NOTE

The disruption of diplomatic relations between the United States and Austria-Hungary made it necessary for Dr. Schuller to leave this country. He was granted a safe conduct to return to his native land and sailed from New York on May 4th.

At the time Dr. Schuller left Evanston he had completed only a rough draft of the Introduction which is here published. Fortunately, Professor Franz Boas of Columbia University was able to recommend Dr. Truman Michelson of the Bureau of American Ethnology, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C., as one well fitted to undertake the final revision of the important linguistic part of Dr. Schuller's Introduction, which is to be found on pages xxxviii to xcv. The historical part of the Introduction was revised by my colleague, Professor Georg Edward, and myself. To both Dr. Michelson and Professor Edward the University owes thanks for the successful accomplishment of their task.

Dr. Schuller had supplied an English translation of the whole vocabulary, but it did not seem to me that such a translation added anything of value. I have, therefore, omitted it. It seemed to me also desirable to reproduce the manuscript exactly as Bibolotti left it with all its errors and mistakes. Bibolotti was not a highly educated man and, as he tells us himself, was not writing for scholars, but for future missionaries among the Mosetenos. Dr. Schuller had undertaken to correct many of Bibolotti's errors and supply omissions. At my request Professor Edward and my assistant, Miss Agnes L. Mowbray, were kind enough to undertake the very laborious task of making the changes in the printed proof needed to make the reproduction of the manuscript correspond to the original.

It does not fall within my province to discuss the value of the manuscript discovered by Dr. Schuller and the importance of his work. The most important part of the material was submitted to Professor Franz Boas of Columbia University, the leading authority in this country in the field of American anthropology and ethnology. Under date of April 3d, Professor Boas wrote: "Dr. Schuller has evidently done a very large amount of work in extracting characteristic grammatical features, and although I am sure that he would be the last to claim that this is a complete grammar of the language, it is much more than we ever knew before. It is difficult to convince any one who has not done work of this sort how laborious is the work that Dr. Schuller has undertaken." In view of the opinion of Professor Boas I did not hesitate to order the publication of this book. As stated by Dr. Schuller in his Preface, the publication was made possible by the generosity of the constant benefactor of Northwestern University, Mr. James A. Patten.

It may not be amiss to express here the hope that it will be possible at some later date to publish some of the other manuscript material relating to South America, now in possession of Northwestern University. This material is chiefly of importance for modern Bolivian history, the most interesting section being the correspondence for the years 1841 to 1852 of General José Ballivian, President of Bolivia from 1839 to 1848.

PREFACE

Northwestern University Library possesses a fairly large collection of unpublished Spanish manuscripts which are probably unique in the United States. They are specially noteworthy as far as they relate to the modern development and internal political life of Bolivia. Professor Lichtenstein, Librarian of Northwestern University, acquired this material, consisting of books, pamphlets, early periodicals and the like, from Señor Donato Lanza y Lanza during a sojourn in Bolivia.<sup>1</sup>

In September 1916, Professor Lichtenstein asked me to arrange and collate the manuscripts and prepare them for the binder. While examining the different packages<sup>2</sup> in order to make a preliminary selection of the papers according to the subjects treated in them, I found Bibolotti's manuscript dealing with the Moseteno language.

The unexpected discovery is all the more important since it concerns extensive materials gathered together by a yet unknown author of a relatively little studied Bolivian aboriginal idiom spoken by Indians who have almost vanished. If there are still a few of them remaining without foreign admixture, they are destined to be absorbed completely in the near future by the process of amalgamation. This phenomenon has been going on slowly but infallibly everywhere in South America. The reasons are palpable. It is due partly to the continuous and irresistible advance of modern civilization, and partly to the fact that the primitive cis-andine fishing and hunting tribes have little capacity for resistance. These Indians, although strong, healthy and relatively happy, as long as enjoying unbounded liberty far off from the temptations of civilized life, upon the slightest contact with the latter begin at once to degenerate. The physical and moral conditions of these people so badly treated by fate become gradually undermined. They are condemned to irremediable destruction. Within a few years the name of the Moseteno will be added to the alarmingly long list of extinct South American Indian tribes.

It was my desire to have the manuscript published. Mr. James A. Patten, President of the Board of Trustees of Northwestern University, became interested in this work, and he generously furnished the funds necessary for the publication of this book.

INTRODUCTION THE MANUSCRIPT

The manuscript is unquestionably an autograph consisting of 42 folios taken out of a ledger, 370 mm. by 250 mm. in size. The pages are ruled in red ink. Every two pages facing each other are numbered alike. The number is printed in black ink. The following folios are missing: 3 right, 4 left, 10 right and 11 left. They had evidently been lost before the author began to write his vocabulary.<sup>1</sup>

On the top of page 1, we read: "Vocabolario Espoñol — Musateno etc. etc." The rest of the page is blank. On the top of page 2, which is also blank, is inscribed: "C(on)ta C(orren)te de los SS<sup>os</sup> Cortados $ Debe Haber" (Account of Messrs Cortados). Both these inscriptions are in the author's handwriting.

The Spanish-Moseteno vocabulary begins with the word abajo page 3 and ends on page 60 with the word zuriaga (instead of zurriaga "whip"), beneath which occurs a vote of thanks in Latin followed by the author's initials.

Specimens of the four elementary methods of calculation are to be found on pp. 61-62.

On page 64 there occur the personal pronouns and conjugations of verbs.

The formation of the plural of certain nouns is shown on page 65. This part is followed by a note referring to a "Doctrina Cristiana" the author had composed in the same Indian language. Unfortunately that interesting document could not be found among the manuscripts now in Northwestern University Library.

Forty-eight sentences, chiefly relating to religious matters,

and a short prayer with interlinear Spanish translation, occupy pp. 65-69.

A brief address to "Little Brother," followed by a panegyric upon the immaculate conception of St. Mary, the latter in Moseteno only, runs from p. 70 to p. 72. And at the end there appears a postscript again addressed to "Little Brother."

The second panegyric, likewise in Moseteno only, occupies pp. 73-74. It is followed by another short note in Spanish signed by the author.

The third panegyric, pp. 75-76, is written also only in Moseteno. It is dedicated to St. Michael, the patron of the Moseteno mission of San Miguel de Muchanes.

Short allocutions in Italian appear at the end of each of the panegyrics.

The panegyrics are followed by an "epilogue" in Spanish dedicated to the memory of the late superior, Father Cerdá. The author, whose Spanish might be better, relates certain incidents in the life of Father Cerdá, who died in February 1868 at the Moseteno mission of Santa Ana, situated on the Senvapi River. This part of the manuscript, running from p. 77 to p. 82, is dated and signed by Father Bibolotti.

Sixteen "Familiar Sentences (phrases) for Beginners" follow on page 83. They are identical with those published by Father Armentia in 1902. Armentia seems, as will be shown hereafter, to have copied them word for word from Bibolotti's manuscript.

We can only surmise as to the time when the manuscript was written. It is dated Covendo, May 20, 1868. Yet the work itself undoubtedly represents the knowledge Father Bibolotti had acquired of the Moseteno language during his eleven years' residence among these Indians. Bibolotti's letters are uniform and the manuscript is very legible. Several corrections written in different ink seem to have been made after the whole had been written. Somewhat disturbing are the frequent repetitions of words of the same meaning. Yet similar defects occur in modern works destined exclusively for scientific purposes, as, for example, in Armentia, whose Moseteno vocabulary is said to be the latter's own production.

THE AUTHOR

The author of the manuscript is Benigno Bibolotti. His life and career up to the year 1857 are entirely veiled in obscurity. Judging from the Spanish, from occasional Italian words which, when writing the Moseteno vocabulary, the author seems to have used involuntarily,<sup>1</sup> and also from the fact that his family name was Bibolotti, it is clear that he was an Italian by birth. He joined the Franciscan Order, but it is not known when and where he took the vows. Having been appointed cura conversor — spiritual pastor — of the Moseteno Indians, he arrived, according to his own statement,<sup>2</sup> as early as October 3, 1857, at the Moseteno mission of Inmaculada Concepción, also called Guachi. We are assured that in the same year Bibolotti accompanied by the missionaries Father José María Ciuret<sup>3</sup> and Father Bernardo Clerici,<sup>4</sup> both of the same order, made an expedition across the wilderness of the Department of the Beni, then visited the Araona Indians and other savage tribes in the forests along the headwaters of the Madre de Dios.<sup>5</sup>

As for any other information, we only know from the author's own statements that on May 20, 1868, he still was in charge of the Moseteno mission called Inmaculada Concepción de Covendo, where he seems to have been living ever since 1857. On the former date he finished and signed the Spanish epilogue of our manuscript, dedicated to the memory of his deceased

<sup>3</sup> Afterwards pastor at Jesús de Cavinas, a Cavineño Indian settlement in the province of Caupolicán, Bolivia. He was a buen lenguaraz — expert linguist — of the Cavineño language. The latter is a different idiom from Tacana; cf. Cardús, "Las Misiones Franciscanas," etc., pp. 169, 170, 172, 173.

