PREFACE.

THE Bari tribe inhabit the country lying approximately between Latitudes $3^{\circ} 40'$ N. and $5^{\circ} 45'$ N.—their Southern boundary being the River Assua.

Their Northern neighbours are the Dinkas, to the South of them are the Madi, to the East the Berri, Beir and Latuka tribes, and to the West the Makraka, Azanda and Dinka tribes.

The Bahr el Jebel runs through the centre of their territory. The river is broken up by many islands large and small; the former are called by the Bari "Tikenyo" and the latter "Pipia." Most of these islands are extensively cultivated and provide the principal food supplies for the tribe.

In the days of Sir Samuel Baker and Emin Pasha the Bari were a numerous and warlike tribe and rich in cattle, but under Dervish rule they suffered severely and the tribe is now a small one, with very few cattle. The Southern part of their country is mountainous, to the West (from North to South) being Mounts Lado, Nyerkoni, Jebel el Hadid, Kurruk, Kungufi and Weya, with Mount Logwek at Rejaf. On the East are Mounts Belinian, Luri and Longa, and still further East and South East are the Lokoya and Liria Mountains.

Most of the Bari villages are near the river. Their principal crops are dura (red), simsim, telabun, and tobacco, which, for the last few years, have suffered considerably from the two extremes of drought and flood.

Of minerals, iron is very plentiful. Of the flora, the principal trees are palms (Hyphaene thebaica and Borassus aethiopum), mimosa (especially the Mimosa nilotica, nabak (Rhamnus nabeca), heglik and tamarind.

Game is fairly plentiful, lion, leopard, elephant, rhinoceros, hyena, buffalo, antelope, gazelle, hippopotamus, crocodile, giraffe, zebra, &c., being found in fair numbers; of birds, the ostrich, bustard, marabout, osprey, golden-crested crane, pelican, shoebird (Abu Markub or Bakeniceps rex), Ibis, ground horn-bill and many others. Snakes are numerous, especially the death-adder.

The Bari are physically a fine race, slim, well proportioned and well built. The majority of the men are entirely naked and carry a spear or bow and arrows. The women wear in front a small apron or fringe either of leather or of plaited little iron chains, and at the back a long tuft of fine leather straps, grass or wool, which gives them the appearance of having a long tail; they do most of the tilling and cultivation, and many are to be seen working in the fields carrying their babies on their backs. Sometimes if a tree is handy to their work they will put the baby in a kind of leather sack and hang it up to the tree while they are at work.

Many of the men wear a ring of ivory on their left arm above the elbow and decorate their heads with feathers. It used to be a common habit among the men to besmear themselves with a mixture of oil (from the kuruleng, wild oil tree) and red earth, but this custom is dying out.

They are great smokers and cultivate their own tobacco, which they make into cakes. The tobacco grown in the Lokoya hills is the most prized. The women manufacture clay pipes.

As regards their religious views, they have a name for the Supreme Being, "NGUN," who is the representative of goodness and therefore not to be feared and requires no sacrifices. The noun "NGUN" comes from the obsolete verbal root ngun (to be big), from which the word tóngun (to be bigger, to surpass) appears more complete and is frequently used.

If a man is old and is afraid of death, he is asked: do Ngun? Are you God?—that is to say, Do you want to live for ever?

They have also an expression for the evil spirit, ajók, pl. ajokan, or júck, whom they are obliged to appease by offering sacrifices (robangga, pl. robánggajúu). Some old Baris call the viper their grandmother, and offer it milk as a sacrifice. They have also their sorcerers, and a distinction is made between good and bad ones. The former, búnit, pl. búnuk, are in possession of secret remedies, especially for cases of sickness. There are also the so called "rain-makers" (búnuk-ti-kudu), who maintain that it lies in their power to bring rain, and when called upon to produce it demand beforehand a special payment of cattle. This is, however, a dangerous art, for if it does not rain at the right time the rain-maker is hunted out and often put to death that he may give up the rain he has kept back. The evil sorcerers or chief wizards, who only do harm and bring trouble, are called demúnit, pl. demák.

THE GRAMMAR.

CHAPTER I.

THE ALPHABET.

THE Bariis have no writing of their own. Seeing a stranger write they say, "nge wuwur," he is scratching, engraving, drawing. Wur = to write. Wuruti = writing.

The complete Alphabet, expressed in the Latin characters with modifications and the addition of the Teutonic "w," is as follows:—a, á, â, ã, b, d, e, é, ê, f, g, i, í, î, y, j, k, l, m, u, ug, 'ug, ny, o, ó, ô, õ, p, r, s, t, u, ú, û, w.

NOTE 1.—The letters c, h, q, x, z do not appear, because there is no corresponding sound in Bari.

NOTE 2.—"Y" is placed immediately after "i," because it sometimes serves as a short English "e" or "y."

NOTE 3.—"P" is almost always pronounced as "F," with the exception of very few words. Consequently in this book "P" has been generally replaced by "F" in the Grammar. In some villages the "P" is more often pronounced; therefore when looking up a word in the Vocabulary commencing with "P" the reader must look it up under "F." In the Vocabulary "F" only has been used.

CHAPTER II.

A.—THE VOWELS AND THEIR PRONUNCIATION.

- a* is, like all vowels without accent, clear and pure, like the English "a" in farthing and father. Ex.: kak, earth; baka, to cease.
- á* corresponds to the broad á (â) in French and Greek. Ex.: bárara, to go and bring, to fetch; baráudu, to overflow; adú? how?

á (rare) is pronounced like the circumflex "a" in other languages. Ex.: dák, tobacco-pipe; dára, to be tired; bongguát, clothes.

â occurs only in two words, buryâ, seven; logulâu, cock, and is sounded like the English "a" in fall, all.

e A pure, clear sound. Ex.: def or dep (dedep), to raise, to keep; dede, later, then.

é is like the oxytone "e" in other languages. Ex.: dé, to hide; delé, hide; kelé, tooth; kiasér, sister.

ê The long "e." Ex.: dêrn, grass, hay; nyé, to eat.

i Pure and clear. Ex.: jik (jjik), to lead; gin (gigin), to tear; ying (yinging), to hear.

î The sharp "i." Ex.: möji, imp. (möjita), drink.

í Long. Ex.: likin, to lose; lilik, to be dry; kulík, small.

y (as a vowel) always a quite short "i." Ex.: töwylí, heart; murye, blue; nányet, her (suffix).

o read clear and pure. Ex.: lodoke, toad; lokokorít, boundary; lom, side.

ó spoken sharply. Ex.: lójur, sad; lómurye, blue; lótór, red.

ô read long. Ex.: dók, to wind a skein; gwóso, similar, like, as; mó (contr. of molu), later.

ö corresponds to the Turkish "ö," and approaches the English sound in murder, or the French "eu" in seul. It occurs frequently and care must be taken to keep the sound well closed, so as not to confound it with "e." Ex.: köðini, tree, wood; töki, again; köfüröt or köpuröt, smoke; lupö or lufö, to enter; against this, lupe or lufe, to go out; durjö (durjyö); to grow; durje, to milk.

u Clear and pure. Ex.: but (bubut), to strike; buku, shield.

ú An oxytone "u." Ex.: karútet, exchange; lukulúlu, bat; lutú, son-in-law.

û a long "u," only occurs in a few words. Ex.: úri, pl. úrjö, boar; kukúdi, armhole, armpit.

There are no so-called diphthongs in Bari, except "au" in kan, whip; kauréleny, matter of the eye; yaua, beer (merissa). The remaining words with "au," in which the "a" and "u" are pronounced separately, are distinguished by the acute accent, which is placed over each accented vowel. Ex.: áulue, chosen; áurō (awúrō), written; lóuyū, f. náuyū, wet, damp. In the same way the remaining vowels coming together are always pronounced separately. Ex.: gei (geï) = ge-í, dotoet = doto-et; diediéro = dí-e-dí-éro.

B.—THE PRONUNCIATION OF THE CONSONANTS.

The consonants are produced by three parts of the vocal mechanism, directed from the back towards the front of the mouth. They are divided into six classes:—

- I. Gutturals: g, k.
- II. Palatals: s, j, y.
- III. Liquids: l, r.
- IV. Dentals: n, d, t.
- V. Labials: b, w, p, f, m.
- VI. Nasals: ng, 'ng, ny.

8.

I.—THE GUTTURALS.

g is pronounced soft throughout, like a German "ch," or as before a, o, u, in Roman. Ex.: gaf or gap, to protect; gege, never; gin, to tear.

NOTE.—If two "g's" occur immediately together ("gg") both must be heard. Ex.: yanggo, mother; kapenggo or kafenggo, big sack; read yang-go, kapeng-go.

k corresponds to the English "k" as in king, kitchen, kiss. Ex.: kak, earth; ki, heaven.

II.—PALATALS.

s always like the English "j" in jeer, jest, just, and the Italian "ge," "gi." Ex.: sape, mug, jug; sar (sasar), to judge; sókoro, hens; subi, wax; spoken jape, jar, etc.

j is much softer than "s," especially in the plurals in "ji" and "jin," resembling the Arabic dj in hadji.

y as consonant is like the English "y" in yes, year. Ex.: yá? whence? yayu, to move (of water).

III.—LIQUIDS.

l and r } have the ordinary pronunciation as in other languages, English, } Italian, etc.

11.

IV.—DENTALS.

- n* has the same sound as in other languages.
t is always hard like the Greek τ and is never suppressed.
d like the modern Greek δ or English “the”. Double d (dd) is read as in English, wedding, pudding. If it occurs at the end of a word the second “d” is continued in sound from the first. Ex.: kwadd = kwad-d = to honour.

12.

V.—LABIALS.

- b* has mostly a very soft sound, sometimes, namely, before “a,” to such a degree that it may be suppressed altogether. Ex.: baláng = aláng, salt; bang = ang, court-yard; baka = aka, to cease.
w (1) is pronounced very softly or may be omitted altogether. Ex.: wuju (wucúju), to take; awürö, written; one can also read and write: uju (ucúju) and aurö.
 (2) It may be replaced by “u.” Ex.: süwa = süua, bees; yítwe = yítue = to return; mudwe = múdue, dark.
 (3) It is pronounced somewhat harder after the letters “y” or “k.” Ex.: gwon (gwogwon), to remain, to live; kwe, head; kwelen (kwekwélen), to be beautiful.
p { appear in some words for each other. Ex.: fárana or párana = and { peace; ferok or perok = time; fúrue or púrue = to awake. Only f { fungöt and furyö have “f” alone. V. Vocab., under F.

VI.—NASALS.

The Nasals are very important and are divided into three classes, i.e.,

(1) ny; (2) ng; (3) 'ng.

- ny* has the least nasal sound (when followed by a vowel). With a person speaking naturally through the nose, the “y” is almost inaudible. Ex.: nyu, there; nyob, to welcome; nyanyar, to love.
ng in the first and final sound is like the “ng” in the English sing, ring. Ex.: dingit, time; bunguán, nine; geleng, alone; yangö, leprosy; read ding-it, yang-o, bung-uán.
'ng (ng in the final sound) at the beginning of a word has the strongest and most pronounced nasal sound. Ex.: ngesu (nge'ngesu), to eat; ngö'ngögu, to relate; ngá (ngálo)? who?

NOTE.—Only the pronoun nge (he, she) is read as enclitica like the soft nasal “nye.”

CHAPTER III.

A.—THE APOSTROPHE AND DIÆRESIS.

The apostrophe appears but seldom in Bari and is of importance in the following words only: l' yá (lo yá), where is he? and n' yá (na, yá), where is she? In all other cases words which take the apostrophe may be written in full. Ex.: d' afo or d' apo (also: do apo), you are come; ko t' améle (ko tu améle), if you have seen; takíta nan, n' amét ko n' aying ta kune, tell me what you have seen and heard.

NOTE.—For the signification of the apostrophe before “ng” at the beginning of a word, V. Parag. 13.

The diæresis is used on “i” to show that it must be read separately from the preceding vowel. Ex.: in gei, used, read ge-i: aïn, not, read a-in.

B.—QUANTITIES AND ACCENTS.

The vowels a, e, i, o, u, as a rule are rather short, but when they are to be pronounced long they are written with a circumflex accent, thus: á, é, í, ó, ú, the accent remaining on this syllable. V. Parags. 2-6.

The vowels a, e, o, u, can also be quite short; the short “i” is indicated by “y.” V. Parag. 4.

A short vowel to be read or spoken in a very pronounced manner is designated by the acute accent, and these are divided into two classes.

(a)—WORD-ACCENTS.

(1) In Bari there are a number of words of one, two or more syllables, of which the vowels coming together have the same accent, and as each vowel must be clearly and distinctly pronounced, each should take the acute accent. Ex.: de = dé, dede = délé; fafarasak = fáfárásák. In order to avoid excess of accents, in this case all are omitted.

(2) There are many expressions and forms of words in which one syllable is especially prominent, namely, in all imperatives. Ex.: agí, compelled; lóbut, fem. nábut, good; adá? how? musáta, three; lunjí, imp. (lungíta), call; biú, imp. (biúta), kiss.

NOTE 1.—The vowel “ö,” generally short, is mostly unaccented—only the imperative of some verbs is also oxytone in the singular and paroxytone in the plural; with these the accent is omitted. Ex.: durjyö (durjö) = to grow, imp. durjyö, plur. durjyöta; juruddyö, to sink, imp. juruddyö, plur. juruddyöta.

NOTE 2.—A vowel following immediately an accented syllable, and when forming a syllable of itself, must be read very short. Ex. : níylu (níilu), fem. níynu (níinu), that there—read nílu, nínu ; níelo, fem. níena, this there—read almost nílo, nína.

(b)—THE SENTENCE-ACCENT.

The sentence-accent resembles the enclitica in Greek.

(1) A word of one or two syllables following an oxytone, of which the first syllable is short (or half length) and the second unaccented, must be read as formal enclitica. Ex. : dongé lo (na), drive him (her) away—read dongélo (dongéna) ; delé mugun, hide yourself—read delémugun ; tí nan, give me—read tínan.

