brought down. Magpapagpanáog, to order something to be brought down

Panasilà, from silà, with same meaning with mag and pan. Seiple thinks pana a root, but it may also be from the indef. Ang pinananasilaan, the person sat down before, or the place.

Ang panatahin, what prom-Ang panatahan, the person Syns. Pangako; Tupromised. The roots talaga and mandang. vanáan have somewhat similar meanings.

Panatili, from tili, idea of propping up; and pana.

Panimtim (from timtim? and pan). Seiple gives tiyim as the root, meaning "to ooze into; to leak." Noceda gives panayimtim as the word. Ex. Mapanayimtim sa loob ang masamang asal (The evil habit penetrates the heart).

Pangyari (from yari and pan). Makapangyarihan, powerful; omnipotent. Kapangyarihan, power; faculty; authority. Ex. Mayróon siyangkapangyarihan (he has power [or authority]). Wald siyang k. (He is without a) (He is without a). Wald akong k. (I am without a). Mangyari, to be possible. Ex. Hindi mangyayari (It can not be). Hindi mangyaring di akó pumaroon (I can not possibly keep from going there). Mangyari bagang di akó pumaroon? (Is it not possible for me to keep from going there?) Anó't di man-gyayari? (Why should it not be so?) May nangyari doon sa báhay niyá (Something has happened in his house overthere). Sukatmangyari (Suppose it may happen?) Di súkat mangyari (It should not happen). Mangyayari din (It will indeed be possible). Yari alone means done; finished; completed. Ex.: Yari na ang súlat (The letter is already finished).

Panikluhod. (Already explained).

Syn. Lumuhod.

Paniin. Ang ipinaniin, what propped thus. Magtiin, to put out the hands in order to rise; (2) also to Tiinan mo ang stamp or print. papel, stamp or print it on the To think; also "to regret."

To wait upon the pleasure of another; to flatter; (2) to serve. To promise.

To dare; to venture.

paper. Root tiin and pan. Tiin means "to prop oneself with hands and feet in order to rise."

Panimdim (from dimdim and pan).
This root is domdom in Bicol.

Paningkayad (from tinkayad and pan). Also tumingkayad, with same meaning.

Paniwala (from tiwala and pan).

Ang katiwala, the confidant; bosom friend.

Panógot.

Panolos (from a lost root, tolos, suggests Seiple, who cites the Javanese word "tulus, sincere; faithful; loyal, etc." and adopted in Malay). Ex.: Hindi akó manolos kumain, at ang nasasakit akó nang lagnat (I can not force myself to eat, because I am sick with fever).

Panóod (from nóod and pan). Manóod, to look at what contents and gives pleasure. Ang pinanóod, what beheld.

Panúbig (from túbig and pan).

Panuluyan (from túloy and pan). Ang panuluyanan, the lodging place; also ang tuloyan. Ang ipanuluyan, the cause or person for whom lodging is looked for. Magpapanuluyan, to give another lodging. Ang papanuluyanin, the person given lodging. Tumúloy to lodge. Magtúloy, to lodge many or much. Ang tuluyan, the lodging place. Ang pagtuluyan, the lodging place of many or much. Ang italoy, the cause. Ang ipagtúloy, the cause of many or much. Magpatúloy, to give lodging. Ang patuluyin, the person given lodging. Ang patuluyan, the place where given lodging. Ang papag-tuluyin, the person given much lodging. Ang mangá papagtuluyin, the persons given lodging. Any pinagpapatuluyan, the lodging houses. Ex.: Sino ang nanunu-luyan sa bahay mot (Who is the lodger at your house?) Isang mahirap na pinatúloy ko sa áking báhay (a poor man whom I have allowed to lodge at my house).

Panuyo (from suyo and pan). See panagisuyd.

Pangakò (def.); mangakò (indef.). Syn., panata. From áko, "seenrity," and pan.

Pangahás; mangahas (probably from dahás, "idea of bravery," and pan). Seiple points out that the Pangayupapa (from ngayupapa and pan).

Pangibig (from ibig and pan). íbig.

Pangigboghó (from boghó, "idea of jealousy;" still found in panibugho, "jealousy").

Pangilábot (from kilábot, "idea of trembling").

Pangilag (def.); mangilag (indef.); both from ilag. Umilag, to flee. Magilag, to draw aside; to avoid. Pañgilagan mo ang mañgá táuong walang pinagaralan (avoid men without education [breeding]). To be scornful.

To keep holidays.

To become numb (as the arm or leg from inaction); to "go to sleep." To tremble (much with cold or fear).

To feel a tingling pain in the teeth.

To shake (as from the ague).

To precede (as in room or street); to commence; to start or begin. To lose in trade, business, or barter.

To talk.

Pañgilap. Seiple thinks may be from silap, "idea of a wordy quarrel," and pan.

Pangilin (from ngiling, "idea of observing holidays [fiestas], etc.," and pan). Seiple observes that the final g of the root has been dropped, but this may be accidental.

Pangimi (from ngimi). Syn. pangalo.

Pariginig (from kinig, really kingig).

Kuminig, to tremble with cold or fear. Magkinig, to tremble much thus. Makinig, to be trembling thus [state]. Mariginig, indef. of pariginig. Makapariginig, to cause to tremble with cold or fear.

Pangulugi (from ngulugi, a loss in business, and pan).

Pañgúsap (from úsap and pan). Ex.: Hindî ka makapañgúsapi (Can't you talk?) (See úsap, already partly explained).

DIMINUTIVES IN "UM."

Um verbs are made diminutive by the repetition of the root if bisyllabic, or the first two syllables if longer. Ex.:

To run.

To rain.

Tumakbó. Tumakbo-takbó, to ramble; to run a little.

Umulán. Umulan-ulán, to drizzle. In ordinary composition the hyphens are generally omitted.

THE VERBALIZING PARTICLE "MAG,"

The particle mag is used to verbalize roots, as a general rule, either when a definite object is held in view or else when the verb does not require an object to express intensity (sometimes plurality) with roots which are verbalized in the simplest sense with um. Mag has also a reciprocal (mutual) idea, an (han) being usually suffixed.

Mag, which is always a prefix, changes to nag in the present and past tenses. The first syllable of the root is reduplicated for the present and future tenses. Maka and naka, which are used to indicate the second future perfect and pluperfect, respectively, retain pag, the definite of mag, with the root, as they are also independent particles when used alone. In this respect, and also in the retention of the particle in front of the reduplicated initial syllable of the root in the future tense, all particles differ from um. (See the table for conjugation of mag roots.)

 Mag, prefixed to roots which admit um and which do not change the meaning with mag, signifies plurality either of persons or acts, this being the general meaning imparted by this particle. Mag (nag) sometimes throws the accent upon the last syllable of a root. Ex.:

To guard; watch for.

Tumanod. Magtanod, to guard much or by many. Ang tanoran, what guarded. Ang pagtanoran, what guarded much or by many. Ang itanod, the cause of guarding. Ang ipagtanod, the cause of guarding much or by many; also the person for whom guarded, if there be a person concerned.

To sit down.

Umupó. Magupó, tositdown (many).

Among other verbs may be mentioned magbasá, to read much or by many (bumasa); magkain, to eat much, etc. (kumain); maggiik, to thresh (gumiik); maginum, to drink much, etc. (uminum); maglakad, to walk much, etc. (lumákad); magsulat, to write much or by many (sumálat); magtakbó, to run much or by many (tumakbó); magtañgis, to weep much or by many (tumañgis), and magtuksó, to weep much (tumuksó); all of which verbs have been heretofore explained.

II. Those roots which do not admit um as a verbalizing particle are not pluralized by mag, but simply verbalized in the primary sense. Besides others, all roots beginning with m fall in this class on account of cacophony (harshness) with um.

To grind (as grain).

To enhance.

To think with care. To see well (purposely).

To inherit.

To note; to experience.

To start; to commence.

Magbayó. Ang bayín, what ground.

Ang bayohan, the grinding place. Magmahal. Ang minamahal, the esteemed, etc., person. Ex.: Ang banal na táuo ay minamahal (the just person is esteemed). Mamahal, to rise in value. Ex.: Namamahal ang lakó (the merchandise is rising in value). Macpakamahal, to esteem highly. Ex.: Pinagpapakamahal ko sa kaniyá (I do esteem him highly). Also with maka alone. Ex.: Pinakamamahal ko sa kaniyá. Makimahal, to act like a noble person. Mapakimahal, to arrive at a state of being esteemed. Kamahalan, dearness; nobility, etc.

Magmahang.

Magmalas. To see well, casually, makamalas.

Magmana. Ang pagmanahin, what inherited. Ang magkamana, to leave property. Ang ipamana, the estate. Ang pamana, the inheritance (verbal noun). Ex.: Itó ang pamana sa ákin nang amá ko (This was my inheritance from my father). Ang pagmanahan, the heir. Makimana, to ask for an inheritance.

Magmasid. Ang mapagmasid, the person who notes or experiences.

Magmulá. Mulán mo itó, commence this. Used only thus in imperative and past indicative. As "proceed" it is used in past and present. To recall to memory.

To cheapen; insult; dishonor.

Ang pinagmumulán, the point from which proceeding. Mulá as prep. means "from; since."

means "from; since."

Magmult. Also means to open the eyes widely; and to look at well.

Magmura. Mamura, to lower in value. Ang murahin, what cheapened, or who insulted, dishonored, etc. Magpakamuramura, to despise intensely. Magmurahan, to insult mutually. Anghokomanang pinagmurahan nila, they insulted each other in the court room.

There are comparatively few verbal roots beginning with m in the Tagalog. The foregoing are nearly all that are in common use. A few others are to be found, which will be noted later, used with other particles.

III. Roots which change the meaning with um and mag are pluralized in two ways with mag. If the final syllable of the root is accented normally the first syllable of the root is added extra in all tenses, but if the accent is not normally upon the last syllable of the root, plurality is expressed by changing the accent to the final syllable. It should also be noted that the meaning changes back.

To buy.

To teach (as a doctrine).

Bumili. Magbili, to sell. Nagbibili akó, I am selling. Nagbibibili akó, I am buying much. This form is now rare, man (q. v.) being generally used. Ex.: Namimili akó (I am buying much).

Umural. Magaral, to learn; to study. Magaral, to teach much; to preach. Now generally replaced by man. Ex.: Mangaral, to preach.

The reduplication of a bisyllabic root or the first two syllables of a polysyllabic root intensifies plurality with mag roots. This same construction with um roots indicates diminutives. Mag roots add an (han) to express diminutives or reciprocal verbal actions, which have to be distinguished by the context, meaning, etc. Ex.:

To think.

To meditate.

To follow; to obey.

Magisip. Magisipisip, to think deeply; profoundly.

Magnilay. Magnilaynilay, to meditate profoundly. Manilay nation, a considerate person. Manilay, also means to fish. Paninilayan, a fishing canoe.

Sumunod. Magsunodsunod, to follow in rapid sequence (many).

IV (a). Roots which may admit the idea of more or less take an additional repetition of the first syllable to signify intent or plurality. If the entire root be repeated the plurality is intensified. Roots of three or more syllables repeat only the two first, according to the general rule in Tagalog. Ex.: Nagsusumpā akó sa kapidbāhay ko (I have cursed my neighbor many times). Nagsusumpasumpā akó sa kapidbāhay ko (I have cursed [slandered] my neighbor times without number).

(b) Mag and the doubled root in certain cases signify the performance of an act and its opposite. Verbs expressing an unsteady motion or quick change of position are also formed in a similar manner. (c) In the present tense nag may be dropped, being replaced by the reduplicated initial syllable of the primitive root. Some um verbs have this form also. Ex.(b):

To pass.

To go or come out.

To turn over.

To stagger; to reel.

To shift about; to change continually; to turn over continually.

To wander about aimlessly. (um).

To stagger.

To tiptoe about; to walk on tiptoes.

To bend over.

To move (c).

To walk with the head on one side (c).

Dumaan. Magdaan, to pass many times or by many. Magdaandaan, to pass and repass many times. Daanán, a made road. Di madaanan, impassible. Makaraan, to be able to pass. Magparaan, to allow to pass Ex.: Paraanin mo akó (let me pass). Hindi ko pararaanin hangan di mo akó bibigyán nang kaunting túbig (I will not let you pass until you give me a little water). Daan also means "hundred.

Lumabás. Maglabás, to take out. Maglabaslabás, to go out or come in (many times).

Magbaligtad. Magbalibaligtad, to turn over. Ex. (c): Babalibaligtad ang may sakit sa hihigán (the sick man is turning over and over in Magbalingbáling. Babalingbáling yaong táuo, that man yonder is reeling. Magpapagbalingbáling, to be staggering from walking, etc. Ex.: Pinapagbabalingbáling mo akó nang paghánap sa iyó (I am ready to fall from looking for you. Syn.

Magpalingpáling.
Magbilingbiling. Ex.: Bibilingbiling mandin siyá (he is shifting about). Bibilingbiling ang loob ko (I have my doubts). Bibilingbiling ang my doubts). Bibilingbiling ang may sakit sa hihigán (the sick man is twisting and turning in bed).

Sumulingsáling. Susulingsáling siyá (he is wandering about aimlessly). Magsuraysúray, Šusuraysúray siyá? (Is he staggering?) Opô, ang lasing ay susuraysúray kung lumákad (yes sir, a drunken man staggers when he walks).

Tumiad. Magtiadtiad, to tiptoe about much. Titiadtiad akó (I am walking about on my tiptoes).

Umúkod. Magúkod, to bend over Maukod, to be bent over. much. Magukodúkod, to walk bent over Uukodúkod siyá or waveringly. (he walks bent over). Uukodúkod yaong matanda (that old person walks haltingly).

Kumibô.Magkibokibó, much.

Magkilingkiling. Iyang batà'y kikilingkiling kung lumákad (That child holds the head on one side when walking).

To wabble (c).

Kuminday.Magkindaykinday, wabble much. Syn. Magkindingkinding.

V. Mag is also used to express personal actions which may be dual or plural in character, reciprocity or mutuality being implied. If the plurality is to be intensified, the root is repeated, subject to the general rule for polysyllabic roots. Ex.:

To quarrel; to fight.

To assemble (purposely.)

To assemble; to meet (purposely).

Magbabag. Ang pagbabag, the act of quarreling. Mapagbabag, quarrelsome person. Ang babagin, the person quarreled with.

Magpúlong. Ex.: Nagpupúlong ang mañgá maginoo sa bayan (the "principales" of the town are assembling). Anó ang pinagpulongan kanila! (Why have they Ang ipinagpúlong nilá'y met?) nang pagusapan ang pagdáting nang gobernador-general (The purpose of their meeting was to talk over the coming of the governorgeneral).

Magtipon. Tumipon, to join (one). Magkatipon, to meet or assemble by chance (as a street crowd). Ex.: Nagkatipon ang mañgá táuo sa báhay ko (Some people have happened to meet in my house). Ang kati-punan, the assembly. Also the popular name of the well-known revolutionary society, the K. K. K. Ex.: Ang pinagkakatipunan nang mangá maruránong (The meetingplace of the learned people—i. e., of learned societies, etc). Hourg kang sumama't hindi nababagay sa isang dalagang pumaroon sa pinagkakatipunan nang maraming lalaki (Do not accompany [him, her, or them] because it is not proper for a girl to go where there is a meeting of many men).

Other verbs of this nature, all of which have been mentioned before, are maghiwalay, to separate mutually; magpisan, to associate; magkità, to see each other; magsama, to accompany each other; magtalo, to argue; and magúsap, to converse; to litigate.

VI. The distinction between plurality, intensity, etc., and mutuality, reciprocity, etc., is sometimes made by a change of accent. Ex.:

To approach (one).

To look at.

Lumápit. Maglápit, to draw near. Maglapit, to approach mutually. Malápit, near. Malápit siyá sa ákm (He is a relative of mine).

Kumità. Magkità, to look at each other. Magkità, to look at many things; or to look at intently.

VII. Mag verbalizes reciprocal actions of a nature admitting competition or rivalry, provided that no special emphasis is placed upon the contention. Ex.:

To become reconciled (two).

Tostir, mixing at same time; to shake.

Magbati (also to speak in a friendly way). Magpabati, to become reconciled (many).

Humalo. Ang haloin, what shaken; stirred. Maghalò, to mix two (or more) things together. Ang ihalò, what mixed. Ang haloan, the mixing place, etc. Ang hinald, what shaken (past). Ang ihinalò, what mixed (past).

VIII. Voluntary reciprocal actions of certain classes are also conjugated with mag prefixed to the root and an (han) (nan) suffixed. Ex.:

To mock; jeer at.

To suffer; to endure.

To kick.

To curse.

To help; to aid (another).

Magbiró. Magbiroan, to mock each Makipagbiroan, to mock other. greatly; to jeer at another viciously. Birobiró, mapagbiró, palabiró, all stand for degrees of being a jester, etc. Magpalabiro, to jest with a good deal. Tauong biro, an inconsiderate person.

Dumalitd. Magdalitaan, to suffer for each other, or mutually. Magpa-kadalidalita, to suffer intensely. Mapagdalita, sufferer. Kadalitaan, suffering. Di madalità, intolerable; insufferable.

Sumikad. Magsikad, to kick much. Magsikaran, to kick each other.
Manikad, to kick habitually. Also magsumikad, to work with rapidity.
Synonyms for kicking: Tumadyak, magtadyak, magtadyakan, tumindak, magtindak, magtindakan.