Indians,"<sup>1</sup> we find enumerated the following Indian tribes: Aguachiles, living in sixteen settlements; Sabanones, in four villages; Uchupiamonas, in ten villages, and Pasaramonas, in about eight hamlets. In addition, the Antonios,<sup>2</sup> the Pamaynos, the Masizes, the Araonas, the Vacanaguas,<sup>3</sup> the Sarionas, the Saparunas, and finally, the Chumanos, who were distributed in more than thirty great villages.

The habitat of the Mosetenos-Chumano embraced the mountainous regions to the east of the Beni, more or less between 15° and 16° south latitude, and 69° to 71° longitude west of Paris. Their eastern neighbours were the Yurucaré; in the north they reached as far as the territories occupied by Mobima and Moxo, or Mojo, tribes, and in the northwest they touched Tacana and Leco speaking peoples. The natural border to the south and the west is the range of the higher Andes.

Unfortunately, we do not know when and under what circumstances the first missions were founded among these Indians. The modern authors, who chronicled the life of the Franciscan missionaries among the savage Indians of Bolivia, furnish very little information respecting the foundation of the different missions during the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Most of the original documents which would cast full light upon the marvelous achievements of those intrepid and disinterested men, whose names are as yet recorded in no history, are dispersed and remain still hidden in the archives of America and Europe.<sup>4</sup> names of the other tribes are printed in red ink on this map.

From the known original documents, we can infer that in the second half of the eighteenth century the Franciscan missions in northern Bolivia enjoyed much prosperity. Thousands of converts and neophytes of the different Indian tribes had been gathered together in settlements (reducciones), where under the protection of pious and zealous friars they lived happily together as useful members of that Christian republic. Father Simón de Sosa founded in 1770 the mission of Cavinás.<sup>1</sup> In 1771, Father Pérez Reynante established Santiago de Pacaguáras.<sup>2</sup> To about the same period can be traced the foundation of Purísima Concepción de Apolobamba, San Juan de Buenavista, Nuestra Señora de el Juncal de los Aguachiles, San Francisco de los Pasaramonas, Santísima Trinidad de Jariapo, San Joseph de los Uchupiamonas,<sup>3</sup> San Antonio de Castellano para uso de los neófitos de las misiones de S. José de Tarata," Cochabamba, 1883, ought to be imitated without delay by the friars of the "Colegio de Propaganda Fide," in La Paz, Bolivia. The documents relating to the different entradas of the missionaries in the past centuries should be published at once with all details referring to the savage Indians, their languages, their manners and customs, and so forth, and whenever possible the spelling of the originals should be retained. In order to simplify and to facilitate the task, it would be most convenient to bring together, for instance in the monastery at La Paz, all manuscripts which are still existing concerning this matter in the different Bolivian missions. From reliable sources we know positively that the earlier missionaries used to make very detailed reports on their journeys across the territories where the Tacana, Leco, Moseteno, etc., lived. Those writings were usually accompanied by sketch-maps. There was, for instance, a map constructed after 1770 by Father Fray Bernardino Bustios, "Compendio breve de discursos varios sobre diferentes materias y noticias geográficas," etc., formado por Pablo José Oricafn, 1790; in Maúrtua "Juicio," tomo XI, p. 376, with a careful account inscribed therein of the different Indian tribes the missionary had met during his perilous voyage through this wilderness. This all-important map seems to be lost forever, though similar documents may still exist in the archives of the Franciscan monasteries in Bolivia. Careful researches in the archives of the "Colegio de Propaganda Fide" and of the General Monastery at Rome would surely bring results. Among the Franciscan friars at La Paz there are undoubtedly many capable members who could be intrusted with the important task. The Fathers would thus not only free themselves from an old and sacred debt to their Order, but at the same time they would render an inestimable service to all those scientists who have consecrated their ambition and life to the study of the complicated history of the New World and its aboriginal inhabitants.

Twenty years afterward, the once prosperous settlements had been abandoned by their pastors, and the Indians had deserted and returned to the woods, to remain again free and barbarous.

A new era for the Indian missions in Bolivia started with the arrival of Father Andrés Herrero in the beginning of the nineteenth century. This young friar, accompanied by Luis de Lacueva,<sup>3</sup> a member of the same Order, defied dangers and almost certain death. He penetrated into the inhospitable montaña with the firm design of restoring the missions and of continuing the interrupted work, in spite of all perils and obstacles. The energetic missionary saw his arduous enterprise at last crowned with success. Many of the Indians replied to the evangelical call. As early as 1804<sup>4</sup> was founded the mission of San Miguel de Muchanes among the Moseteno. In 1815 Father Herrero established a second Moseteno mission, to which he gave the name of Santa Ana. This settlement had to be moved several times, until finally it was transferred to the right bank of the Beni, opposite the mouth of the Senvapi, a tributary of the former.

The South American revolution against the Spanish dominion had a bad influence upon the progress of the Indian missions in

<sup>3</sup> Author of a grammar and dictionary of the Yurucaré language. The manuscript, formerly of the D'Orbigny collection, is now preserved at the Bibliothèque Nationale, in Paris. It has been published under the title of "Principes et Dictionnaire de la Langue Yuracare ou Yurujure composés par le R. P. La Cueva et publiés conformément au Manuscrit de A. D'Orbigny," par Lucien Adam. (Bibliothèque Linguistique Américaine, Tome XVI). Paris, Maisonneuve, 1893.

<sup>4</sup> Cardús, op. cit., p. 161.— Armentia, op. cit., p. 3, says 1805.— Weddel, "Voyage," p. 459, states that the mission had been founded in 1725, but he does not quote the source of information. It may be that he refers to an early mission of the same name. If so, he surely bases his assertion on data which he gathered among the Franciscan missionaries at Guanay, a Leco Indian settlement situated on the left bank of the Tipuani River, not very far from the junction of the latter with the Mapiri River.

Bolivia. Many of the Franciscan friars joined the royal colors, animated by a desire to help maintain the Spanish rule in South America.

There was a decided lack of collaborators in carrying on the tasks of the missions, and it seemed as if all the work among the newly converted Indian tribes would be undone. This and other considerations of vital interest for the new Christian communities compelled Father Herrero to undertake a journey to Europe. He went first to Spain. Shortly afterwards he repaired to Rome, probably to confer with the superiors of the Franciscan Order on matters relating to the Indian missions in Bolivia. At that time his work on the Moseteno language was printed at the expense of the "Colegio de Propaganda Fide" in Rome.

In 1835 Herrero returned to South America accompanied by a small number of new missionaries, recruited partly in Spain and partly in Italy, in order to repeople with them the almost deserted colleges and missions in Bolivia. One of those devoted men was an Italian friar named Angelo Baldovino, who in 1842 founded the Moseteno mission of Inmaculada Concepción. This mission had originally been established at Guachi, near the junction of the Beni with the Wopi, or La Paz River. But on account of the unhealthy climatic conditions in Guachi, the mission was moved in 1862 to the right bank of the Beni, in the angle formed by the latter and its affluent the Covendo. The entire settlement is said to have been once destroyed by fire, and in this disaster all documents referring to its foundation and to other interesting matters concerning the Moseteno missions were lost.

Partly as a result of this fire, our knowledge as to the physical appearance, manners and customs and language of the Moseteno and the missions in Bolivia is restricted to what modern scientists and explorers tell us. These followed in the third and fourth decades of the nineteenth century the way which had been blazed by the great Alexander von Humboldt. Among these moderns were two noted French travelers, Alcide D'Orbigny and A. H. Weddel. The former gives, besides many and very useful data respecting the Moseteno, a detailed description of their physical habitus. The latter, who had opportunity of meeting several Moseteno at Guanay, furnishes, in addition to a description of their appearance, their manners and customs, interesting details as to the state of the missions in that period, although for the latter facts he had only hearsay evidence.

According to Weddel,<sup>1</sup> the total number of semi-civilized Moseteno reached 1350, distributed in the three missions as follows: Magdalenos,<sup>2</sup> 600 individuals of both sexes; Santa Ana, 600, and Muchanes, 150.