NOTE.—The plural exponent of the imperative “ta” (you) is also a similar enclitica.

(2) The articles lo (lu), na, tí, as well as the prepositions i, ko, ku, the conjunction on and other monosyllables under the above circumstances are mostly oxytone ; therefore the word immediately following must be read as enclitica. Ex. : molokótyo ló ngutu, the soul of the man ; molókojin tí¹ ngutu, the souls of the men ; i lor, on the day ; i kí, in heaven ; i lak, on earth.

kó ta, with you.

kó ce, with them.

kó ngutu, with people.

kú baba, by the father, or with the father.

kú ngote, by the mother, or with the mother.

NOTE 1.—The negative “tí” has also this peculiarity. Ex. : nge tí bulö, he (she) cannot.

NOTE 2.—If stress is laid upon the pronoun, it must take the accent. Ex. : ko dó, with thee ; ko tá nan tutu ? shall I go with you ?

CHAPTER I.

WORD AND VERBAL ROOTS.

In the Dinka language the root and word are often identical and may be used as verb, noun, adjective, or even as preposition. The Bari language is much superior. The verbal root is seldom used as substantive as in other languages. Ex. : kulya, to speak, and the speech ; although the Bari in a great many cases has developed many nouns from roots of the same form, especially nomina actionis and abstracta, as well as all roots or stems which have a passive form, and many others, nomina agentis.

Ex. : sar , to judge.	yol-o , to sing.
sar-et , law.	yol-et , song.
ku-sar-u-nit , judge.	ka-yol-o-nit , singer.

FORM OF THE ROOT.

The Bari language has no root consisting of a single vowel by itself. If the root is of one syllable (in the simplest form), vowel and consonant are united and the latter precedes.

Ex. : bí , to suck.	de , to hide.
sá , to tear out.	kó , to bide.
sé , to wipe.	só , to prick, sting, etc.

Only the imperative and sometimes the passive form of these verbal roots show the abolition of a third radical letter, a suppression of the consonant sound. The imperative is then sounded as follows :—

bijé (bijéta).	delé (deléta), pass. déla .
sané (sanéta).	dulé (duléta) ,, dulé .
sené (senéta)

The complete roots would then be bij, san, sen, del, dul.

The next-mentioned root-forms are those which are almost identical with the above, and are those in which the vowel precedes a consonant and the root is first sounded with a consonant and ends with a consonant.

Ex. : but, to strike, den, to know, kon, to make, gin, to tear.

Further, roots must be taken into consideration of two or more syllables, which scarcely merit this appellation. They are composed of one-syllable roots which have become enlarged for the most part by composition.

EXTENSION OF THE ROOT BY REDUPLICATION.

Roots are transformed by various means to stems. The most effectual is, as in other languages, by Reduplication. This serves in Bari principally to designate the present and future in opposition to the perfect.

Ex. : nan nge'ngesu, I eat (am busy with food).
Ngun gwogwón i ki, God lives in heaven.
do wuwur, thou writest.

The perfect would be ngé gwon (nge agwon) kú ta, he (she) was with you ; uan a'ngesu, I have eaten ; do awur, thou hast written.

NOTE 1.—Several verbs keep the “re” also in the aorist. V. 34.

NOTE 2.—As a further enlargement the re appears by the raising of the adjective or adverb. V. 89.

CHAPTER II.

THE ELEMENTS OF WORD-MAKING.

Next to and (in use also with) the reduplication are different elements which serve to enlarge and transform the roots into stems. These are suffixes and prefixes.

A.—SUFFIXES.

(a) Simple. The most important are :— a Ex. : dan-a, to hide one's self ; dár-a, to tire one's self ; bak-a, to cease, to finish.

NOTE.—The above forms are really only passive or reflective forms of the obsolete primitive roots bak, dan, dar.

c Ex. : lup-e or luf-e, to go out ; mel-e, to see ; kiw-e, to mount.

i pur-i or fur-i, to itch ; kwel-i, to wake ; kud-i, to look ; kweu-i, to laugh.

NOTE.—Kud-i is shortened from kud-ya, kwel-i and pur-i or fur-i and kwen-i short forms of kwel-in, kwen-in, and pur-in or fur-in. Kud-i, in the imperat. kudié (kudyé); the other three kweliné, kweeniné, and puriné or furiné.

o dot-o, to sleep; yol-o, to sing; dom-o, to be sad.

NOTE.—The verbs in “o” are also shortened forms of dot-on, dom-on, yol-on. The imperative is dotoní, domoní, yoloní.

ö Ex.: jöl-ö, to travel; gwör-ö, to buy; bul-ö, to be able.

NOTE.—The imperative of the verbs is pronounced bulöní, gwöröní, jölöní.

u Ex.: sul-u, to commence; bur-u, to repent, regret; beg-u, to ram into.

NOTE.—begu in the Imperative is begí.

sulu	„	„	suluné .
buru	„	„	buruní .

au Mer-an, to get drunk; yuk-an, to rest, repose; rom-an, to greet.

en Ex.: kwel-en, to be beautiful; my-en, to be ill; yul-en, to be discontented.

The nasal sound “eng” occurs only in the word bel-eng, to break.

ri has the same meaning as the German ver, ent, weg. Ex.: böngö-ri, to forget; gwörö-ri, to give away, to sell; wögö-ri.

rö With the same meaning as “ri,” chiefly separation or removal. Ex.: bukö-rö, to pour away; rikö-rö, to chase, drive away.

et forms nomina actionis and abstracta. Ex.: sar-et, judgment (saran, to judge); wan-et, prayer (wan-du, to pray).

on (ong) Ex.: wong-on, to cry, to lament; gwolong, to dwell, to stay.

ön Tur-ön, to lean against; dir-ön, to drown.

un Meaning hither, towards, thither, along (similar to the particle yu). Ex.: pes-un, to rob; guk-un, to invite.

ba Ex.: dib-ba, to prepare a hearth (out of stone); deb-ba, to stay, to stick (similar to the suffix “a”).

bu Ex.: göm-bu, to hedge in; rem-bu, to kill.

du Gwad-du, to sprinkle, to squirt at; baran-du, to overflow.

ya (dya) Ex.: du-ya, to stoop; kon-dya, to make.

yö Ex.: fur-yö, to choke; bir-yö, to play (as children play).

yu Ex.: pu-yu or fu-yu, to rub, to stroke; pe-yu or fe-yu, to bake; mo-yu, to beg.

ji Together with the before-mentioned "a" or "ö," sign of the passive or reflective form. Ex.: wal-á-ji, to walk, to go for a walk; wör-ö-ji, to remove.

jya (ja) Ex.: ki-ja, to mount, go up; li-ja, to strain, filter; der-jya (der-ja), to cook.

yyö (jö) Ex.: wiwi-jö, to spin; dur-jö, to grow.

jyu Ex.: sar-jyu, to judge; dur-jyu, to be sad.

ju Ex.: sa-ju, to tear or pull out; so-ju, to spear.

kin With the meaning of doing something to or for someone. Ex.: ta-kin, to tell someone; moyu (root mó, imperat. molé, passive mólo, to beg, entreat), molo-kin, to ask for something for someone; grörö, to buy, gwö-rö-kin, to buy something for someone.

NOTE.—Sometimes kin has also the meaning a . . . something to. Ex.: rusun, to undress; rasu-kin, to put on a dress.

nit (anit) comes from the pronoun uge (he, she), and with "t" occurs in the suffix sing., masc. and fem., ló-nit (more generally ló-nyet), fem. ná-nit (generally ná-nyet), his, her, or also in ká'ngit, with him, her. A number of "nomina agentis" serve as examples, vide the feminine of kabía-nit kawúvönit.

NOTE.—All verbs which have a true passive or passive form form these nomina agentis.

NOTE 2.—Instead of the final sound "nit" in the sing., "k" appears throughout the plural, and it is also to be looked for in the plural of the demonstrative kulo, fem. kune.

(b) Compound suffixes consist of two of the above simple suffixes. Ex.: bi-un-dya, to kiss; gwör-un-dyö, to buy; mörö-kin-dya, to thank someone.

24.

B.—PREFIXES.

a This prefix, on account of its importance, can be written separately, and serves:—

(1) As copula. Ex.: Nygn aduma (a dumu), God is great; yanggo anábut (a nábut), My father is good, My mother is good; silo kaden arigwo (a rí'wo), These trees are straight.

(2) As verb in the perfect, active and passive, with the meaning, is . . . or has Ex.: wur, to write; perf. awur, has written, passive awürö, is written; tuán, to die; perf. átuan, is dead.

NOTE.—In this form sometimes the perfect takes the place of adjective or participle. Ex.: abelengo, broken, from beleng = to break; agwáta, splashed, from gwaddu, to splash.

(3) It forms adverbs from substantives. Ex.: rima, blood; aríma, bloody; lutáten, the right hand; alutáten, right, to the right; u'érete, side; am'érete, sideways.

ló { serve as gender-prefixes to many adjectives whose simple roots are not and { in use. Ex.: lósok, fem. nások, thin; lóbut, fem. nabut, good; lóngon, ná { fem. náugon, bad.

to This prefix forms transitive verbs from intransitive verbs and doubles transitive verbs. Ex.: díniki, to learn; todínikiu, to teach; dínet, lesson (active); todínet, instruction (in the passive); kadínanit, scholar; katodínanit, teacher; biáju, to recover; tobiáju, to heal; kotobáuit, doctor; yuran, to be sad; toyúran, to make sad.

tu Rare form for "to." Ex.: tubáka (instead of tobáka), to finish; tuja, to cause disgust.

k (ka) forms with the perfect the passive or reflective, and, in conjunction with the suffix "nit," nomina agentis. V. above, under 22, "nit."

NOTE 1.—Tu, as substantive prefix, which may be used also adverbially, has the same particular adverbial meaning. Ex.: kotyang = evening; túkotyang, in the evening; kwaje, night; túkwaje, in the night.

CHAPTER III.

THE PRONOUN.

The Pronouns are divided into six classes.

- | | |
|--------------------|--------------------|
| (1) Personal. | (4) Relative. |
| (2) Possessive. | (5) Interrogative. |
| (3) Demonstrative. | (6) Indefinite. |

(1) PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

SIMPLE.

Singular.	Plural.
nau , I	yi , we
do , thou	ta , you
nge (lo , lu), he	se (kulo , kulu), they
nge (na , nu), she	se (kune , kuuu), they (f.)

These pronouns are not inflected, but remain unchanged in all circumstances. Ex.: nau means me, or to me, as well as I; nge (lo, lu) has—as well as the meaning he—him, to him, etc. Nevertheless it is to be observed that—

(1) Instead of the personal pronoun, the possessive is used. Ex.: yi rerebu kadijik musála geleng a inot, We wish to build three huts, one for thee (literally one is thine—thine in the fem. because kadi is fem.).

(2) After the preposition ku (by, to, with, from), which experiences a triple metamorphose and changes into kö, kó or ka (ká), the above forms, with the exception of the third person plural, become—

Singular.

1st Person, kö-yö, with (from, to) me.

2nd Person, kó-nut (kónut), with (from, to) thee.

3rd Person, ká'ngit, with (from, to) him, her.

Plural.

1st Person, ka-yang (kayang), with (from, for, to) us.

2nd Person, ka-su (kasu), with (from, to) you.

3rd Person, ka-se (kase), with (from, to) them.

Several Bari verbs are constructed with “ku” or “ko,” and on this account the above forms are used instead of the simple personal pronouns. Ex.: kune ling na nyár ta kune, ngutu kondya kasu (ka-su), konéta kase (ka-se) lunga! All that you wish that people should do to you, do also unto them.

RULES IN SYNTAX AND EXAMPLES.

If the personal pronoun in a sentence is in the dative case, it must precede the accusative.

Examples.

Nan atín lu muntye, I have given him bread.

Nan tintín do piom or fiom, I give you water.

Ti nan piom or fiom, nan momoyú do, Give me water, I entreat you.

Nan agwörökín ta le, I have bought you some milk.

Kajye diong akó ta (se)? Did the dog bite you yesterday?

Inke, kajye nge akó yi (se), Yes, yesterday he bit us.

Nan agwon kó-nut (ká'ngit), I was with you.

Nan dedek kó-nut sókoro musála, I demand three hens from him.

The possessive personal pronouns myself, thyself, himself, in part express certain verbs; in part, in the singular, is placed instead of nan, do, etc., the word mugun, meaning body, and in the plural, instead of yi, ta, se, the plural of mugun, berik, although in the first case mugun or berik may be used as pleonasm.

Examples.

Nan lilik (mugun), I am drying myself.

Se lilik (berik), They are drying themselves.

Nge laláju (mugun), He (she) is washing himself.

Se laláju berik, They are washing themselves.

Tijí (tini) mugun on kondya sine, Take care to do that (sing.).

Tijíta (tiníta) berik on kondya sine, Take care to do that (pl.).

Nan wíwíd mugun, I am turning.

Se wíwíd berik, They are turning.

COMPOUND PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

Singular.	Plural.
nan-geleng , I alone.	yí-kade , we alone.
do-geleng , thou alone.	tá-kade , you alone.
nge-geleng , he, she alone.	sé-kade , they alone.

Singular.

nan-lopeng, or nan-lofeng, I myself.

do-lopeng, or do-lofeng, thou thyself.

nge-lopeng, or nge-lofeng, he (she) himself (herself).

Plural.

yí-lope'ngat, or yí-lofe'ngat, we ourselves.

ta-lope'ngat, or ta-lofe'ngat, you yourselves.

se-lope'ngat, or se-lofe'ngat, they themselves.

NOTE 1.—Instead of “lopeng” or “lofeng,” mugun may be used, and instead of lope'ngat,” “lofe'ngat berik”—nán-mugun, dó-mugun, etc., yí-berik, ta-berik, etc.

NOTE 2.—All are of common gender.

NOTE 3.—The Rule of Syntax 26 applies also here.