Sumumpá. Ang sumpain, who or what cursed. Ang isumpá, the reason or cause of cursing. Magsumpá, to curse much; also many at same time. Ang pagsumpain, who or what cursed thus. Ang ipagsump4, the cause or reason for cursing thus. Magsumpaan, to curse each other. Manumpa, to curse habitually; also to take an oath. Ang palasumpa, the habitual curser; also the witness. Ang panunumpa, habitual cursing, or the oath taken. Ang panumpaan, the person administering the oath; also the place. Ang ipanumpa, the testimony given; also what sworn habitually.

Tum'ulong.Magtulong, to help another much. Magtulongan, to help each other. Manulong, to help another often. Manulongan; magpanulongan, to help each other much or often. Ang katúlong, the aid; assistant; helper.

To use insulting or indecent language; to say such words. Magtungayao. Magtungayauan, to abuse each other thus. Manungayao, to abuse or insult thus continually or habitually. Mapagtungayao, abuser; insulter.

Among other verbs of this description may be cited magkagatan, to bite each other; magibigan, to like each other; magpaloan, to cudgel each other; magsintahan, to love each other; magsunoran, to follow each other; and magtauanan, to laugh at each other. All of these have been mentioned before.

IX. In the use of mag to verbalize actions admitting reciprocity, care is necessary in noting their nature and the intent and purpose for which the actions may be executed, as there are local differences in this respect. Reciprocal verbs require an object which returns the action. (A) Thus, mag prefixed and an suffixed with a root which admits competition expresses rivalry. (B) If the action requires an object and rivalry is to be expressed, the suffix an should be repeated.

To jump.

To look.

To push; to shove off (as a boat).

Lumoksó. Magloksó, to jump much or by many. Magloksóhan, to jump in competition. (This verb has already been explained.)

Tumingin. Magtingin, to look at much or by many. Magtinginan, to look at each other. (Heretofore explained.)

Tumúlak. Magtúlak, to push hard or by many. Magtulakán, to push against each other. Magtulakanan, to push in rivalry or competition.

X. Mag and the reduplicated root form intensive reciprocal verbs which can only be distinguished from diminutives, verbs of feigning, mockery, imitation, etc., by the context. As usual, polysyllabic roots repeat the first two syllables only. Ex.:

To embrace.

Yumákap. Magyákap, to embrace each other; to tie up to a post. Magyakapyakapan, to embrace each other warmly; also means "to embrace a little, to pretend to embrace, to imitate embracing," etc.

Other verbs already cited are magabutabutan, to reach many things; to pass many things from hand to hand, etc.; maghatidhatiran, to send to each other, etc., and magtingintinginan, to look at each other closely; to pretend to look, etc.

to look, etc.

XI. Nga may also be infixed with mag, forming mangag, the particle thus made imparting the idea of great plurality when prefixed to a root. Ex.:

To converse.

Magúsap. Mañgagúsap, to converse (as a great crowd).

XII. Roots with mag may be used both with and without an object, the meaning varying more or less in such cases. Ex.:

To divide into equal parts.

Bumahági, Magbahági kayó! Disperse! Magbahági kayó nitong salapî (divide this money).

XIII. Movement caused by an outside agency is expressed by mag. As will be remembered, self-movement is expressed by um (Par. XI, um). Humango, to pull out, take out, etc., is an exception to the rule. Ex.:

To fell trees; to blow trees down (as the wind).

To part from another; to go to a dis-

To rise (voluntarily, as a bird).

Magbual. Ang bualin, the tree felled. Ang ibual, the person felling, or wind. Angbualan, the place. Ang pamual, the instrument, i. e., ax. Lumayô.

Lumayò, to remain left far away (by another). Maglayò, to part (two); also to remove anything to a distance. Malayò, distant; far.

Tumáas. Magtáas, to raise; to lift up. Matáas, high; tall; noted. Kataasan, height. Kataastaasan, extreme height.

Among other verbs of like nature, which have already been explained, are magalis, to take away; maglapit, to draw something near; magpanaog, to take or let anything down stairs or a ladder; magpanhik, to take anything upstairs or up a ladder, etc.; magsilid, to put anything in or into; maglayo, to set up; and maglindig, to stand anything upright.

XIV. Bodily voluntary actions affecting one's self only, or those permitted to be done, are expressed with mag. Those actions of like nature performed upon another take um (Par. XII, um). Ex.:

To whip one's self (as in penance).

Maghampás. Humampás, to whip another. Magpahampás, to allow one's self to be whipped, etc. Pahampás, to consent to be whipped. Ex.: Houag kang pahampás sa sinoman (don't let anyone whip you).

Other verbs following this rule are fully explained in Par. XII under um.

XV. As has been noted may expresses for the indefinite the idea of losing control, as um expresses the idea of acquiring the same. What is lost control of is expressed in the definite with i, combined with in for the past and other tenses where necessary. For the aid of the memory it may be said that verbs of throwing away, throwing at, etc., sowing, scattering, pouring out, mixing, placing, putting, giving, and selling follow this rule.

To throw away. To throw or dash down. To throw at (as with a rock).

To throw at; to pelt.

To throw up (much). To scatter rice seed.

To scatter in the air; to emit.

To scatter seed.

To transplant.

(Already explained.) Magtapon.(Already explained.) Maghúlog.

Magpukol. Ang puklin, what thrown at, or stoned. Ang ipukol, what thrown.

Sapin. Magsapin, to wear shoes; also to line.

Tapis. Magtapis, to put on or wear an apron.

XX. Mag generally governs all Spanish, English, and other foreign words not incorporated into the language.

To play baseball.

To gamble.

Magbesbol.Ex.: Nagbebesbol ang mañgá batà (the boys [children] are playing baseball.)

Maghugal (from Span. jugar). Sugal is the usual term. Laro is the native word and means, like the Spanish, either to play or to gamble.

XXI. Roots denoting officials may take mag to express the discharge of duties pertaining to the office named. Ex.:

To be governor.

To be mayor (presidente). To be a councilman.

To be secretary.

To be treasurer.

To be prosecuting attorney.

Maggobernador. Magpresidente. Magconsejal. Magsecretario. Magtesorero.Magfiscal.

XXII. Mog, prefixed to abstracts beginning with ka and ending in an, signifies to do what is expressed by the abstract. Such words are used only in the infinitive, and should be clearly distinguished from those roots prefixed by the particle magka, which lack the suffixed an with the in-definite infinitive. Ex.:

To do deeds of virtue or justice.

To do right.

Magbanalan (from kabanalan, virtue, justice).

Magkatuiran (from katuiran, right, justice). Ex.: Hatolan mo silá nang katuiran (Advise them what is right).

To act chastely or in a cleanly man-

To behave obscenely.

Magkalinisan (from kalinisan, cleanli-

Magkahalayan (from kahalayan, obscenity).

XXIII. With adjectives formed by prefixing ma to the root, mag signifles to assume or boast of what is expressed by the adjective, if the meaning permits such assumption or boasting. In some cases mag means to regard as signified by the adjective. Ex.:

To boast of good judgment.

To boast of knowledge.

To boast of beauty.

Magmabait. Ex.: Nagmamabait si Juan (Juan boasts of his good judgment [or prudence]). Ma-bait, judicious, prudent. agmarúnong. Ex.: Nagmamarú-Magmar'unong.nong si Andrés (Andrés boasts of his knowledge). Marunong, wise, learned (from dunong). Karunongan, wisdom, knowledge.

Magmarikit. Ex.: Nagmamarikit si Biangoy (Maria boasts of her beauty). Mariku, pretty (from beauty). Marikit, pretty (from dikit). Dumikit, to grow pretty. Magdikit, to beautify.

To boast of elegance, beauty.

To boast of bravery; to swagger.

Magmagandá. Ex.: Nagmamagandá si Loleng, Dolores (Lola) boasts of her elegance; beauty. Magandá, elegant, beautiful. Kagandahan, elegance, beauty.

dahan, elegance, beauty.

Magmatápang. Ex.: Nagmatápang si Faustino (Faustino boasted of his bravery; or Faustino swaggered). Matápang, brave. Katapañgan, bravery.

XXIV. If an action does not admit of boasting, mag used with a ma adjective denotes becoming, growing, etc., what may be signified by the adjective. The definite particle in is generally suffixed to the roots in these cases. Ex.:

To become forgetful.

To grow infirm.

Magmalimotin. Lumimot, to try to forget. Makalimot, to forget. Malimot, forgetful. Ang nalimotan, what forgotten. Malilimotin, a forgetful person. Kalimotan, forgetfulness.

Magmasaktin. Ex.: Nagmamasaktin siyá (He isgrowing infirm). May sakit, to be ill. Masasaktin, an infirm, sickly person. Sumakit, to feel pain anywhere. Ang sakitan, the seat of pain. (See Par. XXVI).

XXV. Verbs with mag are made diminutives by repeating a bisyllabic root or the first two of a longer one, and suffixing an, han, or nan, as required. Ex.:

To write a little; to scribble.

To cry a little; to snivel.

To nibble.

Magsulatsulatan (from súlat.). (Already used).

Magiyakiyakan (from iyak). Ex.: Nagiiyakiyakan iyang batang iyan, that child is sniveling.

Magkainkainan. (Already used.)

XXVI. The same form as the above also signifies feigning, imitation, mockery, playing at, etc. Both these and those mentioned in Par. XXV can only be distinguished by the context from intensive reciprocal verbs formed in the same way. (See Par. X).

To affect virtue, i. e., to play the hypocrite.

To play at building houses (as children).

To play at biting (as dogs).

To malinger; feign illness.

To tempt a little or to pretend to tempt.

To sham insanity.

To feign deafness.

Magbanalbanalan (from banal). Ex.: Nagbabanalbanalan siyá (He is a hypocrite).

Magbahaybahayan (from báhay). (Already used.)

Magkagatkagatan (from kagat). (Already used.)

Magsakitsakitan (from sakit). Ex.: Nagsasakitsakitan ka (you are malingering).

Magtuksotuksohan (from $tuks\acute{o}$). (Used before.)

Magululululan (from úlul). Umálul, to drive another crazy. Maúlul, to become insane. Ang ikaúlul, the cause of insanity. Kaululan, insanity.

Magbingibingihan (from bingi). Ex.:

Houag kang magbingibingihan
(Don't try to sham deafness).

XXVII. Some um verbs admit prefixed mag, the combination denoting the action to be executed with earnestness, endeavor, enterprise, etc. (b) Some roots with make also take the prefix mag, with the same signifi-The infinitive form of the root with um or maka is always retained. Ex. (a):

To make haste.

To force, oblige, compel.

To exert one's self; to work efficiently.

To follow closely, etc. To be able to move to compassion. (b)

To be able to shame greatly. (h)

To be able to placate another; to supplicate.(b)

Magdumali (from dumali, to do quickly). Madali, quickly. Magmadali, to do something quickly. (Idiom.) Magdumaling árao, a short while.

Magpilit. In Manila, pumilit. Magpumilit, to endeavor.

Magsákit. Sumákit, to oblige another to work; to use force toward an-Magsumákit, to exert greatly for the carrying out of an object. Ex.: Ang tauong nagsusu-makit matutu nang mabubuting kaasalan, ay igagálang nang lahat (the man who exerts himself greatly to learn good manners will be respected by everyone). (Sumákit regarded as a new root.)

Magsumunod. (Already explained.) Magmakaauà. (Already used.) See auà.

Magmakahiya (from makahiya, to make ashamed). Ex.: Bakit mo ipinagmamakahiya ang manga magálang? (What is the reason you cause so much shame to your parents?) Walang hiyû, without shame, shameless. (See Par. VI, under ma.)

Magmakaamoamò (from amò, idea of placating). Ex.: Nagmamakaamoamò ang tauong itó sa inyó (This man is supplicating you). Amò is generally reduplicated, and it will be seen that makaamoamo is regarded as a new root, the ma of maka being reduplicated for the present tense.

XXVIII. Mag also forms nouns indicating plurality, totality, and agency, which have been used many times heretofore. The article is usually prefixed to the compound word. Mag is the antithesis (or opposite in meaning) of ka, which limits the idea to unity.

XXIX. Mag prefixed to noun roots which are generally used with the dual sense denotes such duality without the use of mangá or other particles, which rather indicate plurality. Ex.:

The married couple, the husband Ang magasáua. Magasáua, to marry. and wife.

The brothers-in-law (two).

The two enemies.

The parents; ancestors.

(See also Par. XV, under man.)

Ang magbayáo.

Ang magáway. Magáway, to quarrel with each other.

Ang magulang, from gulang. Kagulangan, ancestry, descent. Gumúlang, to grow old.

The two sisters-in-law.

The betrothed couple; the sweethearts. Ang maghipag.

Ang magibigan. Magibigan, to like each other. (See next paragraph.)

XXX. A root capable of expressing plurality is strictly limited to the dual sense by the insertion of ka between mag and the root. Ex.:

The two friends. The two companions. Ang magkaibigan. Ang magkasama.

XXXI. If plurality is to be indicated with words sometimes used in the dual sense, ka is reduplicated. Ex.:

The friends (several).
The companions (several).

Ang magkakaibigan. Ang magkakasama.

XXXII. Correlative nouns are expressed with mag prefixed to the root of the principal word. (See also Par. XVIII.) Ex.:

Father and child.

Magamá. Maginá.

Mother and child. Father (or mother) -in-law and son

Magbianán.

(or daughter) -in-law. Master and man.

Magpañginoon.

XXXIII. If the second correlative is expressed, especially by a proper noun, jointly with the first, the particle is prefixed to the principal, the subordinate taking the genitive case. Ex.:

John and his father. José and his father-in-law. Magamá ni Juan. Magbianán ni José. Maginá ni Loleng.

José and his lather-in-law Lola and her mother.

XXXIV. Mag denotes totality with some roots of time. Ex.:

The whole night; al! night.

Magdamag. Ex.: Magdamag akong natálog (I slept all night). Gabí is the usual word for night.

The whole day; all day.

Maghapon. Hapon alone means the time from noon until dark.

XXXV. Mag prefixed to roots conjugated with um and mag forms verbal nouns signifying the agent. The first syllable of the root is reduplicated and the article generally used. Ex.:

The thief. The laborer. Ang magnanákao. (Already used.)
Ang magsasaka. Magsaka, to work in the fields.

XXXVI. Mag retains pag with the definite in certain cases, but with these exceptions, which have been pointed out from time to time, the definite of mag roots follows the same rule as the definite of um. (See Par. II, under pag.)

THE DEFINITE PARTICLE "PAG."

I. As true auxiliary verbs are not found in Tagalog, the participle assumes as many forms as there are tenses, the imperative excepted. By prefixing the article of common nouns, ang, "the," or a demonstrative pronoun to the proper tense of a verb a particle is formed which may be translated in several ways, even by a clause in English.

Pag and pagka are commonly used in Tagalog where the idea would be expressed in English by the indefinite particle, but the best way to obtain a clear understanding of the variations to which Tagalog verbal nouns may be subjected is to make a close study of the examples following or referred to. Ex.: To die.

Mamatay. Ang pagkamatay, the act of dying.

To fall.

To eat.

Mahúlog. Ang pagkahúlog, the act of falling.

Kumain. Ang pagkain, the act of eating.

II. Pag (definite) corresponds to mag (definite) in certain cases. As a rule verbs with mag have the same definites as um, except as noted. When pag is prefixed, in is inserted for the present and past tenses, forming pinag. Pag only is prefixed for the imperative and future tenses, in being suffixed at the same time. The first syllable of the root is reduplicated for the present and future tenses. (See the tables.)

III. Pag sometimes expresses place in combination with suffixed an, where an alone is used to express the person who may be the object of the action. (See hanapan and paghanapan, Par. V, the definite.)

(b) This rule also applies where the object takes an instead of in.

To collect; to dun.

Sumingil. Ang singilan, the unpaid debt. Ang pagsingilan, the place of asking for a debt. Maningil, to collect or dun as an occupation or habitually.

IV. The particle pag is also used with the definite when place is directly. expressed in the sentence, but not when implied or metaphorically (figuratively). This use of pag, however, is only with those verbal roots which admit an for the person or object of the action of the verb, and with other verbal roots pag is not used in this sense, even if place be expressed.

To bury; inter.

To endure hardships.

To place.

To embark or travel.

Magbaón. Ang pagbaonan, the burial place. Ex.: Itó ang pinagbaonan nang sundalo (This was the burial place of the soldier).

Maghirap. Ang paghirapan, the hardships. Ex.: Ang bayang pinaghi-rapan nili (The town in which they endured the hardships).

Maglagay. Ex.: Lagyán mo nang tubig itong banga (Put some water Wald akong paglain this vase). lagyán nitong salamín (There will be no place for me to put this mirror).

Sumakay. Ang sakayán or sasakyán, boat or vessel of any kind. Ex.: Itó'y ang bangkang pinagsasakyán nang marami (This is the canoe in which many have embarked).

(b) See also magpulong, "to assemble," and magtayô, "to erect, set up."
 V. Pag is also combined with i definite, forming ipag, ipinag, as a prefix, when the person for whom an act is performed is mentioned. (See Par. VIII, the definite.)

VI. Whenever the sentence expresses plurality of acts or agents, or of feigning or reciprocal actions, pag (and ipag when required) must be used with the definite. The article ang being generally used, gives the compound the idea of a verbal noun in the majority of cases. For examples see Par. IX under the definite.

VII. Pag is retained with the definite of the mag form when roots which differ in meaning with um and mag are used. See Par. X, the definite for examples.

VIII. The participle is formed from um verbs or roots by prefixing pag to the root, the compound preceded by the article or its equivalent.

first syllable of the root is reduplicated for mag verbs or roots. See also under ma, pa, and pan for other forms of the participle.

To teach.

ing.

Um'aral.Ang pagáral, the teach-

To study.