Father Bibolotti makes only brief reference to the Franciscan fathers who were in charge of the Moseteno missions. According to him the pastors were the following: At Inmaculada Concepción de Covendo, the author himself; at Santa Ana de Sen-vapi, Father Pablo Mateo (de la?) Cerdá, pastor and then for the second time Prefect or Superior of the Moseteno missions; and at San Miguel de Muchanes Fray Amadeo Boydí. Neither Cerdá nor Boydí are mentioned in the writings of modern Franciscan authors.

The untrustworthy French traveler André Bresson<sup>3</sup> estimated the total number of neophytes in 1884-1886 at 2,100. Cardús,<sup>4</sup> who, as member of the Franciscan Order and a missionary himself, furnishes official data, states explicitly that the number of Moseteno Indians settled in the missions in 1883-1884 did not exceed 621 souls. They were distributed as follows: With Father Tomás Hermoso at Covendo, 77 families — 370 persons; with Father Cesáreo Fernández at S. Ana, 27 families — 108 persons, and with Father Lucas Barreta at Muchanes, 33 families — 143 persons.

	Long. of Paris	South Lat.	Province	Department
Covendo	70° 30'	16°	Yungas	La Paz
Santa Ana	70° 50'	15° 48'	"	" "
Muchanes	71°	15° 9'	"	" "

<sup>2</sup> The road which leads from La Paz overland to the Moseteno settlements can be traveled on horseback or on mule to Meguilla, a place situated on the La Paz River, which from this point on is called Rio Wopi. At Meguilla the missionaries used to embark on rafts made of palo de balsa, a Bombaceae (ochroma piscatorum). The rowers and guides needed for this very perilous voyage were usually Moseteno Indians from Santa Ana or from Covendo, who, especially during the dry season, from May or June till November, were wont to come to Meguilla in order to exchange their native productions for European trifles and for aguardiente, a kind of brandy made of sugar-cane. The itinerary and the distances, according to Cardús (pp. 223-224) are the following:

From La Paz to Yrupana . . . . .	24	Spanish leagues
" Yrupana to Meguilla . . . . .	6	" "
" Meguilla to Guachi . . . . .	20	" "
" Guachi to Covendo . . . . .	6	" "
" Covendo to S. Ana . . . . .	14	" "
" S. Ana to Muchanes . . . . .	17	" "
Total . . . . .	87	Spanish leagues.

The journey can be made as follows:

VOYAGE FROM LA PAZ:

From La Paz to Meguilla . . . . .	4	days
" Meguilla to Covendo . . . . .	5	"
" Covendo to S. Ana . . . . .	1½	"
" S. Ana to Muchanes . . . . .	1½	"
Total . . . . .	12	days

Going up the rivers requires almost twice as much time as going down. This is due to the powerful currents which tax the strength of the Indian rowers to the utmost.

VOYAGE TO LA PAZ:

From Muchanes to S. Ana . . . . .	2½	days
" S. Ana to Covendo . . . . .	3	"
" Covendo to Meguilla . . . . .	12	"
" Meguilla to La Paz . . . . .	4	"
Total . . . . .	21½	days

Bresson went from La Paz to Yrupana in three days. At Yrupana he embarked on a raft guided by Moseteno from S. Ana. On the trip from Yrupana to Magdalenos he spent ten days; from Magdalenos to S. Ana two days, and from S. Ana to Muchanes four days.

Cardús describes the Moseteno Indians as docile, agricultural and industrious, and as much attached to the Catholic church. Though sufficiently robust, says the same missionary, none of these Indians attain a great age. He states that their number diminishes annually, owing to the climate and the terrible epidemics which at certain periods spread with alarming rapidity. This is especially true of the terrible skin disease called espundia.

As to the physical appearance of the Moseteno, it is said that they differ widely from the Yuracaré. The face is oval, the cheek-bones not prominent, the forehead only slightly arched, the nose short, the nostrils little opened, the mouth regular, the lips very thin, the eyes small, dark and horizontal, the ears small, the hair dark, straight and long and the expression in general free and cheerful. The men are of feminine appearance and may be confounded with the women, for both sexes are very much alike. The height of the men and women varies from 1 m. 663 to 1 m. 665.

Weddel<sup>1</sup> furnishes a remarkable sketch of their physical habitus. This careful observer says: "The new-comers (several Moseteno who then had arrived at Guanay, where the French traveler was sojourning) were smaller of stature and leaner than the Lecos, our guests. Their physiognomy, less free, had, in proportion to their age, an expression more manly, and their lips, much thinner, were not animated by the same smile. The Moseteno shave off the beard and the mustache, which the Lecos very frequently retain. Their hair is long and parted in the midst of the forehead, which gives them a savage appearance. Their eyes are almost horizontal. Several of these Indians had their bodies daubed with blue colour, though the greater part of them were disfigured by patches of white skin here and there. This pseudo-albinism which appeared especially on the limbs of our visitors is so frequent among the Moseteno that almost none of them are exempt from it. One could be tempted to see in it the normal colour of the race." The same manchas (marks) were observed on the body of some of the Lecos, yet generally

this cutaneous disease appears only among the Moseteno. According to Cardús<sup>1</sup> the children are born without such marks, which appear only in the seventh or eighth year of age. Therefore the Moseteno are also called Indios overos or manchados — “speckled” or “freckled Indians.”<sup>2</sup> In Covendo there were few manchados. More existed at Santa Ana, and at Muchanes all were manchados.

As to the Indians called Chimanes, who are said to be a sub-tribe of the Moseteno,<sup>3</sup> we possess nothing except the slight information given by Cardús. In the beginning of the nineteenth century, Father Herrero seems to have had the good fortune to establish friendly relations with these Indians also, among whom a reducción or settlement was founded in 1840, though it had to be given up on account of a terrible smallpox epidemic which spread among them.<sup>4</sup> In 1862 these savages murdered Father Emilio Reinaul, their spiritual pastor, and returned to the forests situated along the upper Maniquí, where in Cardús’ time about fifty of the Chimanes were still living.<sup>5</sup>

Their natural arms were in former times the bow and arrow. The wood employed for the manufacture of their bows is that of the Chonta-palm (Bactrix). The stems of a certain Gynerium furnished the material for their arrows, which used to be feathered and decorated in various ways. After the introduction of firearms among these Indians, the bow and arrow were employed only for fishing. We do not know whether or not they originally poisoned their arrows.

To catch fish the Indians often poison the creeks and raman-sos<sup>6</sup> by means of barbasco (menispermum). The root of the barbasco, which whitens the water like chalk or soap, stuns the fish. After struggling for an instant it rises to the surface of the water, turned upwards in a state of unconsciousness, which enables the fisher to catch it with his hands.<sup>1</sup>

For their trips up and down the rivers the Moseteno Indians use only rafts. These are constructed of the so-called palo de balsa. The Moseteno are excellent swimmers and rowers, and skillful pilots. The canoe as a means of transportation seems not to have been employed by these Indians — at least not in former times. Their language has no word to signify canoa.<sup>2</sup>

Respecting their former clan and tribe organization,<sup>3</sup> their myths and legends, their religious beliefs, their home-industry and so forth, there can unfortunately be found no trace whatever in the documents now accessible. All that we know of the social and moral conditions of these Indians is derived from descriptions and reports composed after primitive barbarism had disappeared. This gap in our knowledge of South American ethnology is all the more regrettable since the Moseteno habitat and adjoining regions is one of the most interesting parts, ethnologically speaking, of the Continent. In spite of uninterrupted intercourse for many centuries with the more highly developed culture of Peru and Bolivia, the primitive tribes, like

<sup>1</sup> Marcy, "A Journey across South America," I, p. 545. I had the opportunity to observe the same process often among the Amueša Indians of San Luis de Šuáro, in East Peru. At present they also use dynamite, which they obtain for this purpose from the Franciscan missionaries or from the Peruvian colonists, notwithstanding the legal prohibition which exists at least during the spawning season. It is a most dangerous kind of fishing. Maimed Indians and Peruvian settlers are frequent in these remote regions, which only nominally belong to Peru. The Lima government is almost impotent to enforce in the Montaña the laws of the republic. The government power reaches as far as the higher Andes. What lies beyond troubles the legislative body little. Grossest infringement of laws as well as abominable abuses of the Indians occur every day in the Oriente of Peru under the very eyes of the authorities. The latter are in most cases responsible for the anarchic state which temporarily reigns in the Department of Loreto.

<sup>3</sup> I have not transcribed the short notice on some burial customs observed by the Moseteno according to Father Armentia, for they are common to many American Indians and other primitive peoples.

the Moseteno, Tacana, Leco, Araona, etc., were not much influenced.<sup>1</sup>

CRITICAL ANALYSIS OF PREVIOUS WRITINGS ON MOSETENO

The "Doctrina y Oraciones Cristianas," etc.,<sup>2</sup> consist of several tracts which were composed by the Franciscan missionary Father Fr. Andrés Herrero and published in 1834 at Rome by order and at the expense of the "Colegio de Propaganda Fide." They constitute the earliest known material for the study of the Moseteno language.