29.

(2) POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS.

These principally appear first as suffixes and secondly as independent possessive pronouns.

(a) SUFFIXES.

Singular.	Plural.
lio , f. nio , my	kwe , f. kwe , my
ilot , f. inot , thy	kalök , f. kunök , thy
lónyét , f. nányét , his, her	kányét , f. kányét , his, her
likang , f. nikung , our	kang , f. kang , our
lósu , f. násu , your	kasu , f. kasu , your
lóse , f. náse , their	kase , f. kase , their

NOTE.—The forms lónyét, nányét and kányét are pronounced sometimes almost like ná'ngit and ká'ngit.

RULES IN SYNTAX AND EXAMPLES.

The Suffix agrees in number and gender with the preceding substantive.

Examples.

Nan yuyúran lungasér-lio átuan kaje, I mourn my brother who died yesterday.

Lungasér-ilot adirön kare, Your brother has been drowned in the river.

Deket-inot gwegwé, According to your will or wish.

Gor-nányet nátun, His lance is blunt.

Iur-lósu kó ngutu jore, There are many people in your land.

Ngote-násu ko nguájik puök or fuök, Your mother has ten children.

Dapyet-lóse (duppyet-náse) átuan, Their maid-servant is dead. Dufyét-lóse (dufyet-náse).

Sókoro-kwe yuque jore, My hens lay many eggs.

Karín-kumök kwakwasa, Thy name will be praised.

Kíjuk-kányet alósok, His cows are lean.

Lungasirik-kasu (kiasirik-kasu) témejik, Your brothers (your sisters) are big.

Ngu ujik-kase alókong, Their children are intelligent.

Slight exceptions to the use of the foregoing suffixes are the words ba (baba),¹ father, and yanggo (ngote), mother.

Examples.

Singular.

ba (baba), my	}	father.
mu'ngi , thy
monyé , his (her)
bá-likang (babá-likang), our mu'ngi-lósu , your
monyé-lóse , their	}	mother.
yanggo (ngoté-njó), my nguti , thy
ngote , his (her)
yanggo-kang , our nguti-kasu , your ngote-kase , their

Plural.

kóbaba-kang , our	}	father.
kómu'ngi-kasu , your kómonyé-kase , their
koyanggo-kang , our	}	mother.
kó nguti-kasu , your kó ngote-kase , their

NOTE.—The suffix can also be omitted in lungasér-ilot (thy brother), when the word must be pronounced lungósúr.

NOTE 1.—Ba (baba) means the nearest to the natural father, and requires therefore no suffix when the speaker is speaking of his father, although one can also use bibá-lío.

(b) INDEPENDENT POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS.

The above suffixes may also be used as independent possessives, sometimes without, but mostly with the preceding verb “a.”

RULE.

The Possessive must agree in gender and number with the relative substantive.

Examples.

Nílo dúnyet (or dúfyet) a lío, a ílot, a lónyet (lónyít), a líkang, a lósu, a lóse, This slave is mine, thine, his, hers, etc.

Níena wuret a nio, a inot, nányet (nányít), etc., This book is mine, thine, his, etc.

Sine líng a kwe, All this is mine.

Nan (masc.) ílot (a ílot), nan (fem.) inot (a inot), I am thine.

32.

(3) DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.

SIMPLE.

lo, f. na, Plur. silo (kulo), f. sine (kune), this, these, etc.

lu, f. nu, Plur. silu (kulu), f. sinu (kunu), that, those.

NOTE.—Of the four singular forms only “lo” is used as a demonstrative and then appears as a prefix. Ex. : i lólör ki aduör, To-day (on this day) the sky is cloudy.

More often these forms are used as personal pronouns, and ló (f. ná) to indicate gender in adjectives.

RULE.

A Demonstrative Pronoun in conjunction with a substantive must precede the nominative in principal sentences ; in subordinate and dependent sentences, in the oblique case, it may also come after.

Examples.

Silo (kulo) kölípinök kíkita, ama sine (kune) wáte gwogwon kana, These boys work, but these girls are idle.

Sílu (kulu) lian ko góro, sinu (kunu) ngwájik ko sayya (or safya) tí piom (or fiom), Those men carry lances, those girls water-pots.

33.

COMPOUND.

Nielo, f. niena, Plur. siloni (kúlouí), f. síneni (kúneni), this here, etc.

Luyú (lu-yu), f. nyuy (nu-yu), Plur. sílu-yu (kúlu-yu), f. sínu-yu (kúnu-yu), that there, etc.

Níilu (níylu), f. níinu (níyuu), Plur. silu (kulu), f. sinu (kunu), the same who or which.

Rule 32 is also applied here.

Examples.

Nielo lalet alóbut niena nakwan anáron, This man is good, this woman is bad.

Siloni (kúlouí) kimák kalíöngök ló ngutu ling, These chiefs are friendly to everyone.

Síneni (kúneni) kódyji yeyema kó lor n budök bot, In eight days these girls will be married.

Nau amok sílu-yu somot ling ko yeje, I have caught all those fish with the net.

(4) RELATIVE PRONOUNS.

The Relative Pronoun is similar to the Demonstrative and of frequent repetition, especially in the accusative case.

Examples.

Singular.	Plural.
Masc. lo (lu); lo lo ,	se (silo , kulo); lo (se) kulo ,
Fem. na (nu); na na ,	se (siue , kune); na kune .

RULE.

The double forms lo . . . lo, na . . . na are used only in the accusative singular, but in the plural lo (se) . . . kulo also in the nominative. In both cases the first part forms the beginning, and the second the end of the relative sentence.

Examples.

Dyet, na apó (or afó) ní, kiasér-nio, The girl who has come here is my sister.

Lele kata kasu kiden, ló ti dén ta lo, There is one amongst you whom you do not know.

Yi dedek takín ngutu, lo asunundyé yi kulo, We wish to take an answer to those who sent us.

Takíta,¹ Abdu, na amét, na aying ta kune, Tell Abdu what you have seen and heard.

Kune ling, na uyár ta kune, All that you want.

NOTE.—The neut. plur. is always expressed in Bari by the genit. fem.

(5) INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS.

1. Nga (ngá), who? Plural, kónga (kúnga), common gender.

RULE.

These forms are used at the beginning of a sentence—

- (1) when they are in the nominative case ;
- (2) when “a” is not used as a verb.

Examples.

Ngun a ngá ? Who is God ?

Ngá tu ngerot ? Who is going in advance ?

Kó'nga ngutu akorju ? Who (which people) has ploughed ?

Yeyeji burá, anyán do dedén, do atín gor ngá. Reflect well, so that you may remember to whom you gave the spear.

The Genitive and Dative are mostly expressed by the forms l'nga (m.), n'nga (f.) and (plur.) *t'nga*¹ (com. gen.), with the verbal prefix “a,” and are placed at the end of the sentence.

Examples.

Nielo kosó al'nga ? To whom does this tobacco-pouch belong ?

Waret an'nga ? Whose is this book ?

Wúretji at'nga ? Whose books are these ?

NOTE 1.—From ló nga, tí nga.

2. Ngálo, f. ngána, plur. ko'ngálo (ku'ngálo), f. ko'ngána (ku'ngána), which.

NOTE.—The Plural can also be pronounced kó'nga (kú'nga), com. gen., and is placed in the sentence as the above.

Examples.

Ngálo wowongon ? Who is screaming ?

Lu wowongon a ngálo ? Ngána ap, or afó ? (Na apó, or afó, a ngána ?)
Who has come ?

Kó'ngálo lian í kó ? Which men are at the war ?

Kú'ngána ngutu gwé'weja sappa ? Which women make pitchers ?

3. Ngyo (i'ngyo), what ? stands always at the end of the sentence.

Examples.

Nan akondya ngyo ? What have I done ?

Do dek ngyo (i'ngyo) ? What do you want ?

Do a'ngesu i'ngyo ? What have you eaten ?

Luatín do ngyo ? What has he given you ?

4. The Interrogative What sort of ? is expressed by the following short forms—lón, f. nán, plur. kúlon, f. kúnön.¹

NOTE.—Ngálo, ngána, etc., can also be used.

NOTE 1.—Lón = ló-nga ; nán = ná-nga ; kúlon = kulo nga ; kúnön = kune-nga.

RULE.

Lón, nán, etc. stand at the beginning of a sentence when the verb “a” is not specially expressed; in this case a nán stands at the end of the sentence. The same rule applies to ko’nga (c.) and ko’ngana.

Examples.

Lón níelo nguro? What sort of boy is he? Nán níena nguro? What kind of girl is she? It is also correct to say: Níelo nguro a ngálo? Níena nguro a nán?

Kúlou sílo nguájik? What sort of boys are they? Kúnön síne nguájik? What sort of girls are they? or Sílo nguájik kó’nga? Síne nguájik kó’nga (ko’ngáua)?

NOTE.—If nán is used with a substantive and preposition in conjunction, it must be placed after both of them.

Ex. : I pírit, or jírít, nán do gwogwon? Where (in which place) do you live?

I dingít nán do atalúe? When were you born?

5. Why? is expressed in Bari by ngyo? (V. under 6).

Ex. : Do reróuya ngyo? Why do you lie? Ngun ogwéja ngutu ngyo? Why has God created man?

6. The interrogatives With which, Whereby, How, Wherein, are expressed by ko ngyo? and have the same position in the sentence as “ngyo.”

Ex. : Kómyru momók ngutu ko ngyo? Ko kutuk. How (with what) does the lion take hold of a man? With his jaw.

Kódini alóbut do dedén ko ngyo? Ko konyen. How do you know a good tree? By its fruit.

36.

(6) INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.

Lele, fem. nene, plur. kulye, fem. kunye, corresponds somewhat to the Latin unus et alter.

Ex. : lele bot lele, fem. nene bot nene, one after the other.

Kulye kólipinók doggu lípólen, or lífólou, kulye doggu woro, Some lads carry bricks, others dung.

For “another” or “other,” used alone, lege (legé), plur. legelok (c.).

Ex. : kó dik tolyen ná mouye lege (also lele), Thou shalt not covet another’s goods.

Nobody, No one, is expressed by lele, geleng (a single one), ngutu (man), and the negative “an.”

Examples.

An-geleng (c.) not one, no one.

An-geleng lósu pípi, or fíí, nan: dó tu da? Not one of you ask me: where are you going?

Lele-an, fem. nene-an, plur. kulye-an, fem. kunye-an, nobody, no one, not anybody.

Bain-lele, fem. baïn-nene, plur. baïn-kulye, fem. bain kunye, no one, not one.

Both, murék (muréke). Ex.: yi, ta, se muréke, we, you, they both.

Some, a few, kulye, fem. kunye.

Many, lödir. In the singular and in conjunction with substantives "jore" is generally used.

All, ling.

All, the whole, ling.

Some, any, a little, ngo.

Nothing, an, aïn, baïn.

NOTE.—Ngutu-an is used as well as lele-an.

CHAPTER IV.

37.

THE VERB.

The Verbs in Bari may be divided into ten classes.

I. Verbs with a primitive root ending in a vowel. Ex.: mé, to drive; mó, to beg; po or fo, to come.

II. Verbs with a primitive root ending in a consonant. Ex.: kor, to divide, share; kut, to blow; lok, to bind, tie.

III. Two or more syllable verbs ending in "a." Ex.: kokóya, to steal; pipúnga or fifúnga, to whistle; kita, to work.

IV. Two or more syllable verbs ending in "e." Ex.: dúrué, to be sad; rié, to find; mörökíndye, to thank.

V. Two or more syllable verbs ending in "i." Ex.: böngöri, to forget; jusken, to scratch, itch; kukudi, to tickle.

VI. Two or more syllable verbs ending in "o." Ex.: doto, to sleep; togo, to strengthen; wereyo, to ooze.

VII. Two or more syllable verbs ending in "ö." Ex.: jötö, to travel; tokúörö, to announce, publish; bulö, to be able.

VIII. Two or more syllable verbs ending in "u." Ex.: sulo, to begin, commence; gwulúngedu, to tumble; lalaju, to wash one's self.

IX. Two or more syllable verbs ending in a consonant. Ex.: gwalak, to break; dulan, to flow; möbur, to stink.

X. Defective verbs. Ex.: agí, to be compelled, forced, must; adí, to have said; kata, to have.

All examples of the first nine classes are in the infinitive.

THE TENSES.

The formation of the tenses in Bari is extremely simple. The simple tenses express an action still unfinished at the epoch in question, and the compound show that the action is finished at the time alluded to, and already done.

The perfect is formed by the root (infinitive) and the present by reduplication.

If the perfect be specially indicated as a pure form of the past it must be preceded by the substantive verb "a."

In the present reduplication is only of importance when a real continuance mentioned by the verb be indicated and especially of the verbs of the III.-IX. Classes. Ex. : nan ngesu, I eat; if I wish to say that I am sitting eating and will continue to eat, then I must make use of the form nge'ngesu. With one-syllable roots (Classes I. and II.), either the reduplication is used, or where there is an enlarged compound root present the word "wur," to write, or "kon," to make, or the enlarged root of the latter. "kondya." I can also say nan wurur, I am writing; nan kokon or nan kondya (also kokondya), I make, do.

From the above it follows that this form of reduplication denotes a future tense and the Bari use it really as such.

If the future is to be specially indicated then the word "de" (then, later) must be placed before the verb, or "molu" (hereafter, then), after.

Examples.

Nán de kíkita (nan kíkita molu), I shall work later.

Ngé de nge'ngesu (nge nge'ngesu molu), he will eat later.

The perfect is formed by giving to the infinitive an "a" prefix, with the meaning is, or has, although this form in the active has sometimes also a present signification.

Ex. : nge améran, he has got drunk, or also he is still intoxicated.

In the passive this form always signifies the present and preterite, as in Latin amatus est, doctus est.

REDUPLICATION.

Reduplication consists in repeating the first open syllable as prefix.