Magáral. Ang pagaáral, the studying.

To descend; to fasten upon.

Hum'ulog.Ang paghúlog, the descending; fastening upon.

To throw or dash down.

Ang paghuhúlog, the Maghúlog.dashing down or throwing down.

IX. Pag sometimes indicates the present tense. Ex.: Pagsabi ko sa kaniyá (as soon as I told him).

X. There is occasionally a tone of menace in its use. Ex.: Paghindi siyá pumarito'y hindi ko siyá babayaran (if he does not come here, I shall not pay him). "If" is generally understood, the idea being a future condition.

XI. Pag, with verbal roots of some kinds, indicates action as transpiring.

Light; clearness.

Liwánag. Ang pagliwánag, the growing light (of the day, etc.). Ang liwánag nang árao, the light of day or of the sun.

XII. For verbal changes, see tables:

THE INDEFINITE PARTICLE "MA."

 The indefinite verbalizing particle ma is used with roots which do not require an object when verbalized, or with those verbs expressing involuntary action. Ma changes to na for the past and present tenses. The first syllable of the root is reduplicated for the present and future tenses. Ma generally expresses a state or condition of being, but there is also a possessive idea of "to have," and hence many roots are made adjectives when prefixed by this particle, as is already familiar to the reader.

 Such adjectives in ma must express intrinsic states or conditions, and states or conditions which may or can be attained by the voluntary effort of an agent can not be expressed with ma.

III. Actions which require an object when conjugated with other particles may be conjugated with ma if they take place unconsciously or by chance on the part of the agent.

IV. The conjugation of roots with ma (na) has naka and maka of the pluperfect and future perfect respectively replaced by na and ma. Na is also repeated after the verb in both these tenses. Some roots beginning with p soften it to m after ma. (See tables for examples.) V. \widetilde{Nga} added to ma forms the particles $na\widetilde{ng}\acute{a}$ and $ma\widetilde{ng}\acute{a}$ used to express plurality when prefixed to a verbal root. $Ma\widetilde{ng}\acute{a}$, as has been seen, is the usual indication of plurality when used as a separate word before nouns, etc. $\mathbf{Ex.}$:

To be hungry,

Magútum. Ex.: Marami nga ang nangagátum (many were hungry). Marami nga ang nangagugutum (many are hungry). Marami nga ang mangagugutum (many will be hungry). The root is gutum, the idea of being hungry.

VI. Ma is used to express actions of an involuntary nature or beyond the control of the subject. A few anomalous words also take ma. Ex.:

To fall.

Ang nahulogan, the person or object on whom anything To fall on the face. To stumble.

To slip; to slide (invol.); (adj.) slippery; slimy.

To stick in the throat; to choke.

To lose one's way.

To go astray.

To loose; to miss; to lack.

To be proper or appropriate.

falls accidentally. Nahúlog siyá, he fell. Ang kahulogan, the place of falling. Ang kahulogán, the meaning (range of expression). Ang kinahulogan, the place where something fell or has fallen. Ang kinahuhulogan, the place where something is falling. Ang kahuhulogan, the place where something will fall. (See index for húlog with other particles.)

Madapá. (Already used.)

Matisod. Ex.: Natisod siyá't nadapá (he stumbled and fell on his face). Saan natisod siyá'! (Where did he stumble?) Iyang batong iyan ang kinatisuran niya (that stone was where he stumbled, or over which he stumbled.

Madulás; marulás. Ex.: Palakarin mo siyáng marahan maká marulás (tell him to go slowly lest he slip).

Mahirin. Ex.: Nahirinan siyá nang tinik, (she [he] was choked by a fish bone).

Maligáo. Ang kaligaoan, the place of being lost.

Malihis. Lumihis, to be away pur-posely. Palihis daan, to go out of the road for any reason.

Mawald. Nawalán akó nang lakás (I lost [or lacked] the strength).

Nawalán siyá nang loob (he lost heart [or the spirit]). Magwalá, heart [or the spirit]). Magwald, to get rid of; to flee; to put out of sight; to conceal anything.

Mamatay. Ang pagkamatay, the act of dying. Ang mamatayán, the mourner; the bereaved. (See Par. XII, in.)

Mabagay. (See index for examples.) This verb is rather anomalous.

VII. (a) Uncontrollable states are generally conjugated with ma. forms are also adjectives in the majority of cases. (b) Acts which are more or less controllable take the particle most suitable to express the degree. If uncontrollable, ma is used. Ex.:

To be angry. To be cold; chilly.

To be terrified.

To be afraid.

To be astonished.

To be hungry.

Magálit. (See index.)
Also adj. Maginauin, a chilly, cold person.

Ang ikagalangtang, Magalangtang.the cause of being terrified.

Matákot. Ex.: Natatákot ka? (Are you afraid?) Matatakotin, a faint-hearted person. (See index.)

Mangagtaua, to laugh (many).
Magagtaua, to laugh much. Makataua or magpataua, to cause to laugh. Matauanin, a laughing, smiling person.

VIII. Unconscious or uncontrollable states of the mind are expressed with ma. Conscious or controllable states are expressed with um or mag. $\mathbf{Ex.:}$

To forget. To forget to do.

Malimot.(Already used.) Malisan. Lumisan, to omit to do (on purpose).

IX. (a) Ma (na) is used to express accidental or internal acts of a destructive nature, or when reference is made to an actual state of destruction. Deliberate acts of destruction take um or mag.

To break up; to split up.

Mabali.Ex.: Nabali ang tungkod (the cane broke). Nabalian siyá nang paá (he dislocated his foot). Magbali, to break up, to split, as wood, cane, etc. Ex.: Baliin mo iyang tubở t akố y balian nang munti (break up that piece of sugar cane and break me off a little).

Mabásag. Ex.: Nabásag ang vaso (the glass was broken). Magbásag, to shatter; break up, as glass, crockery, etc. Nagbásag siyá nang maraming vaso (he broke many glasses [purposely]).

Ex.: Bulok na ang isda Mabulok.(the fish is spoiled now). (See magpa.)

Malagot. Ex.: Malalagot itong sinúlid (this thread will break). Nalagot ang sinúlid (the thread broke). Maglagot, to break, as thread; to tear up, as vegetables, etc. Mapatid. (Already used.)

To part; to break in two.

To spoil; to become putrid.

To break up (from internal causes

To break (int. or acc.).

or accidentally).

To spoil; to be destroyed. To burn up. To dry out.

Masirà. (Already used.) Masinog. (Already expl (Already explained.)

Matuyo. (See index.)

(b) Na following the root with verbs of destruction gives the adjectival idea with "already" or "now." Other actual states are also expressed with the root and na if the contex clearly indicates an actual state of being. (See under básag, bulok, sirà, patay, tapus, tuyô, and yari for examples.)

X. With verbs expressing situation of posture ma (na) indicates the actual state of being in such posture or position, or else the involuntary or unconscious taking of such position.

XII. The use of ma is sometimes governed by reason of the rationality or irrationality of the agent. Ex.:

To be upright.

Matayő. (Already used; see index.)

XIII. Maka (naka) is sometimes used in place of ma (na), these particles having many analogies. (See maka, Par. XIX.)

XIV. Other uses of ma have been explained under the adjective, q. v. XV. Ma prefixed and in (hin, nin) suffixed to rocts signifying mental emotions, passions, and involuntary actions form adjectival nouns, which generally require to be expressed in English by an adjective and a noun. Ex.:

A humane person. An irascible person. A loving person. An affectionate person.

A loving person. An obedient person. A weeper; a weeping person. A smiling person. A sleepy person. An affectionate person.

Masasaktín (from sakit). (Contracted root.)

Matatakotin (from tákot). (Intensive degree.)

THE DEFINITE PARTICLES "MA" AND "KA."

 From the fact that ma verbs do not generally require an object, there is little use for some forms of the definite. Every action, however, may have a reason, time, or place, and thus i definite and an definite are to be found, ma being replaced by ka as a rule, and always with i definite. Ka...an, as has been seen, forms abstracts and places, as well as standing for persons and objects of the action. \mathbf{Ex} .:

To be glad; amused.

To die. To be afraid. To stumble. To be deaf.

To be blind.

To be poor.

To be ruined (as in business).

To be lame.

To faint away; to swoon.

To drop off; to drop something accidentally.

Matuà. Ang katuaan, the person or object over which one is glad, etc. Ang ikatuà, the cause of gladness or amusement. Ex.: Katuaan mo ang mangá batà (amuse yourself with the children). where contained. Ex.: Ang mañgá utos nang hokbo'y kinasasaklauan nitong librong itó (the orders [reg-ulations] of the army are contained in this book).

Mautás. lutás. Maglutás, to Var. finish or conclude anything. Magkalutaslutás, to finish completely. Ang kalutasan, the place.

II. Ka is omitted with an when the person affected is meant, and not the place or deliberate act. See mahirin, mamatay, and mawald for examples.

III. Pagka is generally used to form verbal nouns for roots conjugated by ma, although pag may be used with some roots and pagkaka is occasionally found. Ex.: Ang pagkatúlog or ang pagtúlog, the act of sleeping. (See túlog.)

THE INDEFINITE VERBALIZING PARTICLE "MAN."

 This particle, known as the third to Spanish writers on Tagalog, has pan for the definite and is one of the most important of the modifying verbal particles. It admits in, i, and an with the definite.

II. The great attention paid by Tagalog to euphony or smoothness in sounds is well illustrated by the changes demanded of the initial letter of a root when man (pan) is prefixed. This grammatical peculiarity is found most fully developed in western languages, in Irish and Scottish Gaelic, in which it is known as "ellipsis." English has this tendency to a slight degree, as shown by a, an, according to a following vowel or consonant \mathbf{sound} .

III. When preceded by man the following changes take place in initial latters of roots, the final n of the particle being either dropped or modified. B and P to M.

K (and hard C or Q) to Ng.

S, T, and D (generally) to N. M, N, and \widetilde{Ng} cause final n to drop out.

A, I, O, U modify n to ng.

IV. Man has nan for the present and past tenses, the first syllable of the root being reduplicated for the present and future tenses. There is a I and a II pluperfect tense, the former adding na to the past tense and the latter prefixing naka to the root. The future perfect has also two forms, the first formed by adding na to the future tense, and the second by prefixing make to the root. The present participle (verbal infinitive) is formed by prefixing pan to the root, the first syllable of which is reduplicated. The use of the definite particles in, i, and an follows the general rule.

To ridicule; mock; scoff; hoax; abuse, etc.

To give much; to lavish.

To buy much.

To be nauseated or disgusted.

Manlibak. Ang libakin, what or whom ridiculed, abused, etc. Ang libakan; also ang mapaglibak, the scoffer, hoaxer, mocker, etc. For indef. with man see tables. Ex.: Bákit ka nanlilibak sa kaibigan mo? (Why are you ridiculing your friend?) Syns. Uroy; uyam, uyao, and tiyao.

Mamigay (from bigay). For definite with i see index, also the tables.

Mamili (from bili). For definite with in see tables.

Mandiri. For definite with han see tables.

V. Man is used to express plurality of acts rather than of persons with those roots which denote the simple action with um or mag. With some roots of colors man denotes intensity, and with some other roots indicates continuousness. It is essential for these ideas that the meaning shall not be changed by man from what it is with um or mag.

To bear fruit; to be full of fruit.

Mamusaksak (from busaksak). Ex.: Namumusaksak itong punonglukban (this lukban tree is full of fruit).

XV. Some roots have differing meanings with um, mag, and man. In some cases the variation is great, but in others little or none. Man, however, looks to the effect or result more than to the simple action, which is expressed by um or mag. The examples will best show these differences and resemblances. Ex.:

Words differing in each case:

To teach.

Umáral. Magáral, to study. Mañgáral, to preach. (See index: áral; also talo and salamín.)

Words agreeing with um (if used) and man; but differing with mag:

To shake (as a tree to get the fruit).

Gumilalás; mangilalás. Ex.: Aking pinangigilalasan ang karikitan nang mangá bituin sa lángit (I admire [my admiration is] the beauty of the stars in the sky).

Humilá; manhilá. (See index: hilá.) Lumoglog; manloglog. (See also index for libak, idea of ridiculing, etc.)

Words differing with um and man, mag being little used:

To afflict.

To kill.

Dumaig (from daig). Manaig, to overcome; to surpass; to vanquish. Pumatay. Mamatay, to die. (See index: patay.)

XVI. Some few words which do not admit of frequency have the simple idea with man. Others are generally used with the particle in a seemingly arbitrary manner. Ex.:

To bear a child.

To die.

Mañganak Mamatay.

The following are arbitrary:

To allow light to pass (as glass or anything transparent).

To feel nauseated.

To have; to possess.

To originate from; to come from; to descend from; to arise.

Ang pintasin; ang pintasán; ang mapamintás, the critic; the fault-finder; complainer. Ang pamintasán. who or what found fault with. Ang pagpintasán, who or what found much fault with. (See also index: tilawa, to confide in.)

XVII. Although pan, the definite corresponding to man, generally has a verbal meaning, there are several instances in which pan, prefixed to a root, signifies an instrument, utensil, or article. These roots then admit, although they do not always require, the euphonic changes, as have already been explained in Par. III. Ex.:

The razor.

The auger.

The mop.

Ang pañyáhit (from mañyáhit). (See index: áhit.)

Ang pamutas (from bútas). Magbútas, to bore; to make a hole in. Ang pañguskus (from kuskus). Ku-Ang pangúhit (from gúhit). Gumúhit, to line, mark, or paint.

Ang pamáhid (from pumáhid, to rub; to clean).

Ang pamukpuk (from pumukpuk or magpukpuk, to strike).

Ang panúlat (from manúlat, to write, [for a living]). (See index: súlat.)
Ang panalí (from talí). Magtalí, to tie, fasten, bind.

XVIII. With names of the days and nouns like "arao" (day) pan \mathbf{Ex}_{\cdot} : denotes something used daily or on the day named.

Something for daily use.

Ang pangáraoárao. (Noun reduplicated.)

Manaáhít (from áhit), usually Mañg-

Something for use on Mondays. Ang panlúnes.

XIX. In like manner, man, with the reduplicated initial syllable of the root, indicates the habitual agent with those roots capable of denoting occupation, trade, or profession. It may also be used with some other roots. In some cases the particles are repeated with occasional euphonic

The following have a simple reduplication:

Barber.

Hunter (with gun).

Sailor. Physician. Reaper. Weaver.

Tinsmith, plumber, etc.

Sawyer.

Writer; clerk.

Spinner.

Tailor; seamstress. Winner; conqueror. Rescuer; redeemer.

Tempter.

añgáhit in Manila. Mamamaril (from baril). Mananágat (from dágat). Mangagamot (from gamot). Mangagapas (from gapas). Manhahabi (from habi). Humabi, to weave. Manhihinang (from hinang). Huminang, to solder. Manlalagarì (from lagarì). (See index.) Manunúlat (from súlat). Manunúlid (from súlid). Mananahî (from tahî). Mananalo (from talo). Manunubós (from tubós). Tumubós, to rescue, to redeem (simple act).

Manunusksó (from tuksó).

In the following examples the root as conjugated with man has the initial syllable of the new word inserted between the ma and the ng of the particle. Ex.:

Hunter with dogs or hounds.

Fisherman.

Mañgañgáral (from mañgáral, to preach). Mangangaso (from mangaso, to hunt with dogs).

Mangingisda (from mangisda, to fish for a living).

XX. With weights, measures, and similar nouns, man prefixed signifies "to each," or "apiece," amounts as may be denoted by the noun. under the numerals.)

XXI. With many roots man signifies a resemblance to what may be denoted by the root, which is reduplicated. Ex.:

Hurricane; typhoon.

Anger.

Bagyó. Ex.: Manbagyóbagyó itong hangin (This wind seems like a typhoon). Naglalayag silá'y bina-gyó silá sa dágat (They were coasting and were caught at sea by a typhoon). Gálit. Ex.

álil. Ex.: Mangálitgálit yaong pañguñgúsap (That way of talk-ing resembles anger).

THE INDEFINITE PARTICLE "MAKA."

 This particle (naka in the past and present) has two distinct meanings, the first being that of cause and the second that of power, ability, etc. For this reason there are two definites, that corresponding to the idea of cause being ka, and that to the idea of power being ma (na).

In both cases the true pluperfect and future perfect tenses are formed by na following the verb as existing in the past and future tenses, respectively. The idea of cause is indicated by maka with roots denoting conditions, torts (wrongs), and betterments, which have only one definite; that with i, which has in with the past and present tenses, forming ika, ikina. and ikina also indicate time (not tense) in certain cases. (See index.)

II. The difference in syntax between these maka verbs in the sense of cause and all others must be noted. In the definite these verbs have the agent in the nominative and the recipient or object of the action in the In the indefinite the agent is in the usual nominative also, but the recipient or object takes the accusative, which is invariably preceded by sa (never by nang). This use of sa is also found with some other verbs.

III. Mag and man roots retain the definite forms pag and pan when conjugated with maka, as will be seen from examples.

To be able to learn or study.

Makapagáral. Ex.: Nakapagáral akó (I was able to study). Nakapa-gaáral siyá (He [she] is able to study). Makapagaáral silá (They will be able to study). Hindi akó makapagaáral (I shall not be able to study). Napagáral ko ang iáral (I was able to learn the lesson). Napagaáral niyá ang iáral (He [she] is able to learn the lesson). Mapagaáral nilá ang iáral (They will be able to learn the lesson).

Makaáral. Ex.: Nakaáral akó (I was able to teach). The other tenses, both of the indefinite and the definite are formed in the same way.