These tracts have been the object of a short linguistical dissertation by the French scholar Lucien Adam in the "Revue de Linguistique et de Philologie Comparée."<sup>3</sup> Besides the erroneous interpretation of the grammatical function of certain nouns, Adam made several mistakes in the transcription of Herrero's text, as well as of Heath's vocabulary. The principal results of the French savant's investigation were then unhesitatingly accepted by the learned Argentine Lafone Quevedo, and reproduced by the latter in the "Anales de la Sociedad Científica Argentina,"<sup>4</sup> where there is to be found also the "Padre Nuestro," the "Ave María" and a chapter of Herrero's "Doctrina."<sup>5</sup>

A list of forty-one words and twenty-one numerals were gathered by the notable French traveler Dr. Weddel<sup>6</sup> from whose remarkable book on northern Bolivia his countryman André Bresson later took his material without giving due credit.

<sup>1</sup> A complete monograph on the Moseteno as well as on other tribes of far northern and northwestern Bolivia will, at least for years to come, be a pious desiderium, unless new and more detailed descriptions of these Indians are discovered or a future explorer gifted and fortunate like Karl von den Steinen may be able to save for science the ethnological materials still hidden in remote regions of northern Bolivia.

According to Weddel, the Moseteno language is much less agreeable to the ear than that spoken by the Leco Indians. One can not help being surprised that neither Adam nor Lafone Quevedo made the slightest reference to Weddel's vocabulary, which represents the first glossary of the Moseteno language handed down.

D'Orbigny had no opportunity to collect linguistical materials, though he assures us the Moseteno is a very "euphonique" language.<sup>1</sup>

In the comparative vocabulary appended to the article "Dialects of Bolivian Indians"<sup>2</sup> by the well-known explorer Edwin R. Heath, there are included 162 words and the numerals in Moseteno from one to ten. The latter and thirty-five of the words were previously given in the above-mentioned work of Weddel. Heath thus furnishes only 127 new words. The materials might have been obtained directly from some Moseteno Indians at the mission of Santa Ana. The list was afterwards corrected by the "Padres of the Missions."<sup>3</sup> The Moseteno language, says Heath, is French in its pronunciation.<sup>4</sup> Notwithstanding all the care that had been taken by the editor, there occur many mistakes in the list. The following ought to be pointed out:

It reads:

1. yetchi ánamu, my son (said by the father)
2. yesi ánamu, my son (said by the mother)
3. yesi ánañe, my daughter (said by the father)
4. yesi vagis otchi, my elder sister
5. boyenye, house

It should read:

- |  |
|--|
| yetchi auamu   |
| yesi auamu   |
| yetchi auañe   |
| yesi vogis otchi   |
| beyenye, from bei , to be,to live. <sup>5</sup> |

<sup>5</sup> Herrero gives boin "to be." Armentia, although writing bei "to be," gives boyenye "house." This is without doubt a peculiar sound between e and o, and must be identical with the u described by Weddel.

6. tim, hair	fin
7. ozñi, water	ogni, or oñi
8. chaln, leaf	chian, sciañ
9. chilrs, meat, flesh	chiuch <sup>1</sup>
10. jsen, egg	fen
11. pen, egg	fen
12. zincui, shame, black	zincai
13. ztchanguis, small, little	izanquis
14. ter, strong	fer
15. apaé, warm, hot (fever)	apacoi
16. mon, they, those	moin
17. mim, ye	miin
18. qum, at present, today	quin
19. zrit, one, only	irit
20. quoncan, eight	quencan
21. thief, to drink	tchei
22. vuorac, to call, to cry	vori, or voori, for vuorac is the imperative mood of the verb vori
23. ynca, river	jinac
24. pó-ne, raft	pene
25. á-pi, forehead	afi
26. patchini, the nails; the plural of patchi	patchi-in

Not exempt from doubt also seems to be the form yme "near" in Heath's glossary. Yet, for ueutchi, which occurs in Adam's transcript,<sup>2</sup> Lafone Quevedo ought to blame the former's copyist, not the explorer Heath.

Twenty-two words and twenty-six sentences in Moseteno were published in 1886 by the Franciscan missionary Father Fr. José Cardús.<sup>3</sup> This glossary has likewise been reprinted by the Argentine scholar, Lafone Quevedo.<sup>4</sup>

Ege quehaqui mi? . . . ¿qué buscas?<sup>5</sup> What art thou searching for? — should be Ege quebaqui mi? as quevaqui or

quebaqui in Moseteno means "to search," "to find out," "to seek."

Further notes on the Moseteno language were gathered by the Franciscan missionary, Father Fr. Nicolás Armentia, the famous explorer of the Madre de Dios.<sup>1</sup> This material consists of forty-eight (really only forty-two) words, the numerals from one to ten, and the "Declension of the (Personal) Pronouns."<sup>2</sup> Lafone Quevedo<sup>3</sup> also reprinted these chapters in full, but not without errors, as, for example, ceiuch instead of chiuch, "meat," "flesh;" and ñop-yes instead of ñopyes or ñop-gés, "drink."<sup>4</sup>

The words ogñi, chiuch and tsoñ occur three times in Armentia's vocabulary.

agua	water	ogñi
arroyo	rivulet	ogñi
rio	river	ogñi
cuerpo	body	chiuch
carne	meat	chiuch
cuerpo	body	chiuch
árbol	tree	tsoñ
leña	wood	tsoñ
palo	trunk	tsoñ

Tsuñ "sun" is etymologically, no doubt, connected with tsoñ, "wood," and probably also with zoñi, "man."

The Moseteno word for canoa — canoe — is missing. The glossary thus contains only forty-two words, most of which appear already in Heath's article.

Daniel Garrison Brinton in his book "The American Race,"<sup>3</sup> referring only in general terms to the Moseteno, does not make any positive assertion about the linguistical and ethnological position of these Indians which could be considered essential for the present purpose.

Specimens from Father Herrero's "Pater Noster" and "Salve Regina," compared with the equivalents from a version of his "Doctrina" said to have been corrected in 1864 by some missionaries of the College at La Paz, are inserted in the second volume of Payne's "History of the New World called America."<sup>4</sup> The object of Payne's linguistical dissertation and the conclusion arrived at, although they may have left a lasting impression upon his scientific standing, need not be discussed here.

Finally, there are Spanish-Moseteno and Moseteno-Spanish vocabularies,<sup>5</sup> and a "Doctrina Cristiana" in Moseteno with an interlinear Spanish translation, which are attributed to Father Nicolás Armentia.<sup>1</sup> Father Armentia does not declare himself to be the author of the manuscript glossary which he permitted to be published by Lafone Quevedo. Yet, from his seven years' residence among the Moseteno Indians at the mission of "Inmaculada Concepción de Covendo," and from Lafone Quevedo's explicit remark, "The manuscripts of the Reverend Father Nicolás Armentia," we may infer that such was actually the case. On the other hand, the almost complete disparity which exists between the Spanish-Moseteno and the Moseteno-Spanish vocabularies, the frequent confusion and the uncertainty in regard to the use of the palatal g-y (g), and other consonants peculiar to Moseteno, and above all, the vocabulary itself — all this must dispel the idea that Armentia's materials, at least as published by Lafone Quevedo, represent an original work.

The following sentences in Armentia-Lafone Quevedo's article were beyond doubt copied literally from Bibolotti's original manuscript or from an unknown manuscript copy made by some one else of the Italian friar's vocabulary:

BIBOLOTTI, 1868

Dame tal cosa: Someme mo

<sup>1</sup> "Anales de la Sociedad Científica Argentina," tomo LII, LIII and LIV, Buenos Aires, 1901-1902. This singular man, a humble friar, missionary and bold explorer, to whom all Americanists are greatly indebted for the important service which he rendered in increasing our knowledge of Moseteno, was born in 1845 at the little town of Bernedo in the province of Alaba in Spain. In 1860, living then somewhere in France, he took the vows of the Franciscan Order. At the beginning of 1865 Armentia was sent as missionary to South America, where he joined the "Colegio de Propaganda Fide" at La Paz. Six years afterward he was ordered to take charge of the mission of Tumupasa, a Tacana Indian settlement in the province of Caupolicán in northern Bolivia. From thence he was transferred as pastor to the Moseteno mission of "Inmaculada Concepción de Covendo," where he remained till 1880, when he returned to the "Colegio" at La Paz, being later on elected bishop of the same city and diocese.