Examples.

kó, to bite = kokó

der, to cook = dedér

lung, to call = lulung

gwöröri, to sell = gwörögwöröri

tojóre, to fill = totojóre

gweja, to form = gwégwéja

There are several verbs which retain reduplication not only in the present but also in the perfect, imperative, passive and negative. The most important are :—

From Class III.

dudungga, to be vain, proud lilima, to rain slightly oója, to swing mamála, to be stupid, foolish kukúlija, to tickle

ugo'ngólija, to beg pípúnga or fífúnga, to whistle tetendya, to mend
bobólija, to make laugh

From Class IV.

totóre, to scatter

From Class VII.

wiwijö, to spin
lilinggö, to glaze

From Class VIII.

babágu, to fill, to store yeyéju, to reflect, meditate juju, to brood, to hatch

títúu, to tattoo laláju, to wash one's self

From Class IX.

lilík, to be dry
ríríg, to mend, repair teten, to prepare titik, to shut close lulur, to cut out round

The copulas : ya, ye, yo, yu, üö, ua, forming only one syllable, are also reduplicative.

Examples.

nyar, to love = nyanyar luök, to free, release = luö'luök nyérunu, to set (of the sun) = nyenyérunu nyumbö, to choose = nyunyumbö ryök, to trample under foot = ryoryök
tuán, to die = tuátuan

ACCENT.

We have already mentioned (in Paragraph 16) that many two or more syllable expressions have the same accent on each syllable; there are also many verbs similar. Ex. : toyorja, to spy; milön, to dip, etc.

There are others having one syllable only accented. Ex. : toyúkan, to make rest; tuán, to die; tó'ngun, to surpass, outdo.

RULES.

(1) The accent of the present must be kept on the same syllable in the perfect and future.

Ex.: Atóngun, totóngun; atoyúkan, totoyúkan.

Exception: tuán, aorist útuán, future tuátuan.

(2) An unaccented verb takes sometimes by reduplication an accent, and this may also fall on the reduplicative syllable. Ex.: meddya, to see; mémeddya, to live.

In the perfect this accent occurs on the roots or disappears altogether.

THE NEGATION.

The Bari verb has a particular negative particle for the perfect, as well as for the present. For the former kó (akó), for the latter tí (tí).

In the perfect the negative particle is used with the prefix “a” = akó (akó).¹

Examples.

nan ayup, I thought nan akó yup, or yuf, I thought not do aden, thou knewest do akó den, thou knewest not nge amörökín nan, he (she) has thanked me nge ako amörökín nan, he (she) has not thanked me

NOTE 1.—Respecting the accent of ako (akó), V. Paragraph 17.

In the present the particle “tí” is placed before the infinitive—without reduplication, except the verbs already mentioned in Paragraph 39.

Examples.

nan nge'ngesu, I eat	mugun tuátuan, the body dies
nan tí ngesu, I do not eat	molokótoyo tí tuán, the soul does not
nan búbulö, I can	die
nan tí búlö, I can not	nan deden, I know
	nan tí den, I do not know

On the other hand—

lilíma, it rains slightly	nge yeyéju, he (she) reflects
tí lilíma, it is not raining slightly	nge tí yeyéju, he (she) does not reflect

Exceptions in the present are the verbs “a” and gwon (to be) when the particle may be omitted and “an” used as substitute. Ex.: nge áu ní, he (she) is not here; nan ko kóbylu kunye, ná gwon an i níelo goro, I have other sheep, which are not of this fold.

42.

THE IMPERATIVE.

A.—THE AFFIRMATIVE.

The Imperative of all Bari verbs, with six exceptions, ends in the singular in an oxytone vowel. The plural is formed by adding to the singular the syllable ta (your), by which these forms become paroxytona.

For the 3rd pers. sing. and the 1st and 3rd pers. plur. must be used—

- (1) either simply the Future. Ex. : nge wawandu, he (she) shall (will) pray, etc.
 (2) or anyan, therewith. Ex. : anyán se wawandu, she will pray.
 (3) or lastly (rare) tí, give in order that. Ex. : ngá ku súó tí nge ying, he who hath ears let him hear.

If one wishes to make use of the Potential Imperative one must add to the simple Imperative form (in the singular and plural), the root (infinitive).

Ex. : molé-mo (moléta-mó), beg, pray (very strong), etc.
luöké-luök (luökita-luök), deliver or save us, etc.

Besides the verbs given in Paragraph 39 there are some others which in the Imperative admit of reduplication.

Ex. : kwöddu, collect, gather kwöddí or kwökwöddí, read 43.

VERBS OF CLASS I.

It has already been mentioned that from the root of verbs belonging to this class the third radical letter (consonant) may be omitted; then this appears in the Imperative. Such consonants are j, l, n. Ex. : bí, to suck; jú, to grind; dú, to bend; ké, to roast; kú, to wound; rú, to water. The complete roots are bij, júj, dul, kel, kun, run.

All these verbs keep the full root in the Imperative, é, pl. éta, í, plur. íta; bijé, bijéta; jújé, jújéta; dulé, duléta; kelé, keléta; kuní, kuníta; runé, runéta.

NOTE 1.—Besides kuní the foll. have “i” Imperative.

gaji (gá , to defend)	ngini (ngí , to get up)
jani (já , to vomit)	paji or faji (pá or fá , to leave)
kwöni (kwö , to bathe)

NOTE 2.—The Imperatives of tu = to go, po = to come, are quite irregular. The former is ití (itíta), the latter pó or fó (póta or fóta).

NOTE 3.—The accent of the root passes over in the sing. always to the last syllable, in the plural to the penultimate.

VERBS OF CLASS II.

Verbs of this class form their Imperative like those of Class I.

wur, to write = wuré (wuréta).

yup or yuf to believe = yupé or yufé (yupéta or yuféta).

Remarks—

a. The final root consonants b, d, g change into the corresponding p, t, k, and add é (éta).

Examples.

kob, to catch up = kopé

rab, to cover = rapé or rafé

bud, to get dusk, dawn = buté

rug, to obey = ruké

wid, to turn round = wité.

b. Some ending in “n” [as son, to send; gin (ken), to tear (not to be confused with kén, to count—this is kené); tan, to touch] take before the “é” of the Imperative a “y” and are then pronounced sonyé, ginyé (kenyé), tanyé. The verbs lin, to spread over, ngin, to dress, take instead of “ny” the hard nasal “ng”; thus l'ngé and ng'ngé (also nginé).

c. The verbs leng, to come, in extreme cases, and tong, to pinch, have a double Imperative form lengé or lenggí; tongé or tonggi, to pinch.

d. The verb kwadd, to honour, takes instead of kwaddé the form kwasé or also kwaddé.

e. Gwon, to live, stay, has gwé (gwéta).

Many verbs of this class have also the i-Imperative, especially those with vowel é.

Examples.

köt, to hurt = köti

mön, to wait = möni

röb, to pay = röbi

kör, to disturb = köri

böt, to flay = böti

bön, to shake = böni

kin, to close, etc.

NOTE 1.—Verbs ending in “g” double the g in the Imperative.

Examples.

dog, to present with = doggi

leng (V. above) = lenggí

ton (V. above) = tonggi

wang, to accuse falsely = wanggi

wang, to cost = wanggi

NOTE 2.—The verb kek, to meet with, befall, softens its final sound “k” into g = kegi.

NOTE 3.—Tin, to give, forms in the Imperative tí (tita).

VERBS OF CLASS III.—ending in “a.”

This class is, next to the II. and IX. classes, the richest, and has many forms for the Imperative—

1. Those of two syllables, mostly of a reflective or passive character, take an additional “ní.”

Examples.

baka, to be finished (to cease) = bakaní

bora, to depart angry = boraní

dana, to hide one's self = dananí

tela, to be conquered = telaní

sida, to sit (to be steady) = sidaní

dára, to fatigue = daraní

dula, to stoop = dulaní

yéma, to marry (of girls—dusi)

= yemaní

2. Others of two or more syllables ending in “ba,” “ga,” change the final “a” into é (éta).

Examples.

dibba, to prepare a hearth = dibbé

buga, to be proud = bugé

pipíuga or fifíuga, to whistle = pipíugé or fifíugé

todéba, to set alight = todépé (V. 44)

píga (fíga), to receive (conceive) = pígé or figé

3. Other two-syllable verbs of this kind, especially when the ba, ga is preceded by a consonant, change the “a” into í.

Examples.

bongga, to look up = bonggí

demba, to bewitch = dembí

yemba, to marry (of men) = yembí

segga (sega), to ooze away = seggí

debba, to adhere = debbí

domba, to steal upon, surprise = dombí

4. Verbs ending in ka, la, ma, add in the Imperative “né.”

Examples.

yoka, to cough = yokané

tubáka, to finish = tubakané

towálala, to make boil = towalalané

wálala, to boil = walalané

yama, to yawn, gape = yamané

toríma, to make bloody = torimané

Exception: wala, to walk = walaní.

5. Two-syllable verbs ending in “ja” change the “a” into é or í.

Examples.

píja (fíja), to ask = pígé (or fígé)

kíja, to mount = kijé

líja, to filter = lijé

gweja, to form = gwejí

gwoja, to dance = gwojí

oója, to swing = oojí

loja, to light (of the sun) = lojí

6. Verbs ending in “ya” (the termination of the root) change the ya into “i” (i).

Examples.

doya, to look for = doi teya, to conquer = tei kókoya, to steal = kokoï w-ya, to anoint = wei
roya, to scratch = roi

7. Verbs ending in dya either change the “a” into é or the “dya” into dí.

Examples.

kendya, to count = kendí
kondya, to make = kondí kakindya, to announce = kakindyé biundya, to kiss = biundyé domundya, to sneak, slink = domundyé yengundya, to come hither = yengundyé kiwundya, to go up = kiwundyé godya, to praise = godé
jotdya, to build = jotdí

8. Verbs ending in “jya” change regularly in the Imperative to “jí.”

Examples.

ngerjya, to shear, shave = ngerjí mojya, to smell, scent = mojí derjya, to cook = derjí morjya, to meddle with = morjí
kojya, to bite = kojí

Exceptions.

bijya, to suck = bijé dirjya, to view, look = dirjé

9. Verbs having the root syllables ending in “ara” keep this form in the Imperative and the verb becomes oxytone (plur. paroxytone).

Examples.

bárara, to fetch = barará dúkara, to shove, push = dukará
gúbara, to sling, throw = gubará

Exception.

todúra, to tire = todarané.

46.

VERBS OF THE IV. CLASS—ending in “e.”

In this and the two following classes there are but few verbs, which form their Imperative in various ways:—

(a) Some add to the root or the stem the syllable né.

Examples.

yítue , to come back = yítuené	tojóre , to fill = tojoreué
bírue , to faint away = bíruené	kíwe , to climb = kíwené ¹
fúrue , to awake = fúruené	tule , to burn = tulené
mele , to see = melené	totóre , to scatter = tolorené

(b) Others take, instead of né, ní.

Examples.

rié , to find = riení
rúdue , to dream = ruduení
dúrue , to be sad = duruení
muse , to darken = musení
yungue , to bring forth young = yunguení

(c) The two verbs lupe or lufe, to come out, and durje, to milk, form in the Imperative durjé and lupé or lufé.

(d) Mörökinye, to thank, Imperative mörökí (from mörökín).

NOTE 1.—Instead of kíwené, kivé is also used, especially in conjunction with kak. Ex. kivé kak, get down.

VERBS OF THE V. CLASS—ending in “i.”

Most verbs of this class add the syllable né to the Infinitive for the Imperative.

Examples.

sídaki , to sit down = sídakiné
kweni , to laugh = kweniné
bugí , to get mouldy = buginé
kweli , to wake, watch = kweliné
puri or furi , to rub, scratch = puriné or furiné
waláji , to walk = walajiné
wöröji , to go away = wöröjiné (also wöröjí)

From which deviate :—

(1) Verbs of three syllables ending in “ri,” which in the Imperative accent the last syllable, without any further change.

Examples.

böngöri , to forget = böngörí
gwöröri , to sell = gwörörí
wögiri , to run away, escape = wögírí

(2) In the same way the oxytone gei, to use = geí.

(3) The verb kudi (instead of kudya), to look, is in the Imperative kudyé.

(4) Mórirí (from mon and riri), to perfume, forms in the Imperative monéirí.

VERBS OF THE VI. CLASS—ending in “o.”

1. Verbs ending in gwo, jo, ko, no, ro, add, as a rule, né to the Infinitive.

Examples.

toqwo, to barter, exchange = toqwoné

doro, to fall = doroné

tajo, to finish = tojoné

yoko, to set free = yokoné

mono, to trade in slaves = mononé

todoro, to overturn = todoroné

Exception.

yako, to miss the mark, yakolé

2. Verbs ending in go, lo, mo, to, take ní.

Examples.

yolo, to sing = yoloní

domo, to be sad = domoní

doto, to sleep = dotoní

donggo, to empty (reflect.) = donggoní

Exception.

toqo, to strengthen = toqolé

49.

VERBS OF THE VII. CLASS—ending in “ö.”

1. Those verbs in which the final letters form the syllables yö, kö, lö, nö, pö, rö, tö, add ní to the Infinitive.

Examples.

biryö, to play

furyö, to choke, suffocate köpukö or köfukö, to stumble bulö, to be able jölö, to travel

kujönö, to be afraid

kurö, to be ashamed

qwörö, to buy

lupö or lufö, to go inside ringitö, to be strong, powerful biryöní, lupöní, etc.

Exceptions.

wiyö, to risk, run into danger = wiyení

tikö, to lean against = tikení

bukörö, to spill = buköré

The verbs rikörö, to chase, drive away, and tukörö, to announce, to make known, oxytone only the “ö” at the end.

turö (from turön) to bloom, to flower = turöné

2. Verbs ending in bö, gö, jö (jyö) change the ö into é (éta).

Examples.

dunggö, to saw = dunggé

nyumbö, to choose = nyumbé

toyumbö, to be charitable = toyumbé

mijö, to melt = mijé

yökijö, to order = yökijé

turjyö, to pull down = turjé

NOTE.—Several take instead of “é” an oxytone ö.