Makapañgáral. Nakapañgáral akó (I was able to preach). Naka-pañgañgáral siyá (He is able to preach). Makapañgañgáral siyá (He will be able to preach). The definite is formed in the same way as with pagáral.

IV. Roots verbalized by maka reduplicate the first syllable of the root in the present and future tenses. In some districts the second syllable of the particle is reduplicated, but this is a provincialism. Ex.:

To cause damage.

To be able to teach.

To be able to preach.

Makapanganyayà (from anyayà and pan). See index.

Makabalisa.

To cause anguish.

Makabusog.

To cause satiety.

To beautify or adorn.

To cause disgust.

To do good. To hinder. To adorn; to embellish.

To cause relief.

To cause sadness. To hinder. To cause another to tremble with To cause to tremble with cold or fear. To cause or do evil.

To cause disgust; weariness; annoy-To dazzle (as the sun or lightning). To cause anxiety. To cause nausea. To wound (lit., to cause to be wounded). To cause to be set afire. To cause loathing (as food). To cause fear. To cause laughter. To cause pleasure.

(weapon). Makabuti. Bumuti, to grow hand-(See buti in index.) some. Makadimárim \mathbf{or} makarimárim. Mandimárim, to disgust. Ex.: Nandimárim akó sa pagkain niyá (His manner of eating disgusted Makagaling. (See index: galing.) Makagambalà. Makagandá. Ex.: Ang kahinhina'y nakagagandá sa mañga dalaga (Modesty is a beauty in girls). (Def.): Ang kahinhinan ay siyang ikinagagandá nang mañgá dalaga. Makaginháua. Ex.: Makaginháua sa inyo ang gamot (Let the medicine relieve you). Nakaginháua sa akin ang gamot (I was relieved by the medicine). Nakagiginháva sa kaniyá ang gamot (He is being re-lieved by the medicine). Makagiginháua sa inyó ang gamot (You will be relieved by the medicine). Ang pagkaginháua, the relief (act). Makahápis.(See index: hápis.) Makalibang. (See index: libang.) Makapañgilábot (from kilábot and pan). Kakilakilábot, horrible. Makapanginyig. (See index: kinyig).

bow

Makasamá. Makasasamá, noxious; malignant. Also future tense. Ex.: Houag mong kanin itong buñgá't makasasamá sa iyó (Don't eat this fruit, because it will injure you [be noxious to you, indef.]). Ang ikinasasamá nang def.]). Ang ikinasasama nang áking loob ay ang kaniyang pag-mumurang walang tigil (What puts me in bad humor is his everlasting slandering [lit., The cause of my bad humor is his slandering without cessation, def.]). Sumamá, to become bad or evil. (See index: samá.)

Makasauà.

Makasilao.(Syn: pulag.) Makasúkal. Makasuklam.Makasúgat. (See index: sugat.) Makasúnog. (See index: súnog.) (Syn. sunok.)

Makasuyà. (See index: tákot.) Makatákot. (See taua: index.) Makataua. (See index: tuà.) Makatuà.

V. The indefinite forms will be clearly seen by the conjugation of makaginháua in the preceding paragraph, there being no irregularities and there is but one definite with ka, forming ika as a prefix to the root for the infinitive and future and ikina for the past and present tenses, in being incorporated in the latter cases. For the conjugation of this definite see hapis in index.

VI. Prefixed to roots denoting actions make signifies power or ability to perform what may be denoted by the root. Roots which are conjugated in the simple idea by mag or man retain pag or pan before the root in all tenses.

VII. Ma is the corresponding definite to maka potential, and when used with the idea of attraction toward, etc., suppresses in completely. Ma becomes na for the past, pluperfect, and present tenses. Pag and pan are retained with those roots requiring it to preserve the meaning, as explained in the preceding paragraph. The definites with i and an also exist. The particle i is inserted between the particle ma (na) and the root, contrary to its use with ka, where it is prefixed to the latter particle. Ex.:

To be able to go away.

To be able to teach.

To be able to do or make. To be able to take.

To be able to go or come out.

To be able to walk; march; etc.

To be able to write.

Makaalis. Makapagalis, to be able to take away.

Makaáral. Makapagáral, to be able to learn or study. Ex.: Napagáral ko ang iáral (I was able to learn the lesson). Napagáral na ko ang iáral (I had been able to learn the lesson). Napagaáral ko ang iáral (I am able to learn the lesson). Mapagaáral ko ang iáral (I shall be able to learn the lesson). (See áral in index.) To be able to preach, makapañgáral.

Makagawa. (See index: gawa.)
Makakuha. With idea of attraction toward, in is suppressed. Ex.: Nakuha ko iyang bunga (I was able to take that fruit). Nakukuha niya iyang bunga (He [she] is able to take that fruit). Makukuha ko iyang bunga (I shall be able to take that fruit). (See also index: kuha.)
Makalabas. Makapaglabas, to be able to take out. (See index: labás.)

Makalákad. (See index: lákad.) Ex.
with maka (indef.): Nakalákad akó
(I was able to walk). Nakalalákad siyá (He is able to walk). Makalalakad silá (They will be able to walk).

Makasúlat. With i inserted between ma (na) and root with definite. Ex.: Naisúlat ko itong panúlat (I was able to write with this pen). Naisusúlat ko itong panúlat (I am able to write [can write] with this pen). Maisusúlat ko itong panúlat (I will be able to write with this pen). Bukas maisusúlat ang súlat na ipadadalá mó sa iyong amá sa Maynilà (To-morrow I will be able to write the letter which you will have to send to your father in Manila). Aalís akó nang maisúlat na niyá ang iniutos ko sa kaniyá (I will go when he writes down the orders I have given him). index: súlat.)

To be able to run away.

Makatakbó. (See index: $takb\delta$).

VIII. With negative particles the imperative is largely used instead of the present tense, although the meaning is the same as that of the latter, i. e., hindi akong makasulat, I can not write; I am not able to write; instead of hindi akong nakasusulat. The definite is sometimes used in the same way with the negative, and even with the affirmative. Examples: Hindi akong makapagáral (I can not [am not able to] study [or learn]). Hindí mo madampot? (Can't you pick it up [grasp it]?) Hindí ko maipaháyag (from háyag, ma, i, and pa) (I can not reveal it [make it public]). Hindí akó makaluás sa Maynila't akó' y may sakit (I can not go down to Manila, because I am ill). With um this may be expressed hindt akó mangyaring lumuás sa Hindî kayó makapangúsap? (Can't you talk?) Maynilà't akó may sakit. Hindî ko mawika (I can not pronounce it). Hindî ko masaysay (I can not explain it). Hindî ko masabî (I can not tell it).

IX. Maka (naka) with the indefinite and ma (na) with the definite signify to do what is denoted by the root mechanically, casually, involuntarily, or suddenly (occasionally), especially acts of the mind and physical senses.

To smell.

To feel.

To hear.

To taste. To see.

Acts of the mind:

To know (something).

To think.

To comprehend somewhat; to feel; to understand. To understand (naturally).

Makamalay.

Makatalastás. Ex.: Natatalastás ninyó bagá? (Do you understand it?) Walang nakatatalastás (No one understands). Tumalastás, to understand (by an act of volition).

To remember (casually, etc.). To forget.

Miscellaneous:

To like (naturally).

To ascend or go up (cas.).

To enter (casually). To fall asleep.

Makaalaala. (See index: alaala.) Makalimot. (See index: limot.)

Makaibig. (See index: ibig.) Makapanhik. Ex.: Napanhikan ko ang bahay nang kaibigan natin (1 went up by chance into the house of our friend).

Makapások. (See index: pások.)

akatúlog. Ex.: Bungmasa akó'y nakatúlog akó (I was reading Makatúlog. and fell asleep). Ang ikatúlog, the cause or time of sleeping. Ang ipagtúlog, the cause or time of sleeping a great deal.

X. Ma (na) is used in connection with an (sometimes in) to express being overtaken by wind, weather, night, etc., and also to express the casual advent of a season, date, etc.

Some phrases of this nature are used with in only.

The definite only is found.

To be caught out in the sun.

To be overtaken by night.

To be caught in the rain. To be blinded.

To be hot (warm).

To be clouded; turbid. To be overtaken by July.

To be found at Easter.

(See index: árao and init Maárao. for exs.)

Magabi. Ex.: Gagabihin ka sa daan (You will be overtaken by night on the road).

Maulán. (See index: ulán.)

Mabulag. (See index: bulag.) Mainit. Ex.: Naiinitan akó (I am warm). Uminit, to become hot. Maginit, to heat. Magpainit, to allow to become hot.

Malabò.(See index: labb.)

ajulio. Ex.: Kami'y najuliohan sa Tarlac (July found us in Tarlac). Majulio.(Any month may be used in this manner.)

Mapascua; mapaskó. Ex.: Napas-kuhan akó sa Maynilà (Easter found me in Manila).

XI. Maka also signifies the possible accomplishment of a purpose with the indefinite; ma being used with the definite. (Naka; na.) The accomplishment of the end sought is always expressed in the past tense.

To be able to lift.

To be able to overtake by running.

To be able to find. To get by asking. To be able to catch fish.

To be able to pass an examination.

Makabúhat. Makabubúhat, liftable. Ex.: Bubuhatin ko itong bayong kung mabuhat (I will lift this sack if it be liftable).

Makahábol. Humábol, to run after another in order to overtake him (her). Ex.: Hinábol ko siyá'y hindî nahàbol (I ran after him [her] but could not overtake him [her]).

Makahánap. (See hánap: index.) Makahingt. (See hingt: index.)

Makapangisda. Ex.: Ako'y mang-ingisda kung makapangisda (I am going to fish if it is possible to catch any fish).

Makasúlit. Ex.: Sínúlit siyá nang superintendente ay (hindî) nakasúlit To be able to hit with arrows.

(He was examined by the superintendent and passed [did not pass]). Makasusúlit kayó? (Will you be able to pass?) Sumulit, to examine; to give an account of.

Makapanà. Pumanà, to shoot at with bow and arrow. Ex.: Pungmanà siyà sa mangá ibon, nguni't hindi nakapanà siyá (He shot at the birds with bow and arrow, but was not able to hit them).

XII. Maka, correctly used, expresses physical power or ability as a general rule, súkat and mangyari being used to express moral power or By the uneducated, these words are used almost indiscriminately. (See saka and mangyari: index.)

XIII. Maka is also used to verbalize kayá; "perhaps, may be," etc., which is conjugated as in the following examples:

Dili ko makayánang dalhín (I do not know if I will be able to carry it).

Dili akó makakayá ibigay itó sa kaniyá (I do not know if I will be able to give this to him). Wald akong ikakayá (I have no way to do it). Maka-kayá ka bagá bumilí nitó? (Will you be able then to buy this?) Di ko makayanang labanan kayó (I am not able to fight against you [plural]).

Inumin ko, kun makayanan ko (I will drink it, if 1 can).

Bagá, "perhaps, by chance," etc., has a stronger meaning than kayá.

XIV. Maka (ma) is sometimes used in reluctantly admitting a fact or in avoiding too direct an injury to the feelings of another. Ex.: (Indef.) Nakapagnakao siyá (he may have stolen); (Def.) napagnakao niyá itó (he may have stolen this).

XV. Maka is also used colloquially in conversation as follows: Makatanong kayá! (Is there anything more to be asked about it?) Makakità baga? (Is there anything more to be seen?)

A more usual form is made with lalo, "more," and the root with in, viz: Lumalo sa tanongin! (Is there anything more to ask about it?) Lumalo sa kitain! (Is there anything more to be seen?)

XVI. Maka forms certain adjectives in Tagalog, which have the inherent idea of potentiality. These adjectives, which in English are generally formed by the suffixes able and ible or by ful, have three distinct forms in Tagalog.

XVII. (a) Roots expressing qualities which may be felt by the mind are made adjectives by prefixing ka, the casual definite of maka, to the root, which is reduplicated to the second syllable. Ex.: Kaayaaya (aya) "delightful"; kaginhaginháua (ginháua), "wholesome; salubrious;" kaibi-gibig (ibig), "amiable;" kakilakilábot (kilábot), "horrible;" katakottákot (tákot) "fearful; dreadful."

(b) Adjectives of similar meaning are also formed by maka with the future indefinite. $\mathbf{E}\mathbf{x}$.:

Makahihiya (hiya), "bashful;" makamamatay (matay), "mortal" (death-causing); makasisira (sira), "destructive;" makatataua (taua), "laughable;" makatutud (tud), "pleasant, agreeable."

(c) When the roots may express aptitude or inaptitude or facility or difficulty in doing anything; if affirmative the adjective is formed with the future definite of the potential particle ma, and if negative with the imperative ma (without reduplication of the first syllable of the root), which is generally preceded by the negative particle di, "not." Ex.: Makakain, "edible;" di makain, "unedible, uneatable;"

magagawá, "practicable;" di magawa, "impracticable;" maiinum, "potable, drinkable;" di mainum, "undrinkable;" makikità, "visible;" di makità, "invisible;" masasabi, "tellable;" di masabi, "untellable, unspeakable;" manable;" gyayari, "possible;" di mangyari, "impossible;" di mabata, "intolerable;" di makalag, "indissoluble;" di magamit, di malapitan, "inaccessible;" di matiis, "insufferable;" di matingkala, "incomprehensible;" di masalang, "untouchable."

(d) Adjectives of the classes above described take the "tie" ng when united to a following noun or verb if ending in a vowel, but remain unchanged if ending in a consonant. The following verbs take the definite imperative, which is best translated into English by the infinitive with "to." Ex.: Kagalanggalang amá "respected father;" kadumaldúmal tignán, "disgusting to see;" kaayaayang pakiñgán, "delightful to listen to;" madaling gawin, "easy to do or make;" maliwag sabihin, "difficult to say;" mahírap kamtán, "hard to accomplish."

XVIII. Maka may be compounded with mag, resulting in magmaka, denoting the idea of a great or excessive degree of what may be indicated by the root, which is generally reduplicated. (See pag. 27 mag.)

by the root, which is generally reduplicated. (See par. 27, mag.)

Ex.: Magmakaauaauá (auá) "to be able to move to compassion;" magmakagalitgálit (gálit), "to be able to move to anger;" magmamakagalitgálit akó iyang taúo, "that man will be able to anger me;" makagálit, "to cause anger;" magmakahiyá, "to be able to shame greatly" (see par. 27, mag); magmakalumbaylumbay (lumbay), "to be able to move to grief;" nagmakalumbaylumbay akó ang balità, "the notice was enough to move me to grief;" makahumbay "to grief;" makahumbay "to grief; "makahumbay "to grief;" makahumbay "to grief; "makahumbay " grief;" makalumbay, "to cause sadness; to make melancholy;" bákit mo ikinalulumbay ang masasamang balità? or Anó t nakalulumbay sa iyó ang masasamang balità? "Why does the bad news sadden you?"

XIX. Maka (naka) is sometimes used in the place of ma (na) indefinite, the two particles having many analogies. Ex.: Nakabukás ang pintó, "the door is open;" nakalímot siyá, "he forgot;" nakatayô siyá, "he is standing up;" nakaupô siyá, "he is sitting down."

XX. Maká and its synonym baká express fear or apprehension of possible danger, hurt, or injury. They are written as separate words and not as prefixes. Baká is more common. These two words may be best rendered into English by "lest," "for fear that," etc. Ex.: Akó'y nagdalang tákot, baká maringig (I was afraid lest I should be heard.) Houag mong gawin iyan, maka mapahamak ka (do not do that, because you may lose). Houag kang magdaan sa bundok, maka harangin ka nang manga tulisán (do not travel in the mountains, because you might be stopped by the "ladrones"). Humarang, to stop another on the highway. may táuo diyán (lest there be people there).

(b) Makâ also denotes partial resemblance, as in comparing speech, fruit, flowers, etc. Ex.: Makâ Tagâlog ang capitân nang pañguñgúsap (the captain is like a Tagalog in his speech). Makâ bulaklak sa América itong bulaklak nang amoy (this flower is like an American flower in odor). XXI. In addition to the meanings of maka as a verbal particle, it indicates completed verbal action, best translated by the adverb "after" and a verb. Ex.: Makamisa nang paré (after he had said mass the priest—). Makayari nitô'y paroon ka sa—— (after you do this go there

It is also used idiomatically. Ex.: Makasakáling may dungmating, bumili ka nang kakanin (in case anyone should arrive, go buy something

THE INDEFINITE PARTICLE "MAGPA."

 This particle, signifying the ordering to do or make or permitting to be done what is denoted by the root, reduplicates the last syllable of the particle for the present and future indefinite tenses. The definite, pa, being a monosyllable, causes the first syllable of the root to be reduplicated for the same tenses. The definite has all three forms of in, i, and an.

Mag and man roots retain this between magpa and the root. Pag sometimes precedes magpa in the definite form (pagpa).

Sa is generally used before the person commanded.

To order to teach.

Magpaáral. Magpaáral ka kay Pedro, order Pedro to teach. papagáral, to order to study. Magpapagáral ka kay Juan, order Juan to study. Papagaralin mo To order to read.

To order to do or make.

To order to come or go out; (2) to order to take or bring out.

To order to ascend.

To order to go or come down; to order to descend.

To order to get into or enter.

To order to write.

ang iyong anak (order your child to study). Pinapagáral pa akó nang áking iná (my mother ordered me to keep on studying). Magpapangáral (1) to order to preach; (2) to request to preach

(if not competent to order).