But still, there are other circumstances that plainly corroborate the suspicion as to Father Armentia's exclusive authorship of the Moseteno vocabulary. Certain details in the mistakes discovered by a careful comparison of Armentia's materials with Bibolotti's vocabulary are more than sufficient to show that such errors could by no means have been made by a person with even mediocre knowledge of the Moseteno language. Of course the editor, Lafone Quevedo, and his proof-readers ought to be blamed for many of the mistakes. Still, these slips are of minor importance, and they do not at all tend to lessen the opinion set forth as to the authorship of the "Spanish-Moseteno Vocabulary" which was published in the "Anales de la Sociedad Científica Argentina."

A list of the most noteworthy mistakes follows. Many of these occur repeatedly in Armentia's glossary.

Severe and conscientious critics must call attention to the strange silence observed by both Armentia and the editor Lafone Quevedo as to the loan words contained in the Moseteno vocabulary. Many of those terms may have been introduced by the missionaries into the Moseteno language; others, however, especially those denoting cultural intercourse, have certainly been taken over by the Moseteno themselves from their Indian neighbors long before the arrival of the Spaniards in Bolivia.

The most notable of the loan or borrowed words are:

From Quechua:

tánta, "bread"

tára? "corn." It is doubtful, however, whether this is really related to the Quechua word sara "corn."

atáua, "hen"

chocho; chocha,<sup>3</sup> "very old"

cholo,<sup>4</sup> "onza" (felis concolor?), a kind of feline pasanca, a great poisonous spider sapaca, a kind of feline

choc-cho, "chicken"

chapapa, "raft" (?)

callápo, two or more rafts tied together

guápo, "smart," "courageous" chicha, fermented beverage made of corn. (This may be of Carib-Aruák origin).

motacu. Meaning not specified, but the word is undoubtedly of Indian origin.

sututo, a worm similar to the ura of the Brazilians.

sapacala, a certain kind of fish (?)

suche, another kind of fish

From Carib-Aruák:

canoa,<sup>5</sup> "boat"

maiz, or mahiz, "corn"

<sup>1</sup> Brinton, in his "Studies in South American Languages," pp. 59-67, confounds the Jebero-Xevero with the Jíbaro-Xivaro (Siwora) language. The materials published by the American scholar in the "Proceedings of the American Philosophical Society," vol. XXX, Philadelphia, 1892, are extracts from the anonymous manuscripts, Cod. Add. 25,323 and 23,324, in the British Museum. The MSS. bear neither the name of the author nor the date. But judging from the handwriting, which is very familiar to South American scholars, those tracts were composed and written towards the end of the seventeenth century by the famous Austrian Jesuit, Father Samuel Fritz. The copies of the "Vocabulary" and of the "Grammar" of the Jebero language made by me in 1912 are now in the Biblioteca Nacional at Rio de Janeiro and in the Library of Congress.

<sup>5</sup> Wiener's assertion as to the Latin origin of canoa is contradicted by all earlier Spanish chroniclers. For instance, Father Bernabé Cobo in his "Historia del Nuevo Mundo" says explicitly that the word was first learned by the discoverers in the West Indies.

caiman, "alligator"

tabaco, originally the name of an instrument<sup>1</sup> made of small hollow wooden tubes shaped like the letter "Y," the two points of which are inserted in the nose of the smoker, the other end held in the smoke of burning cohiba (the real name of the plant), and the fumes inhaled.

yúca (Manihot utilissima or Jatropha manihot) is the Carib-Aruák word for the unpoisoned mandioca, the so-called "mandioca mansa."

papáya (Carica papaya), a Carib-Aruák term, according to Bernabé Cobo.<sup>2</sup>

perico-ligero, a little parrot

From Tupí-Guaraní:

capiguára (Hydrochoerus), in East Peru termed ronsoco.

mani (Arachis hypogaea); though this word may belong rather to the Carib-Aruák terminology.

From Nahuatl:

camote; a kind of potato cultivated in the temperate zones of Peru.

chocolate<sup>3</sup>

As to the word cuaba "canoe," it is difficult to assert to which of those languages it does belong, for it occurs, signifying "canoe," in Tacana, Cavineña and in Araona alike.

Quirica, "paper," "book," "letter," quiri-(cai), "to write" and querecha, "money," may also be of Quechua origin.

NOTES ON PHONETICS

The French traveler Weddel makes the following remarks on the sound of the letters:

u as in French ou

ü as in French u

ñ as in "montagne"

j as in German ch

According to the American explorer Heath, the letters ch, ph, and z are to be pronounced as the corresponding ones in French.

The Spanish missionary Cardús, however, asserts that the letter z represents the sound of the Italian zz, as e.g. in the word "mezzo." The same author says that in Moseteno there exists also an i which is to be pronounced as the French u. That i is identical with Weddel's ü. The g sounds like the French g as in "giblet." The latter sound seems to be represented by sch in Armentia's vocabulary, "in order," he says, "to distinguish it from the common ch."<sup>1</sup> Yet Armentia, as will be pointed out hereafter, very frequently confounds sch with the Italian c used by Bibolotti. Therefore Armentia's vocabulary is to a certain extent based on an Italian manuscript.

Owing to the more or less contradictory statements of our authorities it is impossible at present to give a rigidly scientific classification of Moseteno consonants. However, the following notes may be useful:

b, v, w and u interchange; hence a bilabial sonant spirant is probably the actual sound pronounced; the interchange of h, j, i indicates that the true sound is a surd velar or mid-palatal spirant;

g - y represent the Italian g as e. g. in "adige";

č represents the Spanish ch in Armentia, and the Italian c in Bibolotti. It represents the Spanish tch likewise often used by the former.

z represents tz and ts, also used by both authors;

s represents sch in Armentia, and it corresponds to the g of Cardús, and to the ch used by Heath.

The following consonants occur initially:

b, c, d, f (ph), g, ġ, h (i-j), m, n, ñ, p, q (k), r, s, š, t, v (u-w), y, z, č.

The following consonants occur terminally:

Frequent clusters of consonants:

mb, mp, md-mt, mg, mǵ-my, mh-mj, mn, mń, ms, mš, mč, nc, nd-nt, ng, ng-ny, nq-nk, ns, nv, nš, nč, cb, cń, cr, cs, ct, cz, cǵ-cy, cš, cč, csč, čb, jb, jc, jm, jn, jp, jq-jk, jr, jt, jz, jǵ-jy, jš, jč, rb-rp, rc, rt, rǵ-ry, tn, tr, tš, tč, ǵr-yr, sč, st, pt, pq-pk, pǵ-py (by), dǵ-dy, fq-fk, fr (?), zj, zb, vs.

The double consonants occur: bb, cc, dd, tt.<sup>1</sup>

Vowelic and diphthongal clusters likewise occur, thus:

aa, ee, ii, oo, aai, ae, ea, ia-ya, iai, -yai-yay, ie-ye, iea-yea, iei, iu-yu-ju, oa-ua, oai, ioai-yoai, oe, oi-ui, ua-va, ue-vue-wue-we,
 noi, uoi-voi.

None of the authors make any reference whatsoever to accentuation or to vowel-quantities. The rule of Spanish pronunciation is generally adopted.

The vowels are: a, e, i, o, u (ü, ö, e).

The diphthongs are: ai/ay), ei/ey), eu, oi (oy).<sup>2</sup>

VOCABULARIES

Number

The plural of any noun is formed by adding the suffix in.

mumu	father	mumu-in	fathers
heñ	father	heñ-in	fathers
ñoño	mother	ñoño-in	mothers
zé	mother	zé-in	mothers
aua	child	aua-in	children
nanat	boy	nanat-in	boys
nanas	girl	nanas-in	girls
vojit	brother	vojit-in	brothers
vojis	sister	vojis-in	sisters
phen	woman	phen-in	women
soñi	man	soñi-in	men
moinč	man	moinč-in	people
mestiyet	male servant	mestiyet-in	male servants
royaquit	dancer	royaquit-in	dancers
imaquič	singer	imaquič-in	singers
ve	vein	ve-in	veins
soyo	evil spirit	soyo-in	devils
cristiano	convert	cristiano-in	converts
sacerdote	priest	sacerdote-in	priests
juča	sin	juča-in	sins

Gender

The designation of the feminine gender, in nouns as well as in adjectives, is expressed by changing final t to s.<sup>1</sup>

nana-t	boy	nana-s	girl
pire-t	old man	pire-s	old woman
rite-t	old man	rite-s	old woman
pañe-t	adult man	pañe-s	adult woman
phenia-t	married man	uencía-s	married woman
vogi-t	brother	vogi-s	sister
mestiye-t	male servant	mestiye-s	female servant
izanqui-t	baby (boy)	izanqui-s	baby (girl)
muya-t	first	muya-s	first čoifo-t	nice	čoifo-s	nice čoibo-t	nice	čoibo-s	pretty
uenene-t	hypocrite	ueneñe-s	hypocrite moči-t	new	moči-s	new mabe-t	fat	mabe-s	fat
equi-t	minor of age	equi-s	minor
eque-t soñi	young boar	eque-s phen	young sow <sup>2</sup>
tasče-t	primogenitive	tasče-s	primogenitive
iri-t	one (man)	iri-s	one (woman)