Examples.

wiwijö, to spin

durjyö, to grow

mugö, to cover

rugö, to answer

lilinggö, to glaze

3. Verbs ending in dyö change the ö into é.

Examples.

gwörundyö, to buy = gwörundyé

köpundyö or köfundyö, to follow = köpundyé or köfundyé

NOTE.—Niddyö, to forge, and juruddyö, to sink, take instead of the “é” an accented ö.

VERBS OF THE VIII. CLASS—ending in “u.”

1. The numerous verbs of this class ending in bu, du, gu, ju, jyu form the Imperative by changing the “u” (yu) into “i.”

Examples.

jambu, to talk = jambí

begu, to ram into = begí

soju, to spear, pierce = sojí

sarjyu, to direct, judge = sarjí

nyömöddu, to accompany = nyömöddí

Exceptions.

worju, to lose or shave the hair = woré

tudárajü, to tire by hunting = tudárané

2. Rupu or rufu, to lurch, lurk, is rupuí or rufuí in Imperative; buru, to repent, regret = buruí; duru, to be sad = duruí.

3. Sulu, to commence = suluné.

4. Yoyu, to sing, takes its Imperative from yolo, thus yolouí.

moyu, to beg = molé (from mó) pyyu or fyuy, to rub = pyyuré or yöyu, to visit = yöi

fyuyuré

peyu or feyu, to bake = pelé or felé (from the simple obsolete root pel)

toyu, to hatch = toi or tolé wayu, to be dreadful = wai

5. Tótu (shortened from tó-tuan) to kill = totuné.

51.

VERBS OF THE IX. CLASS.

This class contains the most verbs. The Imperative is formed as follows:—

1. Verbs with the suffix kin discard without exception the final letter “n” and accent the final “i.”

Examples.

gapákin or gafákin, to burden someone = gapakí or gafakí

tákin, to tell something to someone = takí

jakín, to fetch something = jakí

bunyekín, to seize someone = bunyekí

2. Verbs ending in “un” discard likewise the “n” and accent the final “ú.”

Examples.

bìun, to kiss = biú

gukun, to invite = gukú

suún, to spear = suú

Exceptions.

lungun, to call hither = lungí

toton, to blunt = tota'ngé

tobunun, to use withcraft = tobuní

3. Verbs ending in an, with one exception, discard this syllable and take é.

Examples.

gwodan, to stay = gwodé

dulan, to flow = dulé

yuran, to mourn = yuré

roman, to welcome = romé

busan, to be just = busé

Exception.

tuán (tuátuan), to die = tuané (tuatuaní)

4. Most verbs of this class form the Imperative by adding the suffix é, as:—

gwalak, to break to pieces = gwalaké

karut, to exchange = karuté

beleng, to break = belengé

Only kunyar, to attend, to pay attention, has besides kunyaré, also kunyar.

(a) Many final consonants become hard (V. Parag. 44).

Examples.

ririg, to mend = ririké

kalab, to embrace, hug = kalapé

karab, to take under the wing, to protect = karapé

(b) Some insert, before the é, the short vowel y; others y (V. Parag. 44).

Examples.

keren, to tear = kereyé

toron, to run somebody down = toronyé

kwelen, to be beautiful = kwelényé

rokon, to skin = rokonyé

(c) Two verbs discard a vowel in the middle.

Examples.

myen, to feel pain = miné

ngien, to stand up = nginé

Exceptions.

(a) yulen, to be discontented = yulé.

burön, to rot = buré

dirön, to drown = diré

rumön, to roar = rumöní

wökön, to run off = wökí

(b) íit, to fish with the line, forms itú (from itun)

(c) lulur, to cut in a circle; luök, to release; tukör, to spoil; tuliöng, to rejoice, are lulurí, luökí, etc.

poïn or foïn, to sit down = poi or foï

móbur, to stink = monébur

wougou, to lament = wougé

52.

B.—THE NEGATIVE IMPERATIVE.

The Bari Negative Imperative is formed similarly to the Italian. The singular adds the particle ko (ku) to the infinitive; and the plural also the suffix ta (you).

The following are examples from each class :—

I. Bí, to suck; ko lí (ko bíta), do not suck.

II. Sar, to judge; ko (ku) sar, ko (ku) sarta, do not judge.

III. Dára, to tire; ko (ku) dára, ko (ku) dárata, do not tire yourself.

IV. Kíwe, to go up; ko (ku) kíwe (ko kíwéta), do not go up.

V. Danáji, to run away; ko (ku) danáji, ko (ku) danájita, do not run away.

VI. Dóro, to fall, ko dóro (ko dórota), do not fall.

VII. Bukörö, to spill, ko bukörö, ko (buköröta), do not spill.

VIII. Ngesu, to eat; ko ngesu (ko ngesuta), do not eat.

IX. Buröökín, to betray; ko buröökín (ko buröökínta), do not betray.

NOTE.—From these examples it is to be seen that the accent of the infinitive never changes.

The Negative Imperative of the 3rd pers. sing. and plur. is expressed either by “on,” or by the negative future. V. Parag. 41.

Examples.

töcyli, lósu on yuran on kújünö, Let not your heart be sad nor afraid.

ló ti kita, ti ngesu, He who does not work shall not eat.

NOTE.—The Passive Imperative is formed in the same way.

54.

DEFECTIVE VERBS (CLASS X.).

These are :—

(1). Adí, which corresponds to the Latin ait or inquit. It is only used in the 3rd pers. sing. and plural of the perfect. Ex. : Nge akulya adá? nge adí . . . How did he (she) say it? he said. Yudaei arugö se adí, the Jews answered and said.

(2). Agí, ought, must, to be compelled, which is used only in the present. Ex. : Yi agí wandu nggo? why should we pray? Do agí nyar lunga silo, se mamán do, you must also love those who hate you.

(3). A'ngyóna, to be near, only in use in the present; in the perfect it is preceded by gwon (agwou), in the future gwogwon.

(4). Apori or afori (apo-ri or afo-ri), perfect of po or fo, to come, and ri = away, i.e. come away, gone away. Ex. : julin ko ngesu bot apori or afori, the friends went away after dinner.

NOTE.—Sometimes the Bari uses it also in the transitive with the meaning: left, abandoned. Ex. : nau yiyitö kö yö mede, n' aporí, or n' aforí, nau nu, I shall return to my house that I have left.

(5). Dije, to mean, only in conjunction with ko, and can only be used in the present, nan (do, nge) kó-dije, I (thou, he) mean.

(6). Igó, plur. igóta, go away.

(7). Kata, only in the present and without reduplication, having the meaning: to have, and there are. Ex.: Tirol kata lelya jore, the Tyrol is very mountainous; Ngun geleng kata, there is only one God.

(8). Képoro or kéforo, another form for kepoddu or kefoddu, to follow; only used in the present.

(9). Mórirí (mon and rírí), to perfume; only used in the 3rd pers. sing. and plur.

(10). Tiben, is only applied to the present; the other moods and tenses are taken from dek (tí dek), nyar (tí nyar), or, bé tí bé, all three meaning to will, or to wish.

THE PASSIVE.

In Bari there is a Perfect Passive of all transitive verbs, and a Passive form of most reflexive verbs.

All Passive verbs, with six exceptions, end in one of the following vowels: a (many), e (rare), i, o, ö, or u.

Examples.

bé , to wish	pass. bélu	todínikin , to teach	pass. todíniki
kó , to bite	„ kóa	bó , to touch	„ bólo
kon , to make	„ kóna	gwut , to beat	„ gwutö
dú , to bring	„ dúle	lungun , to call	„ lungu

These forms are really all Past Participles, are very seldom used alone and then only as Infinitive or Imperative.

As the formation of the Passive is of special importance we give herewith the various forms of verbs belonging to each class.

56.

VERBS OF CLASS I.

1. Roots having the third radical letter (hidden) “l”: the l must appear each time and take as characteristic of the Passive one of the vowels a, e, o, or ö as suffix. The most important of these verbs are—

(a) With the suffix a.

bé (bel) , to wish	pass. bélu	yá (yal) , to move	pass. yála
dó (dol) , to seek	„ dóla	rí (ril) , to burst into pieces	„ ríla
dé (del) , to hide	„ déla

(b) With the suffix e.

dú (dul), to bend, pass. dulé

(c) With the suffix o.

bó (bol), to touch	pass. bólo	tó (tol), to strangle	pass. tólo
mó (mol), to beg	,, mólo	ké (kcl), to roast	,, kélo

(d) With the suffix ö.

tú (tul), to bore	pass. túlö	jú (jnl), to ring	pass. júlo
-----------------------------------	-------------------	-----------------------------------	-------------------

2. Where the third radical letter is “n,” and never visible, the syllable ya is added to the root-vowels a, e, i, and yu, and to the root-vowel u.

Examples.

tú (tan), to tell	pass. taya	pí or fí (pin or fin) to ask	pass. piya
sé (sen), to wipe	,, seyá	or fiya (or also, piá or fiá)
tmé (men), to drive	,, meyá	ku (kun), to wound	pass. kuyú
		ru (run), to water	,, ruyu

Exceptions.

- (1) The verbs sá (san), to undress, and ngá (ngan), to open, retain these forms instead of saya and ngaya.
- (2) pé or fé (pen or fen), to shoot, pass. péa or féa (instead of peya or feyá).
- (3) gwí (gwin), to name, pass. gwíö; ri (rin), to make straight, pass. ríö.

3. Verbs with the hidden radical “n,” and the root-vowel o, take an additional a.

Examples.

gwó (gwon), to stamp, pass. gwóa	ló (lon), to dry, pass. lóa
---------------------------------------------------------	----------------------------------------------------

Exception: só (son), to prick, sting, pass. súe.

4. If the third invisible radical letter be a “j,” it is replaced by the syllable “ya.”

Examples.

gá (gaj), to defend	pass. gaya
pá or fá (paj or faj), to leave	,, paya or faya
bí (bij), to suck	,, biya (also biá)

Exceptions.

jú (juj), pass. júö , to grind	mí (nij), to melt, pass. míö
-------------------------------------------------------	-----------------------------------------------------

VERBS OF CLASS II.

1. Many of these verbs form the Imperative by adding an “a” to the root.

Examples.

b k , to bury	pass. bóka	yur , to set on fire	pass. yúra
der , to cook	„ déra	wang , to cost	„ wanga

NOTE 1.—The observations made in Paragraph 44, a and b, apply also here. Ex.:

rab , to cover	pass. rápa	gin , to tear	pass. ginya
rob , to pay	„ rópa	tan , to move, to touch	„ tanya
dog , to present with	„ dóka

NOTE 2.—Got, to sharpen, point, pass. gotta; kwadd, to honour, pass. kwaca.

2. The following roots take the vowel ö as suffix.

bön , to shake, tremble	pass. bönö	jik , to lead, guide	pass. jikö
böt , to skin, flay	„ bötö	kit , to cut up, to comb	„ kitö
buk , to pour	„ búkö	kör , to squander, spend	„ körö
but (gwut), to beat	„ bútö	köt , to hurt	„ kötö
gör , to cross	„ görö	mön , to wait	„ mönö
yík , to fill up, stuff	„ yíkö	muk , to cover	„ múkö
yuk , to make wind	„ yúkö	pik or fik , to lead	„ píko or fíkö
yup or yuf , to believe	„ yúpö or yúfö	tur , to pull down, to fall in	„ türö
		wur , to write	„ würö

The verbs lin, to smear, rug, to obey, wid, to turn round, according to Paragraph 44 become l'ngö, rúkö, witö.

3. The following take o instead of a or ö.

bék , to beat	pass. béko	pot or fot , to clean	pass. póto or fóto
dong , to drive away	„ dongo	rot , to strip	„ róto
gok , to hold up, to stop	„ góko	tok , to knock	„ tóko
mór , to mock	„ móro	wor , to scrape	„ wóro

son to send	pass. sonyo	lung , to call	pass. lungu
jon , to bring	„ júe	ngin , to dress	„ ngínga
kin , to shut, block up	„ kinu	tin , to give	„ tí (like the imper.)
luk , to draw, drag	„ lúku

VERBS OF CLASS III.

1. The two-syllable verbs of this class are partly true Passive, or have as reflectives a Passive form. Ex.:

yéma, to marry (of women) is the Passive of yemba, to marry (of men).
dára, to fatigue, to be tired, is the Passive of the simple obsolete root dár.

2. Verbs enlarged by dya, jya (ja) or ga, form the Passive mostly from the simple root.

Examples.

ken-dya , to count	pass. kéna	pi-ja or fi-ja , to ask	pass. piá or fiá
kon-dya , to make	„ kóna		(piya or fiya)
kut-dya , to blow	„ kúta	be-ja or fe-ja , to shoot	„ peá or féu
der-jya , to cook	„ déra	ponj-ga , to look up	„ bonga
dir-jya , to view	„ díra	yingga , to hear	„ yinga

Exceptions : Jct-dya, pass. jotda, to build.

3. Verbs ending in the syllable ba, preceded by “m,” lose the “b” in the Passive form.

Examples.

yemba , to marry	pass. yéma	domba , to surprise	pass. dómi
demba , to bewitch	„ déma

If the “b” is preceded by a vowel it is changed into “p.”

Ex. : deba, to bring up, pass. dépa (V. Par. 44).

Double b (bb) becomes p or f.

Ex. : dibba, to prepare a hearth, pass. dípa or dífa.

4. The three-syllable themata ending in a a add ji and become prooxytone.

Examples.

bávara , to fetch	pass. bararáji
dúkara , to shove, push	„ dukaráji
gúbara , to sling, throw	„ gubaráji

5. godya , to praise	pass. góta
yega , to bring	„ yéka
rondya , to strip off leaves	„ ronya

Respecting góta and yeka V. Parag. 44, a.