Magpabasa. Nagpapabasa ang maestro sa mangá bata (the teacher is ordering the children to read). Magpagawâ. Nagpagawâ akô (Î ordered [something] done or made). Nagpapagawā siyā (he [she] is or-dering [something] to be done or made). Nakapagpagawá akó (I was able to order [something] to be done or made). Magpapagawa akó (I will order [something] to be done or made). Makapagpagawa akó (I shall have ordered [something] to be done or made). The definite with i is: Ipagawa mo itó sa kaniyá (order him to do [make] this). Ipinagawâ ko sa iyô itô (Î ordered you to do [make] this). Ipinagagawâ niyá sa iyó itó (he orders you to do this). Ipagagawa ko sa iyó itó (I shall order you to [make] this). (See index: gawá.) Magpalabás. Magpalabás ka kay Juan (order Juan to get out). Magpalabás ka kay Juan nang damit (order Juan to get the clothes out). Palabasin mo itong aso (have this dog put out).

Magpapanhik. Papanhikin mo ang mangá batà (tell the muchachos to come up). Makapagpapanhik, to be able to order to ascend. Nakapagpapanhik akó (I was able to order to ascend). Nakapagpapapanhik akó (I am able to order to ascend). Makapagpapapanhik akó (I will be able to order to ascend). Magpapagpanhik, to order something brought upstairs, hoisted, etc. Papagpanhikin mo ang mangá batà nang túbig (tell [order] the muchachos to bring up some water). (See index: panhik.)

Magpapanáog. Also means to spend; to use up. Magpapagpanáog, to order something to be brought down. (See index: panáog.)

Magpapások. (For examples see index: pások.)

Magpasúlat. Ang mañgááral ay nagpasúlat sa iyó (indef.); pinasúlat ka nang mañgááral (def.) (the teacher ordered you to write). The definite To order to lock.

To order to sew.

with in is: Pasulatin mo siyá nitong súlat (order him to write this let-The dual (two) is used in the following examples, but they are translated as usual into English. Pinasúlat kitá nitong súlat (I ordered you to write this letter). Pinasusúlat katá nitong súlat (I am ordering you to write this letter). susulatin katá nitong súlat (I will order you to write this letter). (See index: súlat.)

Magpasusì. To lock; magsusì. Susian mo itó (lock this). Houag mo susian itó (don't lock this). hindi nakasusi (this is not locked). Alisin mo ang pakasusi nitó (un-lock this [lit., "release this condi-tion of being locked"]). Susian mo ang pinto (lock the door). Ang isusì, the key. Ang susian, what locked. Ang pagsusi, what locked much, or the act of locking. Ang ipagsusi; what used to lock much with. Susì, derived from Chinese, is distinct from susi, meaning clear, pure, or neat, which comes from the Sanskrit, cuchi.

Magpatahi. Itó ang patahi niyá sa ákin (this is what she told me to sew). (See index: tahî.)

 Magpa reverses the meaning in sentences where an inferior addresses a superior, or in which the subject has no power to command, the particle then meaning "to request, ask," etc. Ex.: Magpagawā ka nitó sa inyong amā "ask your father to do this," not "order your father to do this." Magpaáral kayó pa sa inyong anak sa escuelahan (indef.) or Papagaralin ninyó pa ang anak ninyó sa escuelahan (def.) (let your child study for a while yet at school).

III. The indefinite form will be seen by the conjugation of magpagawa "to order to do or make;" there being but one irregularity of note, viz: In the pluperfect and future perfect tenses naka and maka, with pagpa prefixed to the root and na following, express these tenses, respectively. (See tables for conjugation.)

IV. Pa, the corresponding definite verbal participle to magpa, and formed by dropping the first syllable of the latter, forms the three definites regularly. The examples given in the tables are magpasúlat (súlat), "to order to write" (in); magpagawá (gawá), "to order to do or make" (i); and magpatanim (tanim), "to order to sow" (an).

V. Magpa may be preceded by maka, forming makapagpa, the compound giving the idea "to be able to order to." (See under magpapanhik in Par. I, magpa.)

VI. Magpa also denotes what is suffered willingly or what is done without restraint by others upon the subject; to allow or permit, with those roots which admit such ideas. The context serves generally as a guide to distinguish the idea of "to order to" from "to permit to." Ex.:

To allow deception; cheating.

To allow oneself to be crucified.

To allow oneself to be whipped.

Magparayá (from dayá). (See index: · dayá.)

Magparipá (from dipá). (See index: dipá.)

Magpahampás. (See index:hampás.)

To allow oneself to be flatly contradicted.

To allow one's hair to be combed.

To allow oneself to be slapped.

Magpasuat.

Also "to order to Magpasuklay.comb." (See index: suklay.) Tumampal, to slap. Magpatampal.Magtampal, to slap much.

VII. Magpa, with a root denoting a state or condition resulting from gradual intrinsic action, indicates the purpose of the subject either to accelerate or allow the transition.

To allow to become putrid.

To order to throw down; raze; (2) to allow to fall into ruin.

To allow to become hot.

To allow to become cool; to cool anything.

To allow to dry up or out; to put out to dry.

Houag mong kabulokin Magpabúlok. ang mangá ságing (don't let the bananas rot).

Gumibà, to do away Magpagibà.with; to level; to throw one's self down. Ang ginibà, (1) what thrown down or leveled; (2) what done away with. Maggibà, to throw down many things.

Magpainit (from init). Magpapaginit, to order something to be heated.

(See index: init.)

Palamigin natin ang Magpalamig.arao (let us wait until the day is cooler). Magpalamig ka nang túbig (let some water cool [i. e., put some water out to cool]). Ipalamig mo ang túbig (put the water some-where to cool). Bákit hindi ka nagpapalamig nang túbig? (Why don't you cool some water?) Saan akó magpapalamig nang túbig? (Where shall I put the water to Iyang batalang iyán ang cool?) pagpapalamigán mo nang túbig (let the water cool out there on that porch). Kahapon ay ang ibang silid ang pinagpalamigán ko nang túbig (yesterday I let the water cool in the other room). Magpapaglamig, to order something to be cooled).

Magpatuyô. Houag mong patuyoin ang mangá halaman (don't let the plants dry up). Tuyô na pô (they are dried up already, sir). Hindi ko ñya pinatutuyô (indeed, I am not letting them dry up). Patuyoin mo iyán, dry that or let it dry.

VIII. Magpa is also used to express acts of the Creator; of nature, and of persons beyond the control of the speaker, mainly with the idea of cause. Ex.:

To cause waves.

To cause the flowers to bloom. To cause it to thunder. To rear; bring up (as a child). Magpaálon. Anó ang nagpapaálon sa dágat? (What causes the waves at sea?) Ang hangin (the wind). Magpabulaklak.

Magpakulog.

Magpalakí. (See index: lakí.)

IX. Magpa, used with reference to the effect of such actions as the foregoing, which are beyond the power of a human agent, signifies "to expose to;" "to put in," etc. Ex.:

To expose to the sun; to sun one- Magpaaráo (accent on the last syliaself.

To expose to the wind or air. To expose to the rain.

ble). (See index: árao.) Magpahangin. (See index: hangin.) Magpaulán. (See index: ulán.)

X. Magpa coupled with meteorological phenomena and astronomical occurrences, connected with a human agency, denotes a waiting on the part of such agent until the condition has changed or the event taken place. The context generally serves to give the correct idea. Ex.:

To wait until the typhoon ceases. To wait for a change of wind.

To wait for the day to become cooler.

To wait until the sun (or moon) rises.

To wait for a change (as in bad weather).

To wait until the rain ceases. To wait until daybreak.

Magpabagyó. Magpahangin.

Magpalamig nang árao. (See Par. VII.)

Magpasilang. (See index: silang.)

Magpatilà. Patilain mo muna ang ulán (wait until the rain ceases). The root is tilà, which alone means "to seem." Tilà táuo or anaki táuo (it looks [seems] like a per-Tilà naparoon silá (it seems son). they went there). Tilà napaparito silá (it seems they are coming here).

Magpaulán.

Magpaumaga (from umaga, dawn;" root, aga).

XI. With roots expressing the indefinite idea of what may be given magpa expresses acts which benefit another than the agent. These roots are generally those conjugated primarily with um. Ex.:

To give food; to feed. To send; to forward.

Magpakain. (See index: kain.) Magpadalá. Itó ang padalá niyá sa ákin (this is what he ordered me to bring [carry]). Itô'y padalá sa ákin ni iná (this is what my mother sent [brought] me). Ang ipina-dalá (what was ordered brought [i. e., what was sent]). Magdalá, to carry, bear, bring or take (over). Ang dinalá, what so brought, etc. (See index: dalá.)

Magparamit (from damit). (See index: damit.)

To give something to drink; to water (as animal or fowl).

To put at interest; to invest. To give lodging.

To clothe; to furnish clothing.

To lend willingly.

Magpainum. (See index: inum.)

Magpatubó. (See index: tubó.) Magpatúloy. (See index: túloy.) Magpaútang. (See index: útang.)

There may be mentioned magpakità, to restore the sight.

XII. With roots expressing definites with mag in the primary verbal sense, magpa expresses the idea of compulsion, exaction, or request, as shown by the intrinsic meaning or the context. Definites exist with in, i, and an. \mathbf{Ex} :

To collect taxes; to demand (or col- Magpabuis (from buis, "poll tax," lect) tribute. etc.). Pabuis ko si Pedro nang piso

行の政制

(I asked Pedro to pay one peso in taxes). Isang piso ang ipinabuis ko kay Pedro (one peso was what I asked Pedro to pay in taxes). Itong bayan ay ang pinagpabuisan ko (this town was where I collected taxes). Maghuis, to pay taxes.

To beg; to ask for alms. To ask for a pledge or pawn. Magpalimós (from Span., limosna). Magpasanlà. Sangpisos ang sanlaán ko nitong singsing (I want to pledge this ring for one peso).

XIII. Actions in which the agent has a passive part are also explained by magpa. Ex.:

To hear confession.

Magpacumpisal (from Sp. confesar). Saan naroon ang paré? (Where is the "padre?") Nagpapacumpisal siyá (He is hearing confessions). Magcumpisal, to confess. Magpatauad.(See index: tauad.)

To pardon. To get shaved. To have the hair cut. To have cleaned (as shoes).

Magpagupit. (See index: áhit.) Magpagupit. (See index: gupi (See index: gupit.) Magpalinis. (See index: linis.)

XIV. Magpa also expresses the idea of repeating something many times, or reciting the same much, and sometimes by many. Pagpa is treated grammatically in many cases like magpa—i. e., the last syllable of the particle is reduplicated for the present and future tenses. Ex.: Magpa "we" kayó (All of you say "we" many times). Nagpadiablo akó sa kaniyá (I called him a devil many times). Anó ang ipinagpapadiablo ninyó? (Why do you say devil so much?) Houag ninyong pagpapadiablohan ang kapoua táuo (Don't say devil so much to those around you).

XV. In some cases magpa signifies to do voluntarily what is denoted by the root.

the root. $\mathbf{Ex.}$:

To adorn one's self.

To praise one's self.

Magpamuti (from buti). Nagpapabuti yaong dalaga (That girl is adorning herself).

Magpamuri (from puri). At yaong isa'y nagpapamuri (and that one is [doing the same] for the praise). Ang mahinhing dalaga'y pinupuri nang lahat (A sensible girl is praised by everyone). Kapurihan, praise; honor; fame. Syn.: bunyi.

XVI. Magpa with some datives and all adverbs of place signifies "to go or come intentionally," where denoted by the root, etc. Ex.:

To come to me. To go to you.

To go (come) to the person.

To go to Pedro.

To come here (near by).

To go there.

To go up the river, or up country.

Magpasa ákin. Magpasa inyó. Magpasa táuo. Magpakay Pedro. Magpadini. Magpadoon. Magpa ilaya.

XVII. Mapa, formed by dropping the g of magpa, signifies "to go in some direction naturally or accidentally, and without intention on the part of the subject." I generally precedes the root. Ex.:

To run off or lower (as water).

Mapaibabá. Napapaibabá ang túbig (The water is becoming low [or is running off]). (See index: baba.) To ascend (as smoke).

To fly up in the air (as a bird).

Mapaitaas, Napapaitaasang as 6 (The smoke is rising). Di man makità ang ningas, asó ang magpapaháyag (Although the flame may not be seen, the smoke will reveal it.— T. P., 50).

Mapailandang. Ang bánoy ay napai-landang sa impapauid (The eagle ascended into the clouds).

XVIII. It will be observed that the greater part of the roots verbalized by magpa require i in the definite to express "what is ordered done, given," etc., and in or an in the same form to express "the person commanded," etc. Ex.:

To give food to another. To allow to be punished; or to cause or order to be punished.

To permit to pass.

To give another something to drink; to water animals or fowls. To cause to walk up. To cause or order another to stand Magpakain. (See index: kain.) Magparusa (from dusa). Houagmong parusahan ang walang kasalanan (Do not permit the innocent [not guilty] to be punished).

Magpadaan (from daan, "road").

See index.

Magpainum. (See index: inum.)

Magpalákad. (See index: lákad.) Magpatindig. (See index: tindig.)

XIX. A sense of ordering may be given to roots not having such an idea by inserting a second pa, although it is clearer to use mag with a following infinitive. This second pa (which remains in all tenses) with roots having the idea of ordering signifies to order a person to order another, although simpler forms are generally used. Ex.: Ang capitán ay nagpopainum sa mangá cabayo (The captain orders the horses to be watered); or, Ang capitán ay naguútos uminum sa mañgá cabayo [same meaning]. (2) Magpapasúlat ka kay Juan kay Pedro; or, Magútos ka kay Juan na magpa-súlat siyá kay Pedro (Order Juan to order Pedro to write).

XX. The tendency of Tagalog, like all languages, to simplify itself, is shown by the use of the root with pa prefixed, with the significance of a verbal noun. The agent takes the genitive and the object or person acted upon the dative. Ex.: Pabañgó, "perfume;" pamuti (buti), "holiday or parade appearance;" padalá, "burden or what carried;" pahiyás, "jewel;" pamana, "inheritance;" patago, "what hidden."

Itó ang patago niyá sa ákin (This is what he ordered me to hide). Paútana "credit" tang, "credit."

THE PARTICLE "PA."

 This particle has many affinities with magpa, as will be seen by the examples. It reduplicates the first syllable of the root for the present and future tenses, except when sa is attached to and incorporated with it. With roots of place, which require pasa, the first syllable of the particle is reduplicated for these tenses. Na is prefixed to pa in the indefinite past and present tenses with both pa and pasa. This latter particle should not be confounded with roots beginning with sa conjugated with pa. (See tables:

II. One of the principal significations of pa is to ask or beg for in reference to the subject, while magpa is generally applied under like circumstances to the object. Ex.:

To ask for protection. To ask for mercy or compassion. To ask for shelter or support.

Paamp'on. Paauå. (See index: auà.) Pakupkup. Kumupkup, to press to the breast or shelter under the wings.

To ask for aid, succor, or a favor.

To ask for defense. To ask for help.

Pasangalang. Magsangalang, to aid. favor, or succor.

Patangol. Tumangol, to defend. Pat'ulong.(See tables: túlong.)

III. At times pa signifies "to permit" the action indicated by the root "upon one's self," and sometimes "to ask," as above explained. It denotes greater willingness by the person affected than magpa does. Ex.:

To consent to be deceived.

To ask to be kissed. To consent to be whipped. To consent to be vanquished. To consent to be slapped.

Parayà (from dayà). (See index: dayà.) Pahalik. (See index: halik.) Pahampás. (See index: hampás.)

Patalo. (See index: talo.) Patampal. (See index: tampal.)

IV. (a) With the adverbs of place, and roots expressing place, pa signifies movement to or from what is denoted by the root. (b) With roots of place sa is added to the particle, forming pasa, which bisyllabic particle reduplicates the last syllable of the particle for the present and future tenses. The initial d of the adverbs changes to r after pa. Ex. (a): Parini, "come here;" parito, "come here;" pariyan, "go there;" paroón, "go there." (See index: dini, dito, diyan, doón.) These four adverbs admit the definites i and an. That in i is compounded with ka, forming ika, ikina. In may be used if compounded with magpa, signifying "to order to come or go." (See tables and index: dito.)

Some localities are to be found where the lest sullable of the particle is

Some localities are to be found where the last syllable of the particle is reduplicated with these adverbs of place for the present and future tenses, but this is irregular and incorrect. The practice is unknown to the earlier writers.

The four adverbs which have been considered are also further conjugated with um, making infinitives, etc. Ex.: Pumarini, pumarito, "to come here;" pumariyan, pumaroón, "to go there."

(b) Pasabáhay, "to go to the house." (See tables: báhay.) Pasabákid, "to go to the country" (fields); pasadágat, "to go to sea;" pasailog, "to go to the river;" pasabundok, "to go to the mountains;" pasa América, "to go to America;" pasa Kastila, "to go to Spain." Napasaan siya? (Saan ang tungo niyá?) (Where did he go?) Napatungo sa Maynila (He went

V. Pa also indicates to say what may be denoted by the root, but without the plurality indicated by magpa. Ex.:

To say "yes."

To say "no."

To say "no."

Paóo. Paóo ka! (Say "yes!") Napaóo ka sa kaniyá? (Did you tell him "yes?")

Padilì. Padilì ka! (Say "no") Dilì rin (No, indeed); var. dirì. Ang pinadiri ian; person to whom "no" is being said. Magpadiri; to say "no" repeatedly. Ang pinagdirian; person to whom "no" has been said often.

Pahindî. Pahindî ka (kayê) (Say "no").

Paayao. (See index: ayao.) Padiablo.(See index: diablo.) Pakorukiá.

To say not to wish. To say "devil."

VI. Pa, prefixed to roots denoting bodily positions, forms words expressing the position taken. Ex.:

Lengthwise; lengthways.