Formation of Nouns

Nouns may be formed from verbs by suffixing ge. This suffix seems to be related to ege or eve, "thing."

majo	to love	majo-ǵe (ye)	joy
hemtuc	to adorn	hemtuc-ǵe	ornament
secse	to eat	secse-ǵe	food
bei	to be	bei-ǵe	residence
sibac	to whip	sibac-ǵe	whip
tupu	to mark	tupu-ǵe	scale
vemi	to marry	vemi-ǵe	marriage
pactac	to nail	pactac-ǵe	nail
ueñe	to lie	ueñe(i)-ǵe	lie, gossip
čiapui	to enrage	čiapui-ǵge	madness
čienac	to sink down	čienac-ǵe	landslide

faqui	to delirate	faqui-ge	delirium
famiñi	to deliriate	famiñi-ge	delirium
metaqui	to make	metaqui-ge	custom
ñobi	to tire	ñobe-ge	fatigue
čicacsi	to believe	čicacse-ge	faith
guati	to lament	guate-ge (uatege)	tear caritac	to work	caritac-ge	labor, task fer	to run	fer-ge	force
vori	to cry	vore-ge	cry
coč, cosč, coš	to sleep	coč-ge	dwelling
daqui	to suffer from hunger	daqui-ge	hunger
tomi	to shipwreck	tomi-ge	shipwreck
iñiñi	to cause nausea	iñiñi-ge	nauseousness
čicacsi	to obey	čicacse-ge	obedience ičeiti	to pray	ičeiti-ge	prayer
čipañ	to sprout	čipañ-ge	sprout
gisi	to laugh	gisi-ge	laughter
efati	to irritate	efati-ge	anger, fury
saqui	to depart	saqui-ge	departure
pisnac	to smoke	pisnac-ge	cigarette
nimbeisi	to absolve	nimbeisi-ge	absolution
tifati	to protect	tifati-ge	patron
eyaqui	to yawn	eyaqui-ge	yawning
fandac	to dig	fandac-ge	ditch
peivacacsi	to jest badly	peivacacsi-ge	bad jest
raise	to wish	raisa-ge izi raisage	wish disaffection

The following are likewise derived from verbal forms:

pazac-ge	rubbish
močo-ge	stick; cf. čocčoc "to split wood"
gini-ge	bath
beaqui-ge	chair
mizaqui-ge	blast-hole
panc-ge	sieve
yupu-ge	shape, form
čocti-ge	baptism; cf. čojtac "to christen"
diri-ge	bulk
dere-ge	forest; cf. derei "to hunt"
maye-ge	day, heavens

beye-ǵe	village
oño-ǵe	pus
boñe-ǵe	flute
quinaqui-ǵe	fright, fear
sequinaqui-ǵe	violinist
coraqui-ǵe	shovel
čiqui-ǵe	urine
señ-ǵe	death

The final vowel of the infinitive is often dropped, probably because of the following -ǵ -y, as in

facoi	to feel angry	facó-ǵe	anger
majoi	to enjoy	majo-ǵe	joy
ritai	to kick	rita-ǵe	kick
zincai	to feel ashamed	zinca-ǵe	shame
mamai	to play	mama-ǵe	diversion
čocoi	to embrace	čoco-ǵe	the movement of lifting up the arms
esii	to light	esi-ǵe	fire
apacoi	to heat	apaco-ǵe	fever, heat
imaqui	to sing	imac-ǵe	song
peyaqui	to speak	peyac-ǵe	talk

Doze-ǵe "pinching," however, is formed from dozeac "to pinch." This is surely a compound verb, and may express literally "to do pinching."

Bibolotti gives pami-ǵe and pamin-ǵe "dawn," indiscriminately.

From sčioai "to rob" is derived scioange "robbery."

Nouns are formed from adjectives in the same manner.

ipenti	audacious	ipenti-ǵe	boldness
yetis	cold	jeti-ǵe	snow, hail
nimbe	poor	nimbe-ǵe	poverty
mara	weak	mara-ǵe	fever, consumption
tari	sad	tari-ǵe	sorrow
tomai	dark	tomaj-ǵe	darkness .

It seems that any noun can be transformed into a verb by adding the verbal suffix, as for example rai.

The expression ñoño-rai, "to-morrow" also is surely a verbal form.

Grammatical Cases

In Moseteno the genitive is indicated by adding -s or -si.

dojit-si veya	God's face
God-of face
God-of clemency
hem-si peyac <sup>gē</sup>	praise, or speaking in high terms
good-of speech	of a person, or of a matter
ñnoño-si	of the mother
Erode-si	of Herod
Espiritu Santo-si	of the Holy Spirit
Jesucristo-si	of Jesus Christ
moin <sup>g</sup> in-si čiuč	gum of the mouth teeth of flesh
Iglesia-cañ-si	of the church church in of
cui-si juča	his own sin
his himself of sin
(chi) moinčin-si	of the men men of
juca-in-si	of the sins sins of
mi-in-si mic	your idiom
your of idiom
ñucsí-s phen	the wife of the other
other-of wife
aha-si	of the body
body-of
cui-si coči	his own heart
his himself of heart
mi-si Santa Iglesia	Thy Holy Church
Thine of Holy Church
misi- benedición	Thy benediction
Thine-of Benediction

Thus, the modifying element generally precedes the governing word.

Nominative and accusative are easily to be recognized by their respective position in the sentence. The latter seems often to precede the verb, as in:

tara quetirai ye	I am going to sow corn
enyera mi arroz queti?	When shallst thou sow corn?
café turrai mi	Thou shallst bring coffee

All other case-relations are expressed by means of suffixes. These are, as in most American Indian languages, also super-abundant in Moseten.

The suffix -če contains the idea of "on" or "above."

meyege-če	in heaven
meque-če	on the top of the hill
bebe-če	in the chapapa
pene-če	on the raft
ac-če	on earth

The suffix -ve means "towards," "in the direction of," "against," as well as "separation," "coming from a certain place," and so forth. Examples are:

engera coijonye-ve mii zuñ?	when shall we walk about the plantations?
Guači-ve	to Guači
dere-ve	to the mountain
če-ve	towards above
mo-ve	there (that-towards)
Beni-ve	towards the Beni river
siñe-ve	towards the bank, or edge
o-ve	towards one side
ñoope-ve	on the edge
me-ve	for that
Adam-ve	of, from Adam
Egipto-ve	from Egypt
ege-ve	because (thing-to)
juca-ve	from the sins
tifatige-ve	from the patron
aca-ve azi ye	I come from home home from come I

The suffix -cañ means "the place where," "time when;" thus:

dere-cañ	in the forest	čoci-čañ	in the heart
oñi-cañ	in the water	Iglesia-cañ	in the church

infierno-cañ	in the hell	Irupana-cañ	in Irupana mo-cañ	within that-in
dere-cañ-či, literally "in the forest living,"	the savage, the Indian oñi-cañ-či, literally "in water living,"	aquatic Irupana-cañ bei	he is in Irupana	vojco-cañ	in the belly
coči-cañ anic	from all my	uci-čañ	in the head heart
ere-cañ mageye	every day
all-in-day

Associative and instrumental relations are expressed by the suffixes -tum and -ya respectively. Even those words classed as nouns and adjectives in English are formed in this way. Examples are:

zuſi-či ayo Jesucristo-tum	with our Lord Jesus Christ our Lord Jesus Christ with
auain-tum	with the babies
moinčin-tum	with the neighbors
zim-tum čiuč-cañ	poisoned poison-with-flesh-in juča-tum	with sins
at ame-tum	being with flowers
oñi-ac-tum	mud, clay
water-earth-with
ambi sasi-tum	inanimate
mij-tum	stony stone-with giege-tum	talented
dač-tum-či	horned
mani-tum	smelling
zinči-tum	bilious
yin-tum-či	bony ( yiñ = bone)
juča-tum-či	sinner
činǵe-tum-či	capability
četige-tum-juča	adultery
nucsi-tum phen bei	living in concubinage
juča-tum-či moincin	sinners men with sins
uñ-ya	with the hand
moñi-ya	midnight
fear with

yu-ya	with the foot
yeči juča-ya	with my sin
seňi-ya zuň	with our death (after our death)

ADJECTIVES

The attributive adjective precedes the substantive, while it follows when used as predicate:

anic hemči veya	very nice face	ači veya	sick face
der juči	great heat	pej oňi	muddy water
hem mayege	fine day	yaǵu oňi	clear water oňi anic yetis	the water is very cold	oňi zivnaquis	the water is fresh boňi derči	the eagle is great	mij derci	the stone, rock is great

Gender is indicated by changing the initial of the suffix; compare a similar change in nouns:

der-či	great, masc.	der-si	great, femin.
nuc-či	other “	nuc-si	other “
činka at seňi der-si-tum juča	he who died great with sin

The relation of the case is here indicated by adding the suffix -tum to the adjective. Yet the instrumental-suffix may be added to the noun, thus:

juča-tum der-si “with great sin,” “with mortal sin.”