6. The following are quite irregular :—

yaka , to spit out	pass. yákaki
tubáka , to end, finish	„ tubakalá
ludya , to interpret	„ lúdyaki

59.

VERBS OF CLASS IV.

This class consists of scarcely more than twenty verbs, most of which are intransitive and without a Passive.

The following five are exceptions :—

- | | | | |
|----------------------------|--------------------------|-------------------------------|-------------------|
| 1. durje , to milk | pass. dúrö | 4. mele , to see | pass. méta |
| 2. rie , to find | „ rie (riye) | 5. totöre , to scatter | „ totoreya |
| 3. tojöre , to fill | „ tojöre (tojoro) | | |

60.

VERBS OF CLASS V.

This class embraces several reflective verbs without a Passive form, and a few which when they have a Passive are formed as follows :—

1. Gei, to use, pass. gelári.
2. Topuri or tofuri, to make smoke, pass. topuryö or tofu.yö.
3. Kudi, to look, pass. kudilö.
4. Böngöri, to forget ; güröri, to sell : wögiri, to carry away, take the suffix kin : böngörikin, gürörikin, etc. (Compare Paragraphs 55 and 64.)

61.

VERBS OF CLASS VI.

1. The verbs todöro, to fall, yolo, to sing, and tojó, to finish, keep this form, but as paroxytona, also in the Passive, téjo, yólo, tojóro.
2. Mono, to trade in slaves, and boro, to smear the ground with clay, form monya and borya.
3. Togo (tojó), to make strong, harden, pass. tojólo ; yako, to miss the mark, yakólo.
4. Togwo, to deceive, pass. togwa ; yoko, to set free, yúkue.

VERBS OF CLASS VII.

1. We have already seen (in Paragraphs 56 and 57) that several verbs of Classes I. and II. have the Passive termination ö. If these occur again as enlarged roots, they form as a rule their Passive according to the simple root.

Examples.

mi-jö , to melt	pass. míö	uid-dyö , to forge	pass. nitö
dung-gjö , to saw, to cut	„ dungjö	wiwi-jö , to spin	„ wiwö

The following may also be counted as belonging to this class :—

mugö (muk-gjö), to cover	pass. múkö	nyum-bö , to choose	pass. nyúmö
rugö (ruk-gjö), to answer	„ múkö

2. In the same way roots having a double enlargement take the Passive from the first suffix. Ex.: gwör-un-dyö, to buy, pass. gwörne (from gwör-un).

3. Some verbs have the same form in the Passive. Ex.: bukörö, to spill, pass. bukörö, etc.; lilünyö, to glaze; toyimönö, to saturate; tofuryö, to make, choke, etc.

4. Others ending in örö change the syllable rö into ji. Ex.: nyömörö, to accompany, pass. nyömöji; tuküörö, to announce, tuküöji. The Passive is oxytone.

VERBS OF CLASS VIII.

1. Verbs of this class also form their Passive mostly from the simple root.

Examples.

bön-du , to move	pass. bönö	gör-ju , to cross	pass. görö
so-ju , to spear	„ súe	yo-yu , to sing	„ yólo
göm-bu , to enclose	„ gömö

2. The verbs jambu, to talk, and kambu, to row, form jáma and káma, whilst rembu, to kill, pass. = rémo, to distinguish from remba, to build, pass. réma.

3.	barindu , to spear, shave	pass. barinú
	sulu , to begin	„ súlua
	yuddu , to bring up, nourish	„ yútu
	yugu , to guard	„ yúku
	kur-ju , to cultivate	„ kúru
	kwöddu , to gather	„ kwötö
	laláju , to wash one's self	„ lalá
	möju , to drink	„ máta
	tumaddu , to water	„ tumáta
	nyudu , to wrap up	„ nyúdula
	nyömöddu , to accompany	„ nyömöji
	öddu , to kill	„ ötö
	rupu or rufu , to lurk	„ rupú or rufú
	títbu , to tattoo	„ títpu or títífu
	tótu , to kill	„ tútua
	uju (wnju), to take	„ uyu (wuyu)

64.

VERBS OF CLASS IX.

1. A great many verbs ending in “kin” simply drop the final consonant “n” in the Passive without changing the accent.

Examples.

burönökin , to betray someone	pass. burönöki
sapakin or safakin , to sink something	„ sapaki or safaki
gwörökin , to buy something for some one	„ gwöröki
takin , to tell someone	„ taki .

Exceptions.

Likin, to lose, keeps the “n.” Ex.: tito likin, res perditae.
Piga (jiga), to receive (conceive), pass. pikarikiu or jikarikiu.
Giran, to avoid, pass. girarikiu. V. 55 and 60.

2. Verbs ending in “un” change the “n” with few exceptions into “e” and become proparoxytone.

Examples.

pesun or fesun , to rob	pass. pésue or fésue
déun , to pick	„ déne
biun , to kiss	„ bíue
súun , to spit	„ súue
tónguun , to surpass	„ tóngue.

Exceptions.

kóun, to bite, pass. kóa (also kóe); lunguun, to call, pass. lungu.

3. Other verbs of this class add to the infinitive one of the vowels a, o, ö or u.

Examples.

(1) With “a”—

gwalak , to break	pass. gwálaka
karut , to deceive	„ karúta
keren , to tear to pieces	„ kerenya
karab , to protect	„ kárapa
kalab , to embrace	„ kálapa
wusuk , to press	„ wúsuka
nyar , to love	„ nyára
nyukwak , to seize	„ nyúkwaka
pepen or fefen , to collect	„ pepéna or feféna
rerek , to chain	„ réreka
ririy , to mend	„ ririka
ryök , to ill-treat	„ ryóka
toyu , to quiet, to calm	„ toyma
tojong , to catch	„ tojonga
tolig , to cool	„ tólika
tolilik , to dry	„ tolílika
tumat , to water	„ tumáta

topat or tofat , to provide with or for	pass. topóta or tofóta
toror , to irritate	„ toróra
toron , to run anyone down	„ toronyá
(2) With “o”—
beleng , to break	„ belengo
yorot , to press	„ yóroto
rokon , todupyen , toteyón , etc.
(3) With “ö”—
löpuk or löfuk , to return	„ löpükö or löfükö
luök , to free	„ lüökö
títik , to shut, block up	„ títikö
tejurit , to sink	„ tojúrutö
topír or tofír , to feed, fatten	„ tojírö or tofírö
to ígwök , to frighten	„ torígwökö
tükör , to spoil	„ tükörö
tuliöng , to rejoice	„ tuliöngö
(4) With “u”—
lulur , to cut out round	„ lulúu

65.

THE IMPERATIVE PASSIVE.

As a rule there is no special form for this; the participle with reduplicative takes its place.

Examples.

do rorómue, welcome! (V. the passive rómue, from roman, to welcome, greet) do gwugwútö, literally thou wilt be beaten (V. gwútö, passive of gwut)

Only passive and reflective verbs which have as it were an active meaning form an Imperative, by adding to the Infinitive the syllable “ni.”

Examples.

yéma (pass. of yemba), yemáni

To these belong all verbs in Parag. 45, 1.

66.

THE INFINITIVE.

Bari has an active and passive Infinitive, the former consisting of the simple or enlarged root. It is enlarged principally by reduplication, which can take place always in verbs belonging to Classes I. and II. and verbs of Classes III. and IX.

Examples.

Nan ayí ngo'ngólíja, I am compelled to beg.

Nge tí bulò kokon (kondya, kokondya) sine, he (she) is not able to do that.

Se adek molokin (momolokin) nan, they wished to intercede for me.

The form generally used for the Passive is the Participle Passive.

67.

A.—ACTIVE VOICE.

Infinitive.

Sar (sasar), to judge.

Present.

Singular.
nan }
do } sasar, I judge, etc.
nge }

Plural.
yi }
ta } sasar, we judge, etc.
se }

Perfect.

nan } do } asar, I judged or I have nge } judged, etc.

yi }
ta } asar, we judged, etc.
se }

Future.

nan }
do } (de) sasar, I shall judge, etc.
nge }

yi }
ta } (de) sasar, we will judge, etc.
se }

Imperative.

saré, judge (thou) (anyan) nge sasar, let him (her) judge

saréta, judge ye or you (anyan) se sasar, let them judge

68.

B.—PASSIVE VOICE.

Infinitive.

Sára (sasára), to be judged.

Present.

Singular.
nan }
do } sasára, I am judged, etc.
nge }

Plural.
yi }
ta } sasára, we are judged, etc.
se }

Perfect.

nan } asára, I was judged, etc.
do } nje }

yí } asára, we were judged, etc.
ta }
se }

Future.

nan } (de) sasára, I shall be judged, etc.
do }
nje }

yí } (de) sasára, we shall be judged, ta } etc.
se }

Imperative.

do sasára, be judged (anyan) nje sasára, let him (her) be judged

ta sasára, be ye or you judged (anyan) se sasára, let them be judged

All verbs of Class IX. are formed in the same manner as the foregoing example. Those which reduplicate in the present tense must also take the reduplication in the perfect and imperative, and in the future the verb must be preceded by de.

Examples.

nan yeyéju nan ayejéju

yeyejí (yeyejíta)
nán de yeyéju

NOTE.—The Passive Imperative is formed (like the negative Active) with the particle ko (ku); V. 52 and 53.

CHAPTER V.

69.

THE NOUN.

Gender.

Every Bari substantive is either masculine or feminine gender, or has according to its nature a common gender.

The demonstrative pronoun lo, feminine na, is used as article for the singular, and tí (tí) in the plural for both genders.

It is placed immediately after the substantive, and indicates, besides the gender of the noun, that the following word is in the genitive case.

Examples.

jur ló Bari, the country of the Bari kadi ná Ngun, the house of God (church) gor ná Bari, the spear of the Bari ngutu ló Bari, the Bari native ngutu¹ ná Bari, the Bari native ngutu tí Bari, the Bari natives kulya² tí Bari, the Bari language
i karín² ti Ngun, in the name of God

NOTE.—Ngutu is common gender.
Karín and kulya are plural.

70.RULES RELATING TO THE GENDER OF SUBSTANTIVES.

(1) All substantives indicating a man or the male are of the Masculine gender.

Examples.

baba , father	kasáranit , judge
manánye , mother's brother	mönig , little man
lungasér , brother	duöl , bull

Exception : mekor (na), buffalo.

(2) The seasons :—

leme, the hot month ;
meling, summer (all the hot months) ;
rid, autumn ;
kisér, the beginning of the rainy season ;
jaue, the rainy season, and when everything grows.

The remaining masculine nouns are difficult to class, and will be found in the dictionary at the end of the book, where the class of each is given.

Feminine (na) are :—

(1) All substantives indicating a woman or the female.

Examples.

ngote , mother	dyet , girl
kiasér , sister	kíteng , cow, etc.

(2) The abstracta and nomina actionis ending in et (or ít).

Exceptions, which are masculine, are :—

- yolet* (from yolo), song yuket (from yukan), breath joket (from jok), blow with the fist, cuff

(3) The infinitive which is used as an abstract noun.

Examples.

- yukan*, to rest, and rest tuán, to die, and death

(4) Substantives which are the same in the singular and plural.

Examples.

- lin*, soot kwokwo, meal ngo, something, anything, thing

(5) All plural substantives which have no singular. V. Paragraph 73.

Of Common gender are :—

(1) Many nomina agentis ending in nit.

Examples.

- kajinganit* (lo and na), hearer (masc. and fem.)
kayólonit, singer (masc. and fem.)
kajúenit, messenger

(2) Several words.

Examples.

- dupyet* or dufyet, servant. maid-servant kengge, a male or female dwarf kikiji, an orphan
nguro, child (girl or boy)

71.

NUMBER.

There is a Singular and a Plural number, and the latter has numerous forms, as in Arabic :—

- I. Substantives with the plural like the singular.
- II. Substantives with a plural and no singular.
- III. Substantives with a singular and no plural.
- VI. Substantives with an enlarged stem as plural.
- V. Substantives with a shortened form for the plural.
- VI. Substantives which have the same number of syllables in the singular and plural.

ön	Ex. : digít , wolf liöngít , peace tur , town	,, digítön . ,, liöngítön . ,, turön .
öt	Ex. : búduru , cord, rope yöbu , wood yödu , a black stone	,, budúruöt . ,, yöbüöt . ,, yödüöt .
ji, jin, ki, kin	Ex. : saret , judgment doket , present salet , stove, oven dupa or dufa , leather bag gücea , family kupö or kufö , basket döme , mass, heap gure , pigeon kwara , pincers, tongs	,, sáretji . ,, dóketji . ,, sáletji . ,, dupájin or dufájin . ,, güwéájin . ,, kupöjin or kuföjin . ,, dómeki . ,, gúreki . ,, kwáraki .

NOTE.—All subst. in Parag. 22 take “ji”; certain abstract nouns and nouns of action take et; jin and ki (kin) are used for the Plural of most substantives ending in a vowel.

Jin, from ki (kin), where the guttural is softened to a palatal and is then in this form used as Plural exponent.

Ex. : lite, bundle, plur. líteki and líteji; compare also the words silo = kulo, sine = kune.

la	Ex. : yapa or yafa , moon kipya or kifya , lightning masa , box on the ear	plur. yapála or yafála . ,, kipyála or kifyála . ,, masála .
-----------	----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

lan Ex.: bisó , disc, target kíko , way, path muntye , bread	plur. bisólan . ,, kíkólan . ,, muntyélan . ¹
len Ex.: gwöre , fox logerí , cross lugögörí , spider	,, gwörélen . ,, lögerílen . ,, lugögörílen . ²
lo Ex.: dako , palate díko , cloud gworo , wind-pipe	,, dakolo . ,, díkolo . ,, gworolo .
lö Ex.: möríkö , scar lubulö , bowel	,, möríkölö . ,, lubulölö .
lön Ex.: badu , wedding búrúö , carcass lungguö , snail	,, budúlön . ,, burúölön . ,, lungguölön .

There are various other suffixes, as kadi, house, Pl. kadí-jík; kójí, stable, Pl. kójí-no, and others which are to be found in the dictionary.