To call "chicky-chicky."

Pahabá. Putlin mo itó nang pahabá (cut this lengthwise). Mahabá, long.

Crosswise; crossways. Lying down; prone (position). Lying on the side (position). Lying on the face (position). Lying on the back (position).

On foot; afoot. Seated (position). Pahálang.

Pahigà. (See index: higà.)

Patagilid. Pataob.

Patihayà. (See index: tihayà.) Patindig.(See index: tindig.) (See index: upô.) Paupô.

VII. Pa, prefixed to roots denoting articles which may be bought, sent, carried, sewn, left, lent, etc., forms nouns indicating what affected by the action. In composition these nouns take the nominative, the agent the genitive and the recipient the dative. $\mathbf{E}\mathbf{x}$.:

What brought.

What borrowed or lent (not money).

Padalá. (See index: dalá.) Pahiram. Itó' y pahiram sa ákin nang kaibigan ninyó (this is what your friend lent me).

What left as an inheritance. What sewn.

Pamana. (See index: mana.) Patahi.(See index: tahi.)

VIII. Some roots, such as kain, eating; and inum, drinking, are not clear when used with pa alone in this sense, and are conjugated with both the particle pa and the definite of magpa (pa) forming papa. Ex.: Papakain ka kay Juan (ask Juan to give you something to eat). Papainum ka kay Tomás (ask Tomás to give you something to drink).

IX. Formerly maps, with roots indicating relatives, signified to call others by such names. This custom exists to some degree yet. Ex.: Mapaali, to call "aunt." Mapanuno, to call "grandfather" (or "grandmother").

THE INDEFINITE PARTICLE "MAGPAKA,"

 This particle, which may be analyzed into paka with mag prefixed, generally signifies to do, suffer or voluntarily allow what may be denoted by the root, and has two forms for the definite, pagpaka and paka. Magpaka and pagpaka form the present and future tenses in a peculiar manner. The last syllable, ka, adheres to the root in all tenses, and pa is reduplicated for the present and future. The mag of magpaka changes to nag for the past and present tenses. When paka is used with a root it is not divided, the first syllable of the root being reduplicated for the present and future tenses. Paka also retains pag with verbs conjugated primarily with mag, forming the prefix pakapag. Paka admits in as well as i and an.

Roots conjugated with magpaka may have either a reflexive or transitive meaning, or both, according to the context.

 For the conjugation of roots with magpaka, see the tables: matay, buti, sisi, and áral.

III. Some verbal roots conjugated in the foregoing sense by magpaka are:

To allow one's self to be insulted; Magpakaapí.

patronized.

To humble; humiliate or lower one's self.

To satiate one's self.

Magpakababá. (See index: baba.)

To adorn one's self.

Magpakabusog.Magpakabuti.

Ang kahinhinan ay nagpapakabuti sa dalaga (modesty befits a girl). Ang ipinagpapakabuti nang dalagang iyán ay nang siyá'y mapuri (the reason why that girl is adorning herself is to be admired).

To impoverish one's self-voluntarily.

To improve or reform one's self.

Magpakadukha. Mapakadukhá, come to poverty.

Magpakagaling. (See index: galing.)

6855--05----15

To diminish (voluntarily).

To esteem one's self highly.

To allow one's self to be killed;

(2) to commit suicide.

Magpakamahal.

Magpakamatay.

tauo kusa niye

To despise one's self.
To repent (deeply).
To exert one's self; to make efforts.

To enrich one's self.

Magpakaliit. Maliit, small; little.
Magpakamahal. (See index: mahal.)
Magpakamatay. Nagpakamatay ang tauo kusa niya (the man allowed himself to be killed). Nagpakamatay ang taga Hapón sa kaniyang sarili (the Japanese voluntarily killed himself [committed suicide]).

Magpakasamá. (See index: samá.) Magpakasisi. (See index: sisi.)

Magpakatápang, Tapañgan (pakatapañgin) mo ang loob mo (exert yourself; "brace up"). (See index: tápang.)

Magpakayáman, (See index: yáman.)

IV. As usual, i stands for cause, reason, or instrument of the action with magpaka, and an for the place or the object, according as the verb for the direct object admits it or not for the direct object. Ex.:

To take exact notice.

Magpakatandá. Pakatandaan mo ang sinasabi ko sa iyó (pay exact attention to what I am telling you). (This word should not be confounded with its homonym tandá, idea of age.)

V. The foregoing sense of magpaka generally applies to actions which do not go beyond the subject or to verbs which do not require an object to complete the meaning; but when used with verbs admitting a direct complement other than the subject or capable of voluntariness, magpaka gives greater force or intention to the root. In this signification the particle admits in, i, and an, the reduplication being generally from the first syllable of the root, as paka is the usual form of the definite in such cases. Roots conjugated thus must be capable of expressing the idea of more or less. Pag is retained in this sense with mag roots, forming pakapag or pagpaka, as the case may be, and in certain cases pagpakapag may be formed. Ex.:

To teach earnestly.

To have great prudence. To go very slowly. Magpakaáral. Pakaaralan ninyó ang mañgá batà (try to teach the children earnestly). Magpakapagáral, to study earnestly. Pagpakapagaralan ninyó ang wikang Tagálog (try earnestly to study the Tagalog language). Magpakapañgáral, to preach earnestly.

Magpakabait.

Magpakarahan (from dahan). Magpakarahan kang lumákad (walk very slowly). Pakarahanin mo ang paghila (throw it very deliberately). Dahanan mo iyang gawá mo (do that work of yours slowly [carefully]). Mapakarahan, to slow down; to become quiet. Napakarahan na (it has become quiet already; it has slowed down now). Dumahan, to go away slowly. Magdahan, to go slowly. (See index: dahan.)

To love greatly.

To guard one's self well. To think earnestly, deeply.

To arrange well. To rectify well. To tempt greatly. Magpakagilio. Pinakagigilio kong kapatid na babaye (my dearly beloved sister).

Magpakaingat.

Magpakaisip. Magpakaisipisip, to think very deeply. (See index:

Magpakahúsay. (See index: húsay.) Magpakatuid. (See index: tuid.) Magpakatuksó. (See index: tuksó.)

VI. By reduplicating the root, roots capable of expressing the idea of more or less acquire still greater force or intensity with magpaka. They are generally used in the definite with this construction, and the reduplication does not extend beyond the first two syllables of the root, according to the general rule. Ex.: Magpakadalidalid, "to suffer intensely or to endure greatly." Pakaisipisipin mo, "think intensely." Pakaisipagin, "take the greatest of care; care for it sedulously."

VII. Dropping the ka from paka, there remains pa, which pronounced long and almost as paa, has the same meaning as paka, but should not be confounded with pa (the definite of magpa), pa (the particle), nor with pa, "yet." It is generally used in the imperative. Ex.: Pabuksán mo (open wider [or quicker]). Papalò mo (strike harder). Pataponan mo (throw it with more force [or quicker]). (See index: Bukás; palò; and

VIII. A further use of magpaka with nouns or verbs expressing time is to signify to persevere or remain until such time, doing what may be denoted by the root used. This signification admits of in, i, and an. Ex.

To ——— until morning. To ——— until evening. To ---- all night awake. Magpakaárao. (See index: árao.) Magpakahapon. (See index: hapon.) Magpakapuyat. Ang ipinagpapaka-puyat ko'y itong gawa (This work is the cause of my having to remain awake all night). Itong silid itô'y ang pinagpakapuyatan ko (This room is the place where I remained awake [or watched] all night).

IX. When an accidental or fortuitous action is to be expressed with magpaka the g is dropped, making mapaka, an analogous particle to ma. Pinaka, formed from paka and in, should not be confounded with pinaka, used in a very different sense. (See index: pinaka.) Ex.:

To multiply.

To come to poverty. To grow greatly.

To be delayed more than usual.

Mapakarami (from dami). Applied toanimals, etc. (See index: dami.) Mapakadukhá. (See index: dukhá.) Mapakalakí. (See index: lakí.) Mapakaláwig.

THE INDEFINITE PARTICLE "MAKI."

I. This particle, known as the sixth to Spanish grammarians, has paki for the definite, and reduplicates the second syllable (ki) of the particle for the present and future tenses. The pluperfect and future perfect tenses are wanting. Maki changes to naki for the past and present tenses, and paki takes in for the same, forming pinaki.

II. The principal signification of maki with roots capable of expressing companionship, etc., is joining with, accompanying another, interference or intermeddling in what may be denoted by the root.

III. Maki may be combined with um, mag, man, magpapa, and pa, as well as with itself (paki). There are some verbs which resemble maki in form, such as pakinábang, pakinig, etc., which are classed as um verbal forms, and should be carefully distinguished. Ex.:

To join with or interfere in writing.

Makisúlat (from sumúlat). Ipinakikisúlat ko itó doón (I am putting this in so it may be written there). Iyang mañgá súlat ay pakisulatan mo nitó (Put this in to be written with those letters). Makipagpasúlat; to join (or interfere with) in ordering to write (from magpasú-

To join with in play or gaming.

Makipaglarê (from maglarê; to play or gamble; see tables: $lar\delta$). Also: Pakipaglaroan mo si Pedro (Play with Pedro). (With pa) Papakilaroin mo si Pedro sa kaniyá (Tell [make] Pedro play with him).

To join in fishing with a casting net called "dala."

Makipandala (from mandala; to fish for a living thus). Dumala; to fish (occasionally) with a "dala." Magdala, to use a "dala." Makadala; to be able to catch anything with a "dala."

Makipaóo (from paóo; to say "yes.") Makipakiúsap (from makiúsap).

To join with in saying "yer." To join in a conversation uninvited.

 IV. See tables: umáral; magáral, and sumakay.
 V. Maki by itself admits only of i and an in the definite. I represents the reason, cause, or object of the action, and an the person interfered or meddled with, or joined, accompanied, etc. For the conjugation with i see the tables: súlat and humatid. For the definite with an see maglaró.

VI. In is only used with maki in combination with magpa (pa). Ex.:

Papakigawin mo ang alila mo sa mañgá táuo iyán (Tell your servant to join those men in their task). See also makipaglaró in Paragraph III, preceding, and tables.

VII. Some roots conjugated with the principal signification of maki are:

To join or meddle with teaching:

Makiáral. (See tables.) Makipagáral, to join or meddle with study-ing. (See tables.) Makipangaral, to join or meddle with preaching. Makipagáuay. (See index: áuay.) Makirámay (from dámay). Makihatid. (See tables.)

To pick a quarrel. To claim a part in; to participate. To carry along with; to join; to interfere. To embark with.

Makisakay.(See tables.) Makisamá.

To thrust oneself into the company of another.

Makitalo. (See index: talo.)

To thrust oneself into a dispute or argument.

Makita \widetilde{n} jis. (See index: tañgis.) Makituá. (See index: tuá.)

To join with in weeping. To join (or meddle) in pleasure.

VIII. An is sometimes suffixed to roots conjugated with maki to express intensity of the idea denoted by the root. Pag is generally retained in expressions of this class. Ex.:

To mock greatly; to make fun of, maliciously.

Makipagbiroan, (See index: bird.)

To join eagerly in play or gambling. To thrust oneself into an altercation; to answer with vehemence.

Makipaglaroan, (See index: laro.) Makipagsagutan. Anó't nakikipagsagutan sa kapidbáhay mo? (Why To thrust oneself into a conversation; to interrupt a report. To hate intensely; to detest.

are you getting into an altercation with your neighbor?) Sumagut; to answer; to reply.

Makipagsalitaan. (See index: salită.)

Makipagtaniman (from tanim). Not to be confounded with its homonym, tanim, "to sow." Nakikitaniman si Juan kay Pedro (Juan detests [hates] Pedro intensely). Houag kang makipagtaniman sa kapidbáhay mo (Do not detest [hate] your neighbor so).

IX. The asking for such articles of food, etc., as are generally exchanged among neighbors for cooking and household work is expressed by maki, with the root denoting what may be asked for. A small quantity is always understood. The cause is expressed with i and the person asked by an, should the definite be used. In is used only in combination with magpa (pa). Ex.:

To ask for a little wine.

To ask for a few coals (fire). To ask for a little salt. To ask for a little rice.

Makiálak (from álak). This word is from the Arabic araq, from araqa, "to sweat; perspire." It is found in English as arrack.

Makibigás. (See index: asín.) Makibigás. Nakikibiah Nakikibigás akó sana sa inyó, pó (I would ask you for a little rice, sir). Sino ang ipinakiki-bigás mo? (Who are you asking it for?) Aking ipinakikibigás ang ina kong may sakit (I am asking for the rice for my mother, who is ill). Palá! (Is that so!)

X. With roots verbalized into actions, maki denotes asking that the action expressed by the root be done for the subject. Ex.:

To ask another to reach something. To thank for.

Makiábut. (See index: ábut. Makihingi (from humingi; to request; see index: hingî).

XI. With nouns denoting partition maki signifies to ask for what may be denoted by the root; and with ordinal numbers, in using which the initial letter i is dropped, maki signifies to ask for the part designated by the ordinal used.

To ask for an inheritance. To ask for a part or piece of anything (as bread).

Makimana (see index: mana). Makipisang. Magpisang; to break up and divide a cracker or bread. Magpisang kitá (let us break it up and divide it).

Makikalima; makikapuo.

To ask for a fifth, tenth, etc.

XII. With roots denoting work which may be joined in by more than one, maki sometimes expresses the idea of asking to join in such work. Ex.: Si Juan ay nakikatúbig sa ákin (Juan asked me to help him in getting some water). The particle ka, expressing companionship, is prefixed to the root.

XIII. Some roots commencing with b, p, s, and t change with maki in asimilar manner as with man, when used in the signification of "to ask, request," etc. Ex.:

To ask for news.

Makimalitá (from balitá; see index: balita).

To ask for a passage (as on a vessel).

Makinakay (from sakay).

XIV. With roots signifying nationality, race, state, condition, occupation, profession, etc., maki is sometimes used to signify that one acts like, bears himself like, or resembles what is denoted by the root. This idea, however, is generally otherwise expressed, as some roots used thus are not clear unless fully explained by the context.

XV. With ma, maki has a neuter meaning similar to that borne by ma alone. Ex.:

To appear like a noble (casually).

To act like or resemble an American. To act like or resemble a Spaniard. To act like or resemble a Tagalog.

To act like or resemble a person.

To act like a woman.

To act like a man; to run after men.

To act like a beast.

To conform to in customs.

Napakimahal. Napakikimahal ang alipin (The slave looks like a noble [has become so casually]).

Makiamericano.

Makicastila.

Makitagálog, Nakikitagálog itong táuo sa pañguñgúsap (This man resembles a Tagalog in his manner of speaking).

Makitáuo. Nakikitáuo ang amó (ungoy) (The monkey acts like a per-

akibabaye. Nakibabaye si Juan (Juan acted like a woman). This Makibabaye. also means to run after women.

Nakilalaki itong baba-Makilalaki. yeng itó (This woman acted like a Makiháyop. Nakiháyop itong táuo itó (This man acted like a beast).

Makiugali.

THE INDEFINITE PARTICLE "MAGKA."

 Magka, the ninth particle of the Spanish writers upon Tagalog, may be analyzed into mag and ka, one of the definites of ma. This particle generally expresses the idea of having (or being) what was not had or possessed (or existed as a state) before. As a rule, magka refers to condition or state, while man refers more to the action by which a state or condition is brought about.

The second syllable of the particle is reduplicated for the present and future tenses, while m changes to n for the past and present, following the usual rule. There are a few exceptions, the first syllable of the root being reduplicated in some words. (See tables: útang.)

I definite expresses the cause or reason of the action, while an stands for either place or person, according to the nature of the action. (See tables:

Some very correct and widely used expressions are made by using an with magka. Ex.:

To look much at things; to inspect closely.

To amuse one's self.

Umaninao. Walá akong súkat pagkakaaninauan (There will be no place where I will be able to look at it [inspect it; study it out]).

Magkalibang. Wala silang pinagka-libangan (There was no place where they could amuse themselves). Malilibang, to be amused; diverted.

(See index: pisan; tipon.)

Some roots conjugated in the foregoing signification with magka are:

To have children. Magkaanak. To possess prudence. Magkabait, To have crocodiles again (as a river). Magkabuaya. Nagkakabuaya na itong ilog (This river is infested with crocodiles again). To be laden with fruit. Magkabuñga. Nagkabuñga na itong káhoy na itó? (Has this tree borne fruit already?) Hindî pa nagkabunga (As yet it has not borne fruit). (See index: doón.) To have (there). Magkaroón, agkaísip. Nagkakaísip na itong batang itó? (Has this child reason To have reason. Magkaisip. yet? [i. e., has it yet arrived at the age of reason]). To be lucky; to have luck. Magkapalad.To have rice again (also to have much Magkapálay. rice). To err; to sin. Magkasala.To forbid. Magkakasala. To have money again. Magkasalapî. To be ill. Magkasakit. Ang ipagkasakit, the cause of illness. And ang ipinagkasakit mo? (What made you ill?)
Pasakián, to be pained. Ang papagkasaktín, one ill from his own fault, also a sick person. Magkasiyâ. Walâ pô, hindî nagkaka-To have enough. siyá sa kaniyang pagkabúhay (No, sir; he does not get enough to live on).

To have gray hair.

To owe a debt.

Magkaúban.
Magkaútang. (See tables: útang.)

II. The casual, accidental, or chance assemblage of many people

II. The casual, accidental, or chance assemblage of many people or things, even though immaterial, is sometimes expressed by magka. The particle denotes a plurality of subjects in such cases, as opposed to a plurality of acts, as expressed by some other particles. Ex.:

To quarrel (as two or more). Magkaáuay. (See index: ánay.) To be equal; to coincide; to accord. Magkaayon. To meet casually; to gather (as a Magkasalúbong. (See index: salúbong.) crowd). To assemble casually (as a crowd). Magkasama.(See index: sama.) (See index: tipon.) To meet casually (as a crowd). Magkatipon.

III. Magka also indicates universality or plurality of subjects suffering from or affected in some way by what is denoted by the root. Ex.:

To suffer from a typhoon. Magkabagyó. To suffer from an epidemic of small-Magkabulútong. pox. To suffer from a famine (also for Magkagútum. many to be hungry). To suffer from a conflagration. Magkasúnog. To enjoy a holiday. Magkatuà, To have a riot or tumult. Magkaguló.To be squeezed or pressed in a crowd. Magkadagón.

IV. Another use of magka is to express an unintentional or casual error in what may be noted by the root. The imperative is made with maid or baká (q. v.). Ex.:

To say one thing accidentally for Magkaibá. Nagkaibá siyá (He accianother.

To err in counting. To equivocate accidentally. dentally said one thing for another).

Magkalimang.

Nagkamal tMagkamali.akóequivocated accidentally). Houag mong akalaing ako'y nagkakamalî (Don't you think Î made any mistake).

V. Magka is also used to express self-deception by the sight, hearing, etc., the definite past tense with an suffixed being taken as the root. For the present tense the first syllable of the root is reduplicated and not the second syllable of the particle. $\mathbf{Ex.}$:

To be deceived by the hearing.

Magkariñgan. Nagkariringan (My hearing deceives me). (See index: dingig.)

To be deceived by the sight.

Magkakità. (See index: kità.)

VI. A further use of magka is with the um infinitive of some verbal roots and some adverbs of place, with which infinitives magka expresses the idea of making the said movement or going to or from the place indicated by the adverb for some particular reason or cause.

To follow (or obey) for a particular cause or reason.

Magkasumunod (from sunod). Also to follow wherever another may (See index: sunod.)

To be here for a particular cause or reason.

Magkadumito. (See index: dito.)

VII. Doubling the root intensifies the meaning with magka in some $\mathbf{Ex.}$: cases.

To be very late or tardy.

the source of something.

Magkabálambálam. Nagkakabalambálam ka (You are very late [tardy]).

To be broken into very small pieces.

Magkalansaglansag (from lansag). Lumansag, to break anything into small pieces.

To be finished or concluded completely.

Magkalutáslutás (from lutás).

To be completely broken up (as a rope or cord).

Magkapatidpatid (from patid; see index).

To be completely destroyed.

Magkasiràsirà (from sirà; see index). Magkawindangwindang (from wind-

To be torn into tatters (as clothes, etc.).

ang). VIII. Sometimes ka, the definite of ma, combines with pag to denote (See index: sirà.)

THE INDEFINITE PARTICLE "MAGIN."

 Magin, which Minguella thinks a "disguised passive" in conception reduplicates the gi of the last syllable of the particle for the present and future tenses. It also changes m to n for the past and present indefinite. It expresses the conversion or transformation, either gradual or sudden, of one thing into another, as a general rule, the root being that into which the other thing is converted or transformed. Magin is also used to express such ideas as "to beget," etc. Being a neuter particle generally there is no imperative in such cases, as there can be no volition in the action except with personal pronouns.

 For slow, self-converting processes um is generally used, but in some cases the use of magin is correct. Besides the indefinite the definites with i and an exist. (See tables: álak.)

As magin generally denotes a state or condition, it admits ika with some roots, and in combination with pa, the definite of magpa, it also admits in with others. (See tables: dápat.)

III. As will be noted, magin is commonly used to express such acts as the turning of wine into water by miraculous agency, etc., as well as natural processes. Some of the roots usually conjugated with magin are:

To be converted into wine.

To be converted into gall or bile.

To be turned into stone; to become petrified.

To be converted into vinegar. To be begotten.

To be made man.

To become a Tagalog.

Maginálak. (See tables: álak.)
Maginapdó. Nagiginapdó ang áking bibig (my mouth tastes like gall).
Maginbató. Ang asáva ni Loth ay naginbatong asín (the wife of Lot became a rock of salt).

Maginsukà. (See tables: sukà.)
Maginanak (from anak, "child").
Naginanak ni Abraham si Isaac; at naginanak ni Isaac si Jacob; at naginanak ni Jacob si Judá at kaniyang mañyá kapatid (Abraham begat Isaac; and Isaac begat Jacob; and Jacob begat Judas and his brethren)—Matth. II, 2.

Magintáuo. Ang anak nang Dios ay nagintáuo (the son of God was made man). (But if volition is included other particles or expressions must be used.) Ang anak nang Dios ay nagkatauang táuo (the son of God assumed the form of man).

Magintagálog. Nagigintágalog ang capitán sa pañgañgúsap (the captain resembles (or seems to be) a Tagalog by his speech).

IV. It should be noted that nagin in the past tenses is the only sense which can really be said to denote complete conversion, etc., the present and future tenses conveying the idea of "seems to be," "may be," and "might be," respectively.

V. Magin is also used in a neuter sense to express the assumption of office, states, conditions of mind, morals, or body, etc., if intention is not meant, in which case other particles are used.

To become "presidente."

To become just or virtuous. To become a miser.

To become worthy.

Maginpresidente. Naginpresidente si Gat Simeon at saká nagingobernador (Don Simeon became presidente and afterwards governor).

Maginbanal.

Maginmarámot (from marámot, miser; see dámot).

Magindápat (from dápat; see tables: dápat). Marápat, fair; just; deserving. Karaptan, merit; deserts. Ang ikapagindápat, the reason or cause of being worthy. To be converted into an animal.

Maginháyop. Magháyop, to sell, deal in, or raise animals. Hayopan, corral for animals; pen. Kahayopan, brutishness. Ang pagkaháyop, brutality.

To become an habitual litigant (barrator).

Maginpalaúsap. Naginpalausap siyá (he has become an habitual litigant).

To become deaf. To become blind. To become dumb. Maginbingi. Maginbulag.Maginpipi.

VI. With some roots magin may express the idea of "to be."

To be the motive or cause.

Magindahilán. Itó ang nagindahi $l\acute{a}n$ (this was the reason). Ró ang nagigindahilán (this is the cause).

To befall.

Maginpálad. An kayá ang magigin-pálad ko? (What will my luck be? [What will befall me?])

To turn out to be true.

Magintotóo. Nagintotóo ang sinabi mo sa ákin (what you told me turned out to be true).

To be a servant.

Maginalilà. Itong tauo ito'y magiginalilà ninyó (this man will be your servant).

VII. The idea of volition is sometimes admissible with magin when used with personal pronouns. Ex.:

To be thine. To be mine.

Maginiyó.

Maginákin. Akő y magiginiyő t ikáo ay magiginákin (I will be yours and you will be mine).

VIII. (a) Magin is also used in combination with the interrogative adverbs itan! (how many?) and magkano! (how much?) and with the answers thereto. (b) With magin prefixed to a number and na following it the completion of the period named is denoted. Magin expresses the idea of "about" in these cases. Ex.: (a) Magiginilán silá? (about how many will there be?) Magiginilán ang paroroon? (about how many will go there?) Magigindalawang puo (about twenty). Magiginnagkano itô? (How much will this be worth?) (b) Kung maginisang buán na (After about a month). Nang maginilang árao (after a few days). Kung maginsangtaón na (after about a year).

IX. Magin may be used sometimes in the sense of "be it" or "either"—"or." Ex.: Maginitó; maginiyán (be it this or be it Ex.: Maginitó; maginiyán (be it this or be it Maginlalaki siya; maginbabaye (be it man or be it woman). Maginnīgayón; maginbúkas ay paroroon akó (either to-day or to-morrow I will have to go there).

THE INDEFINITE PARTICLE "MAGSI,"

 This particle, which changes initial m to n for the indefinite past and present, reduplicates the last syllable of the particle for the present and future tenses. It has all three definites, and may be combined with all other particles, which are placed between it and the root, except make and ma definite in the sense of power, which precede it. (See tables: alis; gawa; tapon, and kuha.) It has no other signification than to denote a plurality or universality of subjects in connection with the verbal action. Naturally there is no singular number. Ngá may be inserted after the first two letters of the particle to indicate an extreme degree of plurality. See tables: pagáral. Ex.:

To teach (many).

Magsipagáral, to study Magsiáral, (many). Ang mañgá batà dito sa To confers (many).

To go out (many).

To look; behold, etc. (many).

To enter; come in (many).

To laugh (many).

bayan ito'y magsisipagáral na lahat (all the children here in this town are studying). Ang mañgá batà nitong escuelahan nañgagsisipagáral (all the children in this school are learning [or studying]). Magsipañgáral, to preach (many). Mañgágsipañgáral, to preach (by a great number).

Magsipagcumpisal. To hear confessions (many priests(; magsipagpacumpisal. (See index: cumpisal.)

Magsilabás. Magsilabás kayong lahat na naririto sa loob (all of you who are inside go out).

Magsipanóod. Bákit ipinagsisipanóod nilá ang dágat iyang mañgá táno iyán? (Why are those men looking at the sea for?)

Magsipások. Magsipások kayong lahat na naririyang walang gawá: (Come in all of you who are out there doing nothing [or without work]). Magsitaua.

THE INDEFINITE PARTICLE "MAGPATI."

I. This particle is little used, and besides the usual change of m to n for the past and present indefinite reduplicates the second syllable (pa) of the particle for the present and future tenses. It is used with roots expressing the idea of motion or positions of the body, and signifies to perform such motions or take such positions voluntarily, and with briskness or suddenly. If such sudden motion occur or position be assumed involuntarily, the g is dropped, forming mapati, equal in meaning to mapa. The definites with i (ika) in the sense of cause, and an (han) for place exist. (See tables: luhod.) Ex.:

To prostrate one's self quickly.

To lie down quickly; to throw one-self down.

To fall on one's knees.

To turn the back abruptly.

To spring to the feet.

To sit down suddenly.

Magpatirapá (from dapá). Magpatihigà. Magpatihigà ka (lie down quickly).

Magpatiluhod. Ang ikapagpatiluhod: the cause or reason for falling on the knees. Ang pagpatiluhorán: the place where or person knelt to. (See tables.)

Magpatitalikod. To do the same without intention, mapatitalikod.

Magpatitindig. Nagpapatitindig siyâ (he is springing to his feet). Napapatitindig akô (I sprang to my feet unconsciously).

Magpatiupó. To sit down suddenly without meaning to: mapatiupó.

THE INDEFINITE PARTICLE "MANHI."

I. This particle beside the change from m to n for the past and present indefinite, reduplicates the second syllable (hi) of the particle for the present and future tenses. This particle is used to express verbs of searching for minutely, for those expressing the idea of removing dirt, etc., from the face or body, and for miscellaneous ideas which will be better seen from the examples. Certain letters beginning roots are modified by manhi, the same as they are by man. The definites with i and panhi, in the sense of cause, with an and either panhi or hi in the sense of place, and with in and either panhi or hi for ordinary definite sentences exist. (See tables: matay; malay; tinga.)

II. A reciprocal form of many of the verbs conjugated with manhi may be formed with an suffixed or with maghi in place of manhi, retaining an as a suffix, however. Ex.:

To search for carefully; to glean.

To peck here and there (as a bird in search of grain).

To search for grains of metals or minerals.

To wash one's face; to remove stains, smudges, etc.

To comb the mustache.

To pick the teeth.

To clean the ears. To clean the eyes.

To treat swelled eyelids or wash them.

To clean the nails.

To cleanse from head lice.

To follow by trailing; to hold in memory (met.).

To rebel; revolt.

To avenge or take revenge.

To peddle; to sell bad goods. To act like a child.

To tell the fortune by the palm.

Manhimálay (from pálay, "un-husked rice"). Panhimalayin (himalayin) mo ang iyong kakanin (look for [glean] what you have to eat). Ang gutum ay ang ipi-nanhihimalay niya (hunger is the cause of his gleaning). Ang búkid ni Juan ay ang pinanhimalayan niyá (he was gleaning [he gleaned] in the field of Juan).

Manhinuká (from tuká).

Manhimúlos (from púlos, "all of one color"). Púlos also means the grains themselves.

Manhilámos (from lámos, "stain, smudge"). The root hilámos is from this combination.

Manhimisay (from misay, "mustache").

Manhininga (from tinga, "what adheres to the teeth". See tables).
Manhinuli (from tutuli, "earwax"). Manhimutà (from mutà, "secretion of the eye'').

Manhimoktó (from poktó, "swelling or inflammation of the eyelids"). Pamoktohin, a person frequently afflicted thus.

Manhiñgokó claw''). (from kokó, " nail.

Manhingutu (from kutu, "head louse"). Manhingutuhan or maghingutuhan, to cleanse each other thus. Manhinoma, to cleanse of body lice. Tomahin, person afflicted thus.

Manhimakás (from bakás, "footprint, sign, trail, etc."). Bakasin mo at naitó ang yápak (follow it, here is the footprint). Maghimakasan, to follow each other on the trail, etc.

Manhimagsik (from bagsik, "cruel, tyrannical").

Manhiganti (from ganti, "reward, premium"). Pinanhiganti nila siya (they avenged him [her]). Silá ang panhihigantihan niyá (he will take revenge on them).

Manhilako (from lako).

(from Manhimosmós mosmós, "child"). Mosmós mo itó? (ls this your child?) Manhimálad (from pálad, "palm").

To pretend to work, or to work without purpose.

To be uneasy on account of solitude.

To meddle; intrude.

To faint; swoon.

To suspect evil.

To beat about the bush.

To change color or the expression of the face.

To feel badly for lost work.

To embark in the boat of another.

To exert one's self.

Manhimanday (from panday, "smith"). Panday wika, great talker, "wordsmith."

Manhimañgláo (from pangláo., sadness, fear, or uneasiness caused by being alone). Mapangláo na báhay

(a lonely [solitary] house).

Manhimások (from pások). Houag mong panhimasukan ang búhay nang ibang mangá táuo (don't meddle with what passes in the life of other people).

Manhimatay (from matay, "idea of dying." See tables: matay.)

Manhimula (from pula, "idea of not believing and blaming another"). Pulá is the idea of redness.

Manhimiling (from piling, "bank, shore"). Houag mo akong panilinggmilingan (Don't beat about the bush with me; don't try any red tape on me).

Manhimuti (from puti, "idea of whiteness").

Manhinayang (from sayang). Manhinakay (from sakay, "boat, ves-

Manhinápang (from tápang).

THE INDEFINITE PARTICLE "MAGSA."

I. As usual, this particle has the past and present indefinite take n in place of m, while the second syllable (sa) of the particle is reduplicated for the present and future tenses. All three definites exist. See tables; insik. The signification of this particle is imitation, adoption or following the customs, dress, or language of another people. It is little used, maki being more customary. Ex. :

To follow American customs. To follow Bicol customs. To follow Visayan customs. To follow Spanish customs. To follow Hocano customs.

To follow Moro customs. To follow Tagalog customs. Magsaamericano.Magsabikol.Magsabisaya. Magsacastila. Magsailoko. Magsakamorosan.

Magsatagálog. Ang sinasatagálog, what followed or imitated, etc.; Ang ipagsatagálog, the reason or cause of such adoption. Pag is dropped with in.

II. Magsa; isa; as in the expressions magsaárao ka nang damit; put the clothes in the sun: isahañgin mo itong barò; hang this shirt in the wind, etc., are not from this particle but from sa, the preposition "in," conjugated with mag and i respectively.

III. The signification of magsa may be expressed by other particles than maki, among them being magka and ma with an suffixed. Ex.: Si Juan ay nagkakasilaán (Juan is very Spanish in his ways [speech, etc.]). Natatagalogan siyá (He is very Tagalog in his ways). By doubling the root, if a bisyllabic one, or the first two syllables thereof if longer, a diminutive meaning is imparted. Ex.: Natatagatagalogan siyá (He is somewhat Tagalog in his ways). Tagalog in his ways).

THE INDEFINITE PARTICLE "MAGKAPA."

This particle changes initial m to n for the past and present indefinite, and reduplicates the last syllable (pa) of the particle for the present and future tenses. The sole use of the particle is to express, prefixed to roots denoting positions of the body or motions of the parts thereof, the involuntary remaining in such position, etc., as the result of fright, surprise, or other violent emotion. The definites with i, to express the cause, and with an, to express place, exist. (See tables: múlat.)

To remain with staring eyes.

Magkapadilat. Dumilat, to open the eyes. Madilat, to be open (as the eyes). Syn., magkapamilat, to remain with the eyes open. Ang ipagkapamúlat, the cause of remaining with staring eyes. Ang pagkapamúlátan, the place of remaining thus.

To be left with the mouth open; to stand with open mouth. To stand showing the teeth (as an animal, etc.

Magkapangangá, from ngangá. Ngumañgá, to open the mouth. Magkapangisi (from ngisi).

THE INDEFINITE PARTICLE "MAGKAN."

 This particle takes n in the past and present indefinite in place of m, and has the peculiarity of reduplicating the initial syllable of all roots conjugated by it. For the present and future tenses the second syllable (ka) of the particle is reduplicated in a similar manner to the reduplication of the gi of magin. (See tables: luhà.) Magkan signifies primarily the involuntary flowing out of the secretions of the body, and has the definites of i for the cause and an for the place. In a metaphorical sense magkan is also used to express involuntary emotions, actions, etc., as will be seen by the examples:

To bleed. To sweat from fear or illness. To slaver; to drool.

To weep or shed tears unconsciously (as from a wood fire). To blush.