NOTE 1.—Some words take both la and lan as suffix. Ex.: denggele, gall, Pl. denggeléla or denggelélan; pilya or filya, top, Pl. pilyáta or pilyálan.

NOTE 2.—The suffix “lin” is only found in ju, friend, Pl. julin.

CLASS V.

Substantives with a shortened form for the Plural.

The most important of these singular suffixes are—

at Ex.: kujirat , corner of the eye reat , iron	plur. kujír . ,, re .

Abl. ko (ku, i) dingit , with or in the time	ko (ku, i) dingiten 81.

SYNTAX RULES AND EXAMPLES.

The subject is always nominative case. In principal sentences the subject always stands at the beginning of the sentence, the predicate either immediately after the subject, or after the verb of the sentence.

Examples.

Ködiní apéa or apéa (ko kipyá or kifyá), the tree has been struck (by lightning.)

Kwen ratáji (ko köpúkön or köfúkön), the birds fly (with wings).

Kolánit aréka, the thief is chained.

Nan dupyet or dufyet (nán a dupyet or dufyet) ná Ngnn, I am a servant of the Lord.

The particles of cause ko and kogwon,¹ because, then, precede the subject.

Examples.

Ko Wani an matat, nán tí román ko nge, As Wani is no chief, I do not salute him.

Kogwón nyutu líng lunyasírik-kang, yi agé nyanyár se, Because all men are our brothers, we ought to love them.

As regards the position of the subject in relative sentences V. 34; in conjunction with a pronoun demonstrative or interrog., V. 32; in conjunction with other interrog., V. 96.

NOTE 1.—Compare ko = with, and ko = then, with the Latin preposition cum, and the conj. cum.

The Genitive in Bari is dependent on a noun or pronoun, never on a verb as in Greek. The most familiar kinds are:—

- (1) Genitive denoting origin. Ex.: Logwit lo Ladú, Logwit, son of Ladú.
- (2) Genitive denoting property. Ex.: mede ná monye, the father's house.
- (3) Genitive denoting partition.

For other Genitives compare Parag. 69.

The Dative has the same form as the nominative and accusative, and differs only as regards its position in the sentence. It must always come between the subject and object, before the accusative. Ex.: V. Parag. 26.

In the Vocative Case the “a” is not important; instead of a Logwit, a monye! one can equally well say, Logwit! monye.

The Ablative may have different positions in a sentence. V. Prepositions, Parag. 109 and 110.

CHAPTER VI.

83.

THE ADJECTIVE.

Formation of the Adjective.

Here we distinguish the following classes:—

- a. The true adjective.
- b. The so-called ló (lú) and na-adjectives.
- c. Verbal adjectives.
- d. Adjectives of composition.

84.

a. There are not many true adjectives; the most important are:—

duma , big	líbi , damp
kanga , courageous, fearless	litót , free
kamye , ill	lut , dirty
katerot , cold	mali , peaceable
kijek , quick	mingé , deaf
kirut , true, positive	modoké , blind
lango , naked, bare	modony , old
lipu , or lifu , fresh	murye , blue
paleleng , or faleleng , sweet	ngodé , crooked
pömöni , or fömöni , heavy	riqwo , straight
pötnör , or fötnör , bitter	woryo , loose
rego , not straight, oblique

All the above forms are attributive adjectives: if they are used predicatively they take the verbal prefix a: alúma, ahangá, etc. Most of them can also be used adverbially.

85.

b. A larger class of adjectives is that consisting of adjectives formed from an almost obsolete root with the prefix ló (lu), fem. na. Ex.: lóbot, fem. nábot, fat, greasy.

Masc.	Fem.	English.
lóbut	nábut	good
lósok	nások	thin
lödít	nádít	small
lódon	nádon	unripe
lórón	náron	angry
lúb ng	ná'öng	stupid
lúgalang	nágalang	broad.
lórno	náruo	dark, black

c. The largest class is that of the verbal adjective.

(1) These are really passive forms of the predicate used as adjectives, therefore with the prefix a.

Examples.

abclengo, broken adúle, bent

ajúö, sharp (ground)
akóá, bitten, etc.

(2). Several which are almost identical with their corresponding verbs are:—yimöñö, satisfied; jore full (much); gwörögo, dear (to buy); múdue, dark. Compare the verbs yimöñö, jore, muse, etc.

d. Adjectives of composition are formed with the help of the corresponding substantive preceded by “ko,” with.

Examples.

ko gúdu, hump-backed (with a hump) ko kuré, thirsty (with thirst) ko magor, hungry (with hunger)
ko múri, feverish (with fever)

86.

Gender of the Adjective.

The gender of the adjective agrees with the corresponding subject, and this applies only to those belonging to the Second Class, Parag. 85 b, as the rest are all common gender.

Adjectives belonging to the Second Class can be used alone in the plural without a substantive. Ex.: lórok, the wicked; fem. nárok, V. 87.

The abstract neuter gender bona, mala, is expressed by the feminine plural. Ex.: nálut (the) good, nárok (the) evil.

Number of the Adjective.

Adjectives of the Third and Fourth Class, Parag. 85, c and d, have the same form for the singular and plural, while on the other hand there are not a few amongst the first two classes which form their plural similarly to the substantive.

Examples.

From Class I.

duma, big kamye, ill kanyá, courageous litót, free

Plur. témejik
,, kamyéji
,, kangájìn
,, lúy

mali , peaceable	Plur.	malyat
mĩngé , deaf	„	mĩngéki
modoké , blind	„	modokéuo
molong , old	„	múlumgĩn
ngodé , crooked	„	ngodéki

katerot, cold, kijek, quick, kirut, paleleng or faleleng, etc. have the same form for the plural.

From Class II.

lódit (lósit) fem. nádit (násit), small. Plur. lódidik (lósijik), fem. nádidik (násijik).

lódou, fem. nádon, unripe. Plur. lódok, fem. nádok.

lógusu, fem. náyusu, tight. Plur. lógusulak, fem. náyusulak.

lúgalang, fem. náyalang, broad. Plur. lúgalangak, fem. náyalangak.

lúruö, fem. náruö, dark, black. Plur. lúruök, fem. náruök.

The following retain the same form for the plural:—

lóbot (nábot), lóbut (nábut), lósok (nások), lúböng (núlöng).

88.

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES.

The Comparative.

The comparative may be expressed in two ways:—

(a) By bia, more, better, followed by i (i).

Examples.

Kadí-nio bia kwekwélen i inot, My house is prettier (more pretty) than thine.

Medi adúma bia i kulye kimák, Medi is bigger than the rest of the chiefs.

Logwit dedén bia kulya tí Bari, i kulye lĩng, Logwit understands the Bari language better than anyone else.

Aĩn ta bia í se? Are you not better than they?

(b) By the verb tóngu, to surpass.

Examples.

John totóngu kamétanit, John is more than a prophet = surpasses a prophet.

Se kó-dije, seujúun totóngu kulye, They thought to have received more than the rest.

89.

The Superlative.

The general way of forming the absolute superlative is (a) by placing after the adjective one of the particles bura (burá), parik or farik (par'k or far'ik), both signifying very or right. Ex.: sine le anáke burá, this milk is very pure; nielo nguro aworyo parík or farík, this boy is very disorderly.

(b) By a repetition of the adjective. Ex.: Nielo kòdini rigwo, rigwo, this tree is quite straight. Mijok paleleng paleleng, mice (a Bari delicacy) are very sweet.

The relative superlative is formed by: i (i) ling, above all. Ex.: Medi adúma i ling, Medi is the biggest.

CHAPTER VII.

90.

THE NUMERALS.

The Cardinal Numbers.

- | | |
|----|----------------------------------------------|
| 1 | tu (geleng). ¹ |
| 2 | öri (murék, muréke). ¹ |
| 3 | sála (musála). ¹ |
| 4 | unguán. |
| 5 | kánat. |
| 6 | bukér. |
| 7 | buryá. |
| 8 | budök. |
| 9 | bunguán. |
| 10 | puök or fuök (mere). ² |
| 11 | puök or fuök-wod-geleng. ³ |
| 12 | „ „ - murék. |
| 13 | „ „ - musála. |
| 14 | „ „ - unguán. |
| 15 | „ „ - mukánat. |
| 16 | „ „ - bukér. |
| 17 | „ „ - buryá. |
| 18 | „ „ - budök. |
| 19 | „ „ - bunguán. |
| 20 | merya-murék. |
| 21 | merya-murék-wod-geleng. |
| 22 | merya-murék-wod-murék. |
| 30 | merya-musála. |
| 40 | merya-unguán. |
| 50 | merya-mukánat. |
| 60 | merya-bukér. |
| 70 | merya-buryá. |
| 80 | merya-budök. |
| 90 | merya-bunguán. |

100	merya-puök or fuök .
200	pukinö-murék or fukinö-mu:ék .
300	pukinö or fukinö-musála .
400	„	- unguán .
500	„	- mukánat .
600	„	- bukér .
700	„	- buryá .
800	„	- buđök .
900	„	- buuguán .
1,000	„	- puök or fuök .
2,000	pukinö or fukinö-puök or fuök-perök or fe:ök-murék .
3,000	„	„	musála .
10,000	„	„	puök or fuök .

The Cardinal numbers always come after the substantive, even though they may be in apposition or have a suffix. Ex.: Babá-lío kata kólípinök or kólífinök, musála ko nguronakwan geleng, my father has three sons (boys), and a daughter (girl).

NOTE 1.—Counting by unit, the forms tu, öri, sála and kánat are used; when counting by tens or more, the forms geleng, murék, musála and mukánat.

NOTE 2.—Mere really means mountain, but also a number of ten.

Woset (short, wod) means more than ten; thus puök-wod-geleng or fuök-wod-geleng = 10 + 1.

NOTE 3.—Woset-geleng = 1 + 10.

91.

The Ordinal Numbers.

These are formed from the Cardinal numbers by prefixing the particle to. Ex.: to-geleng, the first, to-murék, the second, to-puök or fuök, the tenth, etc.

NOTE 1.—Instead of to-geleng, the forms súlue, kwe, lókwe (nákwe), lókokwe (nákokwe) may be used.

Súlue (c.) from sulu, to begin, thus súlue, the beginning, first.

Kwe, head, chief, top, lókwe-lókokwe, he who stands at the top, stands first.

Ex.: Nakwan na matat Ladú atadú tore-lónyet kwe (lókwe, lókokwe), nguro-nányet kwe (nákwe, nákokwe), the wife of the chief Ladú has borne her first son and her first daughter.

2. Instead of to-murék (especially if to-geleng, súlue, etc. immediately precede), lele, fem. nene, the other = the second, may be used. Ex.: yökiet to-geleng: nyaré-nyar Ngun: yökiet nene gwóso níena; nyaré ngutu lele, The first commandment (is): thou shalt love God; the second commandment (is) similar: thou shalt love thy neighbour.

3. The “last” is expressed by mukök. Ex.: nún lo (na) mukök, I am the last; lór lo mukök, the judgment day.

4. The rule in Paragraph 90 is also applied here.

Other Numbers.

Multiples are formed by placing the word perok (ferok) before the Cardinal number.

Examples.

perök- or ferök-unguán, four times perok-puök, or ferok-fuök, ten times

Exception: gélere, once.

Liuy = a whole.

Kiden = the middle, half.

Tupé or tufé = piece, part (especially the larger).

Wilo = the smaller part of a whole.

Tupé or tufé-to-musálu = a third.

Tupé or tufé-to-budök = an eighth.

Tupé or tufé-to-puök or fuök = a tenth.

CHAPTER VIII.

93.

THE PARTICLES.

Interjections.

There are only two Interjections in Bari:—

- (1) “A,” used as an exclamation of pain, oh! oh, my!
- (2) “Od’ó,” which is generally repeated; a cry of lamentation used especially by the women.

94.

Affirmative Particles.

sona, so, thus, just so. Ex.: do arikörö kolánit? Nan arikörö lo-sona, jú-lió, Have you chased the thief? Yes, indeed, my friend.

diri, true. Certainly. Ex.: Nan popo or fofo diri, I will certainly come.

inke, yes. Ex.: dó gwón i Afrika? inke, Have you been in Africa? Yes.

This affirmation can also be expressed by the repetition of the verb (with the relative subject) as above, nán gwón, or by lunga, “also.”

95.

Negative Particles.

(a). Simple.

aa, no. Ex.: Do kamétanit? nge arugö: aa, Are you a prophet? He answered, No.

ak, aïn (baïn), no. Ex.: Ngunyeu jore? ak (aïn, baïn), Are there many gods? No.

kudu ajön burá? ak alilima, Has it rained hard? No, it has only rained a little.

ako, not; used as negative with the verb in the aorist. V. Parag. 41.

an, not. Ex.: nán an, ama dó, Not I, but thou—dojyökijö ngyo, ko do an matat? Why do you give orders, you are not a chief.

sine an diri, That is not true.

k: (ku), not; used in the negative imperative. V. 41 and 52.

tene, no more, no longer. Ex.: dó tene jambú ko ngáretji, You no longer speak in parables.

ti (tí), not; negative particle of the verb in the durative and future tenses. V. 41.

(b). Compound.

an-i-piríten- or firíten-ling, anywhere, somewhere, not in all places.

i-piríten- or firíten-ling-an, nowhere.

ngö-aïn (ngö-an), nothing. Ex.: lodíret duma ná ngutu atuudya kó ngö aïn, na ngéngé, He had a crowd collected without anything for them to eat.

96.

Interrogative.

adá, how? Ex.: Nge akó den adá, he did not know how.

mudá, how much, how many? Ex.: nguájik mudá í kadi-todínet? how many children are there in the school?

perok- or ferok-mudá, how often? Ex.: perok- or ferok-mudá nan adek wuwúr do! how often I wanted to write to you.

Perok- or ferok-mudá do gwon í Bili'ngangki? how often have you been on the Bili'ngangki's?

NOTE.—Adá always stands at the end of a sentence.

The other interrogatives, relating to space or time, are given in Parags. 97 and 101.

97.

Local Particles.

(a). Denoting place generally.

yá (1) where? (2) where from. Ex.: do gwon yá? where have you been? dó po or fo (do popo or fofo) yá? where do you come from?

Instead of yá, one can also use i pirít or fírít nán. Ex.: Abína Solimán átuau yá? or A. S. átuau i pirít or fírít nan? where did A. S. die?

If yá is used in conjunction with a substantive the interrogative lo or nu apostrophe (according to the gender) must precede. Ex.: Mahomet, do l yá? Mahomet, where are you? Fatima do n' yá? Fatima, where are you?

The answer to yá (1) l yá, n' yá, i pirít or fírít nán is:— ní, here. Ex.: i kak ní, here on earth; nán gwon ní, I have been here; or yu (nyu, ngyu), there. Ex.: sé gwon yu, they were there.

The answer to yá (2) is:— yu, from that place, there. Ex.: nge, apó or afó yu, he came from there.
Abína Solimán apo or afó Europa yu, A. S. came from Europe.
dá, where, where to? Ex.: dó tu dá? where are you going?

kulik, few, a little. Ex.: tí nan kulik, give me a little.

105.

Particles of Cause.

We have already seen that the Interrogative "why" is expressed by "ngyo." The answer to this is—ko or koywon, because. Ex.: dó tí román ko nan? kó do an matat. Why do you not salute me? Because you are no chief; dó tí nyar kiasér-inot? koywon anúron; why do you not love your sister? because she is not good.

ko-ná (koná), thus, so, consequently. Ex.: ko-ná nan gwu-gwút do, you are a thief, so I will beat you.

Expressing Condition, Supposition.

ko, if. Ex.: kó do tí po or fo, nan jājōlo geleng, if you do not come, I shall travel alone.

Expressing Doubt.

ko . . . kode (kode . . . kode) whether, if . . . or not. Ex.: nán tí den, kó (kodé) uge popo or fofo kode tí po or fo, I do not know whether he will come or not. Tōwylí tatakín do, kó do akondya alóbut, kode alóron (. . . anábut kode anárok). Your conscience will tell you whether you have done evil or good.

Expressing Cause.

anyan, in order that, that. Ex.: nan í kak ní, anyán nan dedén Nyuu, anyán nan riruy lu, anyán nan nyanyár lu. I am here on earth, that I may know God, that I may serve him, that I may love him.

on, lest. Ex.: moké mugun, on dōro kak, stop, lest you fall to the ground.

To the above may also be added ko-ná (kouá), with the meaning, on that account, therefore. Ex.: kouá nan jikík do, on dōro, I will lead you, in case you fall.

106.

For the copulative conjunction "and" the Bari has as a rule but one expression, "ko," which is used whenever it can be substituted for "with," or when several predicates are used together. Ex.: nán ko do, I and thou (I with thee); mede a nádu ko nágalang, the house is high and broad.

In other cases the corresponding pronoun, etc., is repeated, or one of the copulas sunána (at present, now), lunga (also), or tōki (again) is substituted. Ex.: karúkók upíja or afíja nge se adí, the disciples asked him and said (i.e. the disciples asked him, they said). Sunána (lunga, tōki), Jolu ajámú ko karúkók, and John spoke to his disciples (now, also, again, spoke John, etc.).

lunga, too, likewise. Ex.: nan lunga kawáronit í gvesia, I am also a painter.

lunga . . . lunga, as well as. Ex.: lunga nan, lunga do kukulya Bari, I as well as you speak Bari.

tōki, again. Ex.: pó or fó kotuwólu tōki, come again to-morrow.

ngyu, still, yet. Ex.: se ngýú, they are still here.

kode, (1) or, perhaps. Ex.: nán kode dó? I or thou, (2) else, otherwise.

Ex. túan ngalya, kodé nan pepé or fefé do, give me money, otherwise I will shoot you.

kode . . . kode, either . . . or. Ex.: kóde tcyá, kode tuán, either conquer or die.

an . . . an, neither . . . nor. Ex.: an nán, an dó, neither I nor you.

agí, yet, however, nevertheless. Ex.: nan agí tutu, nevertheless I am going. V. agí, 54.

107.

ADVERBS OF QUALITY.

bara (burá), right, just, well. Ex.: wuré burá, write well; do adóto adá? díka nan adóto burá, how have you slept? To-day I have slept well. soua, thus, in this manner. Ex.: do aji koudya soua, you must do it in this way.

kana, for nothing, gratis. Ex.: nan uáju níenu gor kana, I have received this lance gratis. Instead of kana one often hears wörökána: from gwörö = to buy; thus wörökána = not bought.

kukuön, public. V. Dict. kuön.

luön, private, secret. Ex.: koláuit uúddyá luön, the thief has stolen away secretly.

pájyo or fájyo, far off, remote. Ex.: jur ló Bari pájyo or fájyo i Europa, the Bari country is very far from Europe.

rabat (arabat), not right. Ex.: do wuwur rabat, you do not write correctly.

NOTE.—Many adjectives can also be used adverbially.

108.

PREPOSITIONS.

There are but few true prepositions in Bari, but there are instead many insignificant words which are used with the few prepositions, thus forming compound prepositions.

109.

SIMPLE PREPOSITIONS.

a, to. Ex.: dó nan wowougon, I am calling to you; a lutáten (alutáten), to the right; a kadongé (akadongé), to the left.

an (aïn), without. Ex.: ujé kadi aïn, he (she) has no house (he without house); nán gor an, I have no spear; nielo kòdini korópo or korófo an, this tree is without leaves.

i (i) (1) in, indeed, it is true; (a) denoting rest. Ex.: nán gwon i kadi ná Ngun, I was in church; yi yúyukan i tílimöt, we rested in the shade.

(b) denoting movement. Ex.: nán tu (luta) i kadi ná Ngun, I am going to church; yi apó or afó ni i kak ná Bari, we have come to the Bari country.

This “i” is sometimes omitted altogether. Ex.: lúsak ling atú kô, all young fellows go to war

- (2) out, from. Ex.: luöki-luök yi i nárok ling, deliver us from evil; nélo lúsatjo awöjiri nguro i kadi ná monye, this young man has carried off a girl from her father's house.
- (3) over, about, on (active and passive). Ex.: piom (or fiom) wálala i kímang, the water on the fire is boiling.
- ko*, (1) with. Ex.: kó nan (do, nye, yi, ta, sé), with me, thee, him, us, you, them; nguro atú ko baba, the child went with the father; nan gwagwádd do kó piom (or fiom), I sprinkle you with water; ngutu téméjik ú B-ri nyútu kó bolot, ko kigwo, ko lókore, the grown-up Baris live on dura soup and meat (lit. nourish themselves with dura, etc.).
- (2) of, from, by. Ex.: néna wuret awürö kó nan, this book has been written by me.
- ku*, with, to, from, by. Ex.: kú baba, kú ngote, nguro atú ku baba, the child went; kiasér-nio ayitue kú baba, my sister returned from her father's.
- tu*, towards, to. Ex.: mérok atú tu Sudan, the missionaries went towards the Sudan.

Sometimes tu is omitted altogether. Ex.: nán tu mede, I am going home.

The preposition "for" is more often expressed by the verb, with the suffix, kin (V. Par. 22, kin). If the verb does not admit of the suffix the dative is used. Ex.: kayúkunit alóbut tin kóblyu-kányet metet-nányet, a good shepherd gives his life for his sheep.

One can as well say, akwé na kóblyu-k. = on account of his sheep.

110.

COMPOUND PREPOSITIONS.

a-kwe (akwe), on account of, because of. Ex.: nan tintin do sine akwé na töwgli-ilot alóbut, I give you this because of your kind heart. V. Dict. kwe.

a-komo-sikan (akomosíkan), opposite, in sight. Ex.: Díjori lies opposite Gondókoró. V. Dict. komong.

i bot, behind. Ex.: komyru i kölinú bot, the lion is behind the tree.

i eron, for, during. Ex.: i kingújin puök (or fuök) eron nán gwon i Afrika, I was in Africa for ten years.

i kak, under. Ex.: kölpönit (or kölfönit) dodóto i kölinú kak, the boy is sleeping under the tree.

i ki, over, on, upon, above. Ex.: kwaje dudúton jore í kare ki, at night there are many glowworms over the river; siwé kisáwakan alúpe (or alúfe) i kátolok í kibo ki, these geese were hatched on the ship; kirkok kíkija í kaden ki, the chameleon is going up the tree; piom (or fiom) i dikolo ki, there is water in the clouds above.

i kiden,¹ in the midst of, among. V. ko kiden.

i-pírít, or i-fírít (ipírít, or ifírít), instead of. Ex.: monye lóbut ú tin nguro- lónyet mounu i pí'ít (or i-fí'ít) na súmúti, a good father does not give his child a snake for (instead of) a fish.

ko . . . an (a'ín), without. Ex.: ko mímyen an (a'ín), without pain.

ko . . . bot, after, in. Ex.: nan popo (or fófo) kó lorou budök bot, I shall come in eight days' time.

ko . . . yu (1) from . . . here. Ex.: nge afó (or afó) ko baba yu, he came from his father's.

(2) to . . . there. Ex.: nan tutú ko baba yu, I am going to my father's.

ko . . . kango, from, from out of. Ex.: molokótyo an lóke atú ko nyutu kango, the unclean spirit left the man (came out of the man).

ko (ka) kiden, in the midst, amongst. Ex.: nge agwodan ka-se kiden,² he stood in the midst of them.

ko . . . ngerot, before. Ex.: ngujik atú ko baba ngerot, the children went before their father, téng ko, until, as far as. Ex.: nan ajéa bö'iköt téng ko ríma, I have scratched my skin and drawn blood; kolánit awökön téng ko kare, the thief has fled (as far as) to the river.

The preposition "round," "around" is expressed by the verb longga, to circle, surround. Ex.: déru (döru) lolongga kó'dini, there is grass round the tree (lit. grass surrounds the tree).

NOTE 1.—The expressions kak, kí, í'írít (or f'írít), kiden, etc., are substantives and admit of a double construction. Ex.: kíjukua awökön í kiden na yöbu (or k. a. í yöbú kiden), the wild beast has fled into the centre of the wood—amidst the wood. In the first case kiden stands as substantive, in the second as preposition.

NOTE 2.—In which case ko becomes ka. V. Parag. 25.

A girl lived with her father and mother in the same house. The mother went on a journey and said to the daughter, "Take care of your father." But the girl did not look after him : the father suffered hunger.

When the mother returned the father had grown thin ; then she sent the girl into the wood with a large basket to look for sycamore. She came to a big tree. This tree belonged to the animals, but they were absent.

The girl filled the basket with the fruit of the tree. In the evening the animals returned and found the girl still in the tree. They were very pleased, because they hoped to get meat by (eating her) devouring her.

Some of the animals said, "Not yet, but to-morrow morning early we will eat her up." All of them slept under the tree, so that the girl could not escape.

In the night the hare awoke, climbed the tree, and asked the girl if she wished to live or die. She wished to live.

The hare said, "If I let you go what will you give me?" The girl replied, "I will give you all you ask for."

Líkito arugö: nán dek kónut sókoro. Dyet atakin nge: do dedek sókoro mudá? Líkito arugö, jore, jore. Dyet adi: inke, kó nan popó mede.

The hare said, "I demand hens from you." The maid replied, "How many hens do you want?" The hare said, "Many, many." The girl said, "Very well, as soon as I get home."

Then they both got down and went to the girl's house, and she gave the hare as many hens as he wanted. He took them and returned to the wood.

There he killed the hens and poured the blood into a little dish. When he had eaten and was satisfied, he went again to the tree, taking the little dish with the blood with him.

Then he took the blood and smeared it on the snout and claws of the hyena and went to sleep.

In the morning they all awoke, only the hare appeared to be sleeping; but he heard everything. The animals said to each other, "Now we will eat meat."

But the meat had disappeared! All asked where it had gone. Then they awakened the hare and asked him where the meat was; but the hare said, "I don't know, but surely the hyena has eaten it; he has blood on his snout and claws."

Some of the animals were enraged at the hyena and fell upon him, but others did not believe him guilty. Then said the hare, "We will make a broad and deep ditch and make a fire in it; all the animals must jump over the fire: those who fall in are guilty."

Ling alang lele bot lele, amá ling adóro. Ama líkito akó lang; nge adanáji i yōbu ko língōn, kogwon lokong.

All jumped over one after the other, and all fell in. But the hare did not jump; he escaped to the wood rejoicing over his cunning.

In the wood he met the fox. Both were looking for fruit. But the tree belonged to another man, and when he came to gather it he found but little. He thought thieves must have stolen it, and he wanted to catch them when they came again.

So he made a figure of a girl out of gum and put it up in the tree. In the night the hare and the fox came again to eat fruit.

They saw the girl on the tree.

The hare climbed up, but the girl was quite still. He fell upon her, but his claws stuck fast in the gum. Then he cried out, "Let me go! let me go!" But the girl did not let him go.

Then he called the fox to his aid. The fox climbed up to him, but he also stuck fast. Said then the hare to the fox, "If the owner of the tree comes and beats us, what will you do?"

The fox replied, "I shall wail." Said the hare, "Do not wail much, only a little; lay yourself out as if dead, so that he may think you are dead."

In the morning the owner of the tree came and found them both there. Then he climbed up and beat them. The fox wailed till he died; but the hare only wailed a little, then stretched himself out and feigned death.

Then the owner took them, plucked fruit, and put it as well as both animals in the basket, and carried it on his head home. On the way the hare awoke and wanted also to waken the fox, but the fox was dead.

The hare eat a great deal of the fruit in the basket and again feigned death. The owner arrived home and found only a little fruit—he did not know why.

Then the owner put both animals, with skin and hair, in a large pot to be cooked. As the water became hot, the hare burst open the pot, jumped out and ran away. The owner followed him, but in vain.