To undress or lose the clothes (involuntarily).

To overflow; to exceed.

To drop off. To burst into laughter. To be stunned by a blow. Magkandudugo (from dugo, "blood"). Magkanpapáwis (from páwis). Magkanlaláway (from láway, liva").

Magkanluluhà (from luhà, "tear").

Magkanhihiyá (from hiyá). Kahiydhiyd, a shameful thing. Magkanhohobò. Nagkakanhohobd si Juan nang pagtaua (Juan is shaking his clothes off with laughter). Magkanlalabis. Linabisan mo ang utos ko sa iyó (You exceeded my orders to you). Magkanlalaglag. Magkantataua. Magkantitilap.

COMBINATIONS OF PARTICLES.

The combining of various particles is called "transcendency" by the writers upon Tagalog, and may be said to have the following characteristics: With two exceptions, double or triple combinations of particles prefixed to a root demand that the one immediately before the root take the definite form. (See tables, áuat; álak.)

First exception. Some roots conjugated by mag and magka admit um.

(See tables, pilit; dali; sunod.)

Second exception. The particle maka precedes other particles, a property also possessed by magsi, except when in combination with maka, which goes before magsi in such cases. (See tables, lard; gawd; húlog; dito; alis. It must further be borne in mind that roots which are primarily conjugated by mag retain pag as a prefix invariably, as do also those roots differing in meaning with um and mag.

THE DESIGNATION OF PARTICLES.

For convenience of reference to the Spanish works and also to the work of Humboldt, the numbers given by the early writers to the various particles modifying roots are of use. They are:

1st. Um.	No def.	10th.	Magin.	Pagin.
2d, Mag.	Pag.	11th.	Magsi.	Pagsi.
3d. Man.	Pan.	12th.	Magsa.	Pagsa.
4th. Maka.	Ma Ka.	13th.	Manhi.	Panhi.
5th. Magpa.	Pagpa.	14th.	Magpaka.	Pagpaka.
6th. Maki.	Paki.	15th.	Magpati.	Pagpati.
7th. Pa.	Pa.	16th.	Magkapa.	Pagkapa,
8th. Ma.	Ka Ma.	17th.	Magkan.	Pagkan.
9th. Magka.	Pagka.		-	-

In, i and an are the three particles always accompanying the definite.

THE PARTICLES "KAPAG" AND "KAPAGKA."

These particles are much used in Tagalog to express the ideas given in the following examples. The agent takes the genitive (or possessive) case and the object or effect of the action the accusative. Ex.:

When my father left, I left also.

Kapagalis nang áking amá'y akô'y ungmalis din.

After he finished his work, he came to where I was.

Kapagkatá pus niyá nang kaniyang gawa'y pinaritohan niya akó.

THE PARTICLES "PAG" AND "PAGEA."

The same expressions as the above may also be rendered by pag and pagka. Ex.:

When my father had gone away, they

Pagalis dito nang áking amá'y siyang pagdáting nilá.

When it strikes twelve, we will rest.

Pagtugtug nang á las doce ay magpapahingá tayo.

After you pay your respects to him, come here.

Pagbatí mo sa kaniyá'y parini ka.

After I eat, I shall go for a walk.

Pagkakain ko'y akô'y magpapasial.

THE PARTICLE "PINAKÁ,"

This particle, prefixed to roots, signifies to be held or reputed in what may be expressed by the roots. It may also mean "number of times made" in some cases. Ex.:

Rice is considered to be the bread of Ang kanin ay siyang pinakatinapay the Tagalogs.

We regard you as a parent. He is regarded as their leader.

nang mañgá tagálog. Kayó pô'y pinakamagúlang namin.

Siyá ang pinakapuno nilá.

FORMATIONS OF NOUNS FROM ROOTS.

Nouns are formed in various manners in Tagalog from roots. Ex.: Some nouns are formed by prefixing mapag to the root.

Mocker; scoffer. Mapagbiró. Mapagbiyaya. Generous person. Mapaglibak. Scoffer; hoaxer. Mapagpalalò. Proud; arrogant person.

Mapagpitagan. Respectful person. Destructive person. Mapagsirà.

Palá prefixed to roots forms other nouns. Ex.:

Quarrelsome person. Palaánay. Drunkard. Palainum. Palakain.Glutton. Palasintá, Loving (amorous) person.

Blasphemer. Palasumpâ. Barrator (litigant to Palaúsa). excess). Boaster; great talker. Palawikà.

Some of the above may be verbalized by changing the initial p to n or m. Ex.: Nalakain siyá (he became a glutton). Nalalainum siyá (he is becoming a drunkard). Malalawikà siyá (he will become a boaster). This is now provincial.

III. Some nouns of the classes under consideration are formed by prefixing ma either to the imperative or future of the root, as combined with Friendly person. Amorous person. Disobedient person. Obedient person. A jolly person. An affectionate person. A timid, bashful person. A forgetful person. A pleasant person.

A sorrowful person. A delicate, sickly person. A timid person (cowardly).

Maibigin. Mairogin; masintahin. Masuain (from súay). Masunorin (from sunod). Matauanin (from taua). Mawilihin. Mahihiyin (from hiya). Malilimutin (from limot). Malulugdin (from lugod). Malulumbayin (from lumbay). Masasaktin (from sakit). Matatakutin (from tákot).

IV. Other nouns indicating occupations, professions, trades, etc., are formed by man with the future tense of the indefinite. See list of such at end of section three.

V. Nouns indicating a person suffering from a chronic disease or fault are to be found formed by suffixing in to the root denoting such disease or fault. (See Par. XXIII, in.) These nouns may be verbalized by in. Ex.: Šiya'y hinihiká (he suffers from asthma). Šilá'y tinatamad (they are lazy).

VI. Some nouns with an idea of place inherent are formed with the future tense of some roots with an. Ex.: Pagbabaonan, cemetery; burying place (from baon). Pagbabanyagan, bapistry (from binyag). Pagpapatayan, abbatoir. Place of execution, Pagbibitayan (from bitay).

VII. Some nouns indicating occupation are formed by taga combined with pag (tagapag) before a root. Ex.: Tagapagbantay, sentinel, watchman. Syn.: Tagapagtánod. Tagapagsáing, cook (from sáing, "cooked rice"). Sometimes taga alone indicates this. Ex.: Tagalígao, wanderer, stroller.

MISCELLANEOUS WORDS.

The following examples, taken from the Tagalog edition of the Renacimiento, a paper of Manila, will give an idea of ordinary Tagalog composition as applied to modern conditions, and the use of foreign words in connection therewith:

I. Singapore, ika 12 (dalawá) ng (nang) Abril (1905). Ang paraan ni Rodjestvensky ay makaráting siyá sa cabo (loñgos) Padaran na nasa baybayin ng Indo-China, at 150 milla ang agwat sa Saigon. Doon nga magpipisan ang nagkahiwalay na húkbong-dagat ng mgá (mangá) ruso, kun sakáling silá'y hindî mahárang kapuwá ng myá japon.

Ang isang pangkat ng hukbong-dágat na pinangunguluhan ni Rodjestvensky ay nasa baybayin ng Muntok ngayón na illang milla ang agwat sa Sumatra.

Ang ibang mgá sasakyán ay nasa pagitan pa mg Banka. Ang mgá sasakyang itô y nasa raang tiwasay sa pagitan ng Malaca.

Hindî silâ nahârang, sapagka't ang mga japon marahil ay nasa malapit sa

Formosa na doon nilá ibig makilaban.

Maráhil ang Batavia ang susunod na daraungan ng mgá ruso, sapagka't doo'y may cableng ábut hángang Rusia.

[Translation.]

Singapore, 12th of April. The plan of Rodjestvensky is to try to (arrive at) make Cape Padaran, on the coast of Indo-China, and 150 miles distant from Saigon. There the separated fleets (sea armies) of the Russians will unite, if the two are not encountered by the Japanese.

One division of the fleet commanded by Rodjestvensky is now off the coast of Muntok a few miles from Sumatra.

The other vessels are yet in the region of Banka. The other vessels of this (fleet) are remaining in the route (or neighborhood) of Malacca.

They were not molested, because the Japanese continued to remain near Formosa, where they wish to commence the struggle.

Russian vessels continue to follow each other into Batavia, because there is a cable connecting with Russia there.

II. Newchwang, ika 7 ng Abril. Ang 500,000 kataong bumubuo ng húkbo ni Öyama ay sumasalakay na maigi sa húkbo ni Linevitch na nakapagtibay sa Kirin.

Mabuti ang paraan ng pagkakalúsob ny mya japon at ang habû ng kanilang lupang nahahanayan ay may ápat na puo ú limang puong milla. Inaakala ní Óyama na itaboy untiunti ang mgá ruso hángang sa kanilang madaig na lubusan.

Ang húkbong pinamamahalaan ni general Linevitch ay hindî hihigit sa bîlang na 200,000, sapagka't bukod sa namatayan siyá ng marami sa labanan, ay marami pa ang nabihag ng mgá japon.

[Translation.]

Newchwang, 7th of April. The 500,000 men composing the army of Oyama are advancing in good order upon the army of Linevitch now intrenched at Kirin.

The plan of advance of the Japanese is good (excellent) and the length of their front (ground) is 40 or 50 miles. Oyama is trying to push the Russians gradually until he can vanquish them all (unitedly).

The army under the charge of General Linevitch does not number more than 200,000, especially because besides the many who have been killed in battle there are many also who have been captured by the Japanese.

III. San Petersburgo, ika 6 ng Abril. Ang ngá japon ay nakasusulong na unti-unti sa dakong kinalalagyán ni general Linevitch at ng kaniyang hukho. Isang árao pa't ang Harbin ay hindi na marahil matatahanan ng myá ruso, sapagka't pinagiisipang gibain ng kaáway. Hindí na pinangangatawanan ng mgá ruso ang pagpapakatibay sa Harbin, sapagka't may nakikinikinita silang malaking pangánib na sasapitin doon. Ang dakong uurungan ng mgá ruso ay ang Vladivostok na kanilang inasahang mapagtitibayang maigi hángang sa magkaroon ng kapayapaan. Masamá ang tayô ng mgá húkbong ruso, datapuwa't hindi namán mapahúsay, itó dahil sa gulong nangyayari sa Rusia. Marami sa Rusia ang naniniwalá na madadaig ang hukbo ni general Linevitch, at kung magkagayón ay magkakaroon ng kapayapaan.

[Translation.]

- St. Petersburg, 6th of April. The Japanese are advancing little by little upon the position of General Linevitch and his army. One day more, and Harbin may possibly not be remaining to the Russians, because they think it may be destroyed by the enemy. The Russians are making no efforts to strengthen themselves in Harbin, because they believe themselves to be in great danger of capture there. The place of retreat for the Russians is Vladivostok, which they hope to fortify so well as to hold it until peace. The situation of the Russian armies is bad, but it can not be bettered on account of the riots taking place in Russia. Many in Russia believe that the army of General Linevitch will be defeated, and that in that event there will be peace.
- IV. Manila ika 14 ng Abril. Ibinabalità ng Gobernador Dancel (Lalawigang Rizal), na noong umagà ng ika 5 ng búwang lumalákad ay may nadakip sa Bagbagin na tatlong táuong labás at siyam na kalabao na ninanakao sa Novaliches, dalawang baril at dalawang revolver. Noong ika 11 ay may nadakip na isang táuong labás na may dalang, isang kalabao, at isang rifleng mauser, dalawang puong cartucho't dalawang puong rifleng remington. Noong ika 10 ay may nasumpungan ang presidente sa Taytay na isang remington na may sampuong cartucho. Ang ngá kalabao ay dinalá sa tosoreria municipal. Noong ika 11 ay nakadakip din namán si Gobernador Dancel ng isang nagngangalang Pedro Pio, na dt umano'y siyang nangbagabag na maigi sa Baranka at Marikina noong viernes. Itô'y ibinigay kay mayor Haskell ng constabulario. May nadakip pa ring dalawang táuong labás na may isang revolver colt at sampuong cartucho.

[Translation.]

It is announced by Governor Dancel (Rizal Province) that on the morning of the 5th of the current month there were captured at Bagbagin three outlaws and nine of the carabao stolen from Novaliches, two shotguns, and two revolvers. On the 11th there were captured one armed outlaw, one carabao, and one Mauser rifle, twenty cartridges, and twenty Remington rifles. On the 10th the presidente (mayor) of Taytay secured a Remington and ten cartridges. The carabao were sent to the municipal treasury. On the 11th Governor Dancel was also able to capture one called Pedro Pio, said to be the person who made trouble at Baranka and Mariquina last Friday. This person was turned over to Major Haskell, of the constabulary. There were also two outlaws captured who had a Colt revolver and ten cartridges.

V. Hindi malalaunan at magtatayô ritô sa Maynilà ng bagong hospital. Rô'y isang ambagan na hiningi ng Rt. Rev. Opispo Brent ng siyâ'y nasa Estados Unidos.

Ang salaping gugugulin ay kaloob ng limang universidad sa Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania at Columbia.

Ang mangangasiwa nitó ay ang Iglesia Episcopal, datapuwa't tantangapin ang sinomang naúkol sa ibang religión.

[Translation.]

It will not be long until there will be erected here in Manila a new hospital. This will be from a subscription solicited by the Right Reverend Bishop Brent when he was in the United States.

The money to be offered is from the funds (interior) of five universities: Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania, and Columbia.

The direction of this (hospital) will be under the Episcopal Church, but anyone will be received belonging to another faith.

VI. Ang gobernador sa Bataan si G. Tomás del Rosario ay nag alay sa Balañga ñg isang lupang may 15 hectarea at $\mathbb{T}\,4,000$, ang halagá, upang mapagtayuan ñg isang "secondary school." Ang yaong lupang yaón ay magagamit sa pagaáral ñg agricultura ó ñg mgá dúnong tungkol sa pamumúkid, at magingaralan din namán ñg mgá pagsasanay ñg pangpalakás ñg katawan.

Sa akala rin namán ng Gobernador ay mabuting magkaroon ng isang maestrong americano sa bayan bayan upang maitanyag ang mga paraan at ugaling americano sa mgá filipino.

[Translation.]

The governor of Bataan, Hon. Tomás del Rosario, has given a piece of land comprising 15 hectares and worth $\mathbb{P}4,000$, in Balanga, in order that there may be a site for the erection of a "secondary school." That land may be used for teaching agriculture or for sciences or occupations pertaining to the land, and for instruction in the means of strengthening the body (manual training school).

The endeavor of the governor will be to have one American teacher in each town in order to show the customs and habits of the Americans to the Filipinos.

VII. Dî umano'y hihilingin ng Compania ng tranvia eléctrico na tulutun na ang sasakyang ito'y marapáting paratingin hangan sa Palanyag.

Ipinagbibigay alam din naman ngayon sa gobernador general ng nangangasiwa sa tranvia eléctrico na sa lunes ay pasisimulang patakbuhan ang daan sa Santa Ana.

[Translation.]

It is said that the electric street-car company will ask that the line be permitted to be extended to reach as far as Parañaque.

Notice has also been given to-day to the governor-general by the management of the electric railway that on Monday it will commence the operation of the road to Santa Ana.

VIII. Paunawa.—Ipinamanhik sa sinomang nakapúlot ñg isang ásong lalaki na may balahibong kulay cafe at may puti sa dibdib at sa dulo ñg paang kanan sa unahán, may taglay na collar sa liig at isang chapa na may numerong (bílang) 1965, ay mangyaring ibalik ó isauli sa daang Arranque bílang (blg.) 158 at doo'y kakamtan ang isang pabuya at dakilang pasasalámat.

[Translation.]

Notice.—It is requested that anyone who may pick up a male dog with coffee-colored hair and with white on the breast and the end of the right front foot, bearing a collar on the neck and a tag with the number 1965, will be able to return or restore him to No. 158 Arranque street, where a reward will be given, together with many thanks.

IX. Nawalá. Sa báhay na bílang 74 sa daang Rada, Tondo, ay nawalá ang isang manuk na sasabunging balahíbong lasak, maitim ang tahid, maputí ang paá't baldado ang datu sa kanan. Sinoman ang makapagdalá ó makapagturó ng kinalalagyán ng naturang manuk ay bibigyán ng pabuyang halagang waló ó sampuong piso.

[Translation.]

Lost.—From the house No. 74 Rada street, Tondo, there has been lost a gamecock with white and red (lasak) plumage, black spurs, and white feet, with the middle claw of the right foot crippled. Anyone who may be able to bring or point out the whereabouts of the said fowl will be given a reward to the amount of eight or ten pesos.

A careful study of the foregoing examples will enable one to clearly understand the general run of the modern language. Reading the native press, both for practice and keeping track of what is of interest in native circles, is recommended to all who may be stationed in the Tagalog region.

II. For names of animals, birds, fishes, and invertebrates not given in this work the student is referred to Jordana's Bosquejo Geográfico é Histórico Natural del Archipiélago Filipino, Madrid, 1885; to the work of Friar Casto de Elera, Dominican, entitled Catálogo Sistemático de Toda la Fauna de Filipinas, Manila, 1895; and to the book of Montero y Vidal, El Archipiélago Filipino y las islas Marianas, Carolinas y Palaos, Madrid, 1886. For the fauna the great work of Friar Blanco, Augustine, will be of great aid, as well as the reports of the forestry and agricultural bureaus at Manila. The work of Father Delgado, S. J., Manila, 1892, deserves attention as revised and annotated.

In conclusion, it is hoped that a careful study of the language under discussion will lead the student to explore for himself, and note the localisms and changes in each province. Any suggestions, corrections, or criticisms will be welcomed by the author.