Adjectives are derived from verbs by affixing -t, -s<sup>1</sup> to the infinitive:

ňobi	to tire	ňobe-t	tired, masc.	ňobe-s	tired, femin.
mabe	to fatten	mabe-t	fat “	mabe-s	fat “
noyi	to	noyi-t	frightened	noyi-s	frightened frighten		masc.		femin.
muya	to have	muya-t	first “	muya-s	first “

PRONOUNS

Personal Pronouns

ye	I
mi	thou
mo	he, that, she
zuñ	we
mi-in	you
mo-in	they, those

Possessive Pronouns

The possessive pronouns are formed by suffixing the element -či, -si to the personal pronouns:

MASCULINE FEMININE

ye-či	my, of mine	ye-si
mi-či	thy, of thine	mi-si
mo-či	his, of that man	mo-si
zun-či	our, of ours	zun-si
mi-in-či	your, of yours	mi-in-si
mo-in-či	their, of theirs	mo-in-si

mi-si bendición	Thy benediction
thine-of benediction
ye-si veya-če	in my face mine-of face-in
ye-si phen	my wife (said by the man) mi-či uenči-gés <sup>1</sup>	as thy husband (said by the thine-of husband-for	priest to the Indian woman)

Most of the case-relations are expressed by elements identical with those suffixed to the nouns.

<sup>1</sup> The designation of the gender in the possessive pronouns does not at all indicate "traces" of a special language peculiar to the Moseteno women, as erroneously supposed by Lafone Quevedo, "Anales," LII, p. 298. Such, however, is the case, e. g. in Tupí-guaraní, as če membý "my son" (said by the father) and če ray "my son" (said by the mother).

ye-ve	to me, towards me	zun-ve	to us, towards us
mi-ve	to thee, towards thee	min-ve	to you mo-ve	to him, towards him <sup>1</sup>	moin-ve	to them mi-či juča-ve	thine-of sin-from	from thy sin
ye-ǵes	for me	zuń-ǵes	for us
mi-ǵes	for thee	min-ǵes	for you mo-ǵes	for him, for that	moin-ǵes	for those zuń-ǵes	Dojít conǵeeme	pray to God for us
we-for	God pray
ye-tum	with me	zuń-tum	with us
mi-tum	with thee	min-tum	with you mo-tum	with him, with that	moin-tum	with them, those

Relative and Demonstrative Pronouns

Bibolotti asserts that "el que," "he who" is not translated in Moseteno. Nevertheless, činca seems to exercise the function of the demonstrative as well as that of the relative pronoun.

činca at niñete	whom he deprecated
činca maje	who wishes
činca peyaqui ačis peacgé, vori soyo	he who speaks bad words, calls the devil

Other demonstratives are:

Coi "that," seems to signify also "himself." The determinative pronouns are formed from coi by adding the suffix of the possessive pronouns:

coi-či    } of himself	coi-si    } of herself
cui-či	cui-si
cui-či auamu	the son of that man (himself)
cui-si auamu	the son of that woman (herself)
cui-si jučave	from thy own sin

<sup>1</sup> Mo-ve "towards that thing" is of course identical with the adverb move "allí," "allá," "there," "in that place," "thither."

cui-si coči	thy very heart
cui bei	thy very life
mo-cui	he himself; that (himself)
coi-mi	thou (thyself)
cui-miin	yourself
mi-cui at yii	thou (thyself) saidst
coi-mi cajučiti	thou repentest thyself (reflexive)

Indefinite Pronouns

The indefinite ñuc-či "the other," ñuc-si "other" (fem.) is formed from ñu, or ñuc (ñus), and the suffix of the possessive pronoun. Herrero gives ñu, ñus "I" instead of ye. The former might be related with possessive ñu of the Nu-Aruák, which likely occurs in the Pano languages of the Ucayali, and in Pacaguára of Bolivia.

The negative indefinite pronoun is izi "nobody."

Interrogative Pronouns

The interrogative pronouns are:

ege?	what?
činca?
čis?
čis dac?	who?
engenca?
ege maje mi?
ege hemtaquirai?
ege irai mi?
ege čuk mo?
ege čuk miinsi mic? }	what thing is it?
ege yi miinsi mic? }	what dost thou wish?
ege nica ti mo uz juča	what shall they do?
ege čik?	what thou are doing?
ege hečetei cristianoin?	what is called that?
ege rai <sup>1</sup> hemtaqui mi?	what do you say in your language?
činca mo?	what is called this sin?
eñzi?	what is it?
eñzi cik mayege?	what do receive the Christians?
eñzi tupu quin?	what shalt thou do?
čiste čik?	who is it?
	how many?
	how many days?
	what is the time?

NUMERALS

The numerals are based on the quinary system. All numerals over five are compound nouns, and are more or less conventional. Thus ebe-un "six" is evidently related with uñ "hand," and may signify "one hand and one finger." For quen-cañ "eight" compare quencañ "half;" araj-tac "nine" means "almost ten."

Two ordinals only are given in Bibolotti's glossary:

muya-t	the first (masc.)
muya-s	the first (fem.)

They seem to be derived from the verb muya "to have." Aye-quič "the last" signifies also "the end."

Some miscellaneous matters may be properly given here:

iri-t; iri-s (fem.)	single, sole
ere	all
eguaj-ere	all together
pana-pana	both
čet; quincañ	half <sup>1</sup>
mequi	so many, so much
mequias	a little

ADVERBS

oya, moğe	here
move, moče; cf. ove "to one side"	there
oče, moče, čeve, tacče	above
pečcañ	under
oňam	where
cavin	fast
mocañ	below
equive, equi	behind
moč	far
quič	direct
quinves	left
či uz, či oi, am moč (not far)	near
oi-cañ	herein
tacanǵe	always
eňaca, endac	sometimes

PREPOSITIONS

yno, jinoǵe	before
abia	after
cań	in
mocań (very far in)	within ocań	under
vaucań	between
guaj, uaj	between
hemya	before (?)
fauče	above, on tum	with
ǵes, yes	for
če	towards, against
dene	without (empty)

CONJUNCTIONS

eǵeve	because
cacai, meinas, dač, nam, nač	then pat, cacai	that, in order to
paj-za-me	notwithstanding
ambi	yet
za, ujama	but

The negative is expressed by am "not." This may be combined with other elements. We find thus:

d-am	little, moment
d-am-ǵe	more; cf. damǵe ači "worse"
am eǵe	nothing
čume am	neither, not either (the same not)
am d-am	never
am-bi	still
am-hem	bad (not good)
am-cari	easy (not difficult)
amara	I do not want
at-nam	already it is

Verbal Stems

The following are some simple verbal stems:

poč	to pinch
foc	to break

toc	to fracture; to break
top	to burst
fez	to wear
tez	to cut
puer	to lock up
bus	to cover
yi, gi	to say
zik	to count
sip	to castigate
sap	to fasten
cup	to compress; to squeeze
zup	to cover
tap	to take
caz	to double
daj	to untie; to loose
rap	to join (with cement, etc.)
tec	to stretch out
naz	to stretch out; cf. "snake"
ñec	to recline
čet	to divide
čoj	to empty
quič	to level
quen	to stir the fire with a poker
sac	to stay
puj	to kiss
beň	to fill
quiv	to quench
ep (?)	to capsize the raft
za	to watch

We find other elements combined with these stems. The compounds thus formed have meanings quite different from the simple stems. Examples are:

či-casci	to believe, to understand (with gi , yi "to say")
i-če-cacsi	to teach, to edify ( " " " " )
gi-ez	to kneel (for praying) ( " " " " )
i-zi-ti	to meditate ( " " " " )
i-če-ití	to pray ( " " " " )
če-i	to elevate (prayer) ( " " " " )
i-či-e	to know ( " " " " )
he-ji	to cry ( " " " " )
čoj-tac	to christen (with čoj, "to empty")

sac-ti	to depart, to leave	(with sac, "to stay") sa-qui	to get up	( " " " " )
sac-či	to depart
ču-beň	to embrace; cf. "arm"	(with beň, "to fill") mi-beň	to lengthen	( " " " " )
sap-tac	to knot	(with sap, "to fasten")
queč-tac	to dovetail, to scarf	(with quič, "to level")
queč-tac	to add	( " " " " )
tez-aqui	to hew	(with tez, "to cut") fe-querac	to saw	(with fez, "to wear")
foc-oi	to become putrid	(with foc, "to break")
quen-eči	to burn in hell	(with quen, "to stir")
quer-eči	to crackle in hell	(with quer, "to lock up")
quev-eči	to lead out of the way	(with quiv, "to quench")
cub-ac	to press	(with cup, "to squeeze")
za-i	to live	(with za, "to watch")

The following are compound verbs:

moc-tac	to whet	(with tac, "to push, to blow," etc.)
pu-tac	to wash cloth	( " " " " " " " )
ču-tac	to tinge	( " " " " " " " )
au-tac	to roast	( " " " " " " " )
pac-tac	to nail	( " " " " " " " )
cari-tac	to work	( " " " " " " " )
hem-tuc	to bring in order	(with the stem tuc)
abai-tuc	to whiten	( " " " " )
cuģe-tuc	to domesticate	( " " " " )
fibi-tui	to make gifts	(with the stem tui)
napu-tui	to make friendship	( " " " " )
tupu-tui	to measure	( " " " " )
oňam i-tui	to emanate	( " " " " )
ači-tui	to dirty	( " " " " )
ču-pi	to spit	(with cuň, "mouth")
yisi	to laugh	(with yi, "to speak")
ju-če	to tread	(with yu, "foot")
čo-coi	to embrace	(with čoň, "arm")

Classification of Verbs

Verbs may be divided into the following classes, according to their suffixes:

ending in -ac:	apac	to heat
	royac	to dance

	sibac	to whip
	vayac	to efface
	čocac	to slice
	giebac	to sew
	vanac	to open
ending in -bi :	či-bi	to germinate
	ño-bi	to tire
	sčioj-bi	to swell (čiuc-bi)
	bo-vi	to ascend, to mount ending in -iti :	rib-iti	to overtake ricbiti (A.)
	rijbiti (B.)
	ñiuč-iti	to help
	ñoč-iti	to despise
	em-iti	to cook
	soqu-iti	to put into a harbor

	faqu-iti	to quarrel
	ezeň-iti	to scratch
	piňet-ete	to cure
	ñiň-ete	to mock, to ridicule
	ñi-ete	to put in
	yuch-iti	to move, to waddle
	ecb-iti	to disembowel
	qu-eti	to feel pain
ending in -qui :	či-qui	to urinate
	pi-qui	to walk
	yi-qui	to acclimatize
	eu-qui	to eructate
	af-qui	to be sorry for ya-qui	to forget
	fa-qui	to rave (when dying)
	e-qui	to reap, to gather osa-qui	to leave
	eya-qui	to yawn, to gape
	uej-qui	to howl
	pana-qui	to spin
	peya-qui	to speak

bisa-qui	to wait for, to expect seva-qui	to listen
neya-qui	to thicken
quin-qui	to frighten
ima-qui	to sing
naba-qui	to brood
chacan-qui	to fry
queba-qui	to search
sina-qui	to sweep
hem-ta-qui	to make (good-make)
aci-ta-qui	to fornicate (bad-make) ending in -(c)oi,
foc-oi	to become putrid
-oi:
fac-oi	to become angry
apac-oi	to become sick with fever
ačij-oi	to become bad (rough)
čond-oi	to lay down; to stretch one's self at full length pay-oi	to jump
cav-oi	to escape
moroj-oi	flux (to evacuate-evacuation)
čoror-oi	to outpour; to drip; to gush ending in -i:
fer-i	to hurry, to run
dere-i	to hunt
vor-i	to cry, to call
vuem-i	to marry
moň-i	to perish; to lose; to mistake
noy-i	to be astonished; to be frightened
feň-i	to lay eggs
seň-i	to die
tom-i	to be shipwrecked
some-i	to give
ueñe-i	to lie; to cheat
ezeze-i	to cause a sharp pain
tače-i	to push somebody
i-coče-i; cf. “coči”	to like; to try; cf. “heart”
aňe-i	to rain
ending in -iñi:	sčev-iñi; cf. “ragged”
fam-iñi (?)	to rave (when sleeping)
tam-iñi	to dream
va-ini; cf. “whirlpool”	to boil

	cañ-iñi (boiling inside)	to cause sharp itching
	coñ-iñi	to swallow; to devour
	iñ-iñi	to nauseate
ending in -če: <sup>1</sup>	fus-če (?)	to touch with the hand (continually)
	čus-če	to touch; to feel, cf. "hand"
	fas-če	to swallow (remedy)
	yu-če	to tread; cf. "foot"
	me-ye (če?)	to take away
	que-če	to pursue
ending in -si:	e-si	to light
	yi-si (gisi)	to laugh
	ve-si	to soil
	sec-si	to eat
	rai-se	to love; to like
	eac-si	to command; to order
	izac-si	to bite
	imu-se	to hide
	ectac-si	to condemn
	yicac-si	to ape; to imitate
	čicac-si	to obey; to believe
	nim-bei-si	to console; to cheer vorvac-si; cf. "vori"	to invite ending in -zi:	ni-zi	to become fat (?)
	i-zi	to be wanting
	quez-i	to equalize
	mi-i	to go; to walk
	či-i	to speak
	yi-i (gii)	to know
	zi-i	to suck
ending in -ai:	n-ai	to be born; to fly
	y-ai	to buy
	č-ai	to vomit
	oč-ai	to submerge; to slip; to slide
	poz-ai	to dissolve; to liquefy
	aj-ai	to be excited
	hij-ai	to finish; to conclude
	mar-ai	to become lean

<sup>1</sup> The suffix če seems to be identical with če "above," "on," as e. g., in: meque-če "on the top of the hill." On the other hand, gé(e) in the verb congee "to ask" is surely related to čii "to speak" and to čei "to elevate," "to pray."

hoj-ai	to kill
rit-ai	to kick
mam-ai	to play
siy-ai	to root
čio-ai	to rob
zinc-ai	to become ashamed
cosc-ai (cosčiai)	to burn
conc-ai	to conserve; to maintain; to care ending in -gi (-yi):
ri-ǵi	to relevel; to bury
vii-ǵi	to swim
oi-gi	to row
basi-ǵi	to give birth
miči-ǵi	to fast; to abstain
čioin-ǵi	to molest
čias-ǵi	to fructify; to propagate ending in -ci :
nai-či	to see: cf. "to be born"
sact-či	to depart; to come out cus-či	to sleep
ending in -ati :
ef-ati	to vex; to trouble
ij-ati	to behead
gu-ati	to lament
foñeb-ate; cf. "cafoñ"	to disinter; to exhume ending in -ui :
isčiuv-ati	to comb; to dress the hair
tup-ui	to sign, to mark
ay-ui	to wet
čuč-ui	to be silent
ending in -bañ :
cam-bañ	to carry (participle: "carrying"?)
um-bañ	to take leave
či-bañ	to fall off (water)

Či-pañ "to sprout again" is of course related to pañ "feather" and čiañ "leaf of a tree" (both related to phañ "wool"). The underlying idea is, unquestionably, that of "ornament," "cover," "cloth," and so forth.

Tenses

According to Bibolotti, only the following tenses, namely, present, perfect, past perfect and future, exist in Moseteno.

The present is formed by prefixing the personal pronouns:

ye queti	I plant
mi queti	thou plantest
mo queti	he plants
zuñ queti	we plant
miin queti	you plant
moin queti	they plant

However, the personal pronouns may also be suffixed, as in maje-ye "I wish;" or očo maje-ye "I wish a cloth."

It is a rather questionable matter to speak of "lenguas prefijadoras" and "lenguas sufijadoras," as the Argentine savant, Lafone Quevedo, does repeatedly.

The future tense is formed by adding the suffix -rai. The pronouns precede the verbal stem. An example is: moin peyaqui-rai "they will say."

However, the personal pronouns may likewise follow, thus:

či-rai zuñ	we shall say
raise-rai mi	thou wilt love
zaǵe-ye café tui-rai mi	when I awake thou wilt bring coffee
saqui-rai zuñ	we shall get up

The first person plural may have an hortative sense, as:

mii-rai zuñ	let us have a walk
yacčiti-rai zuñ	let us rest

The perfect is formed by suffixing the element -te. The verbal expression is preceded by at, which seems to signify "it is," "it is already accomplished"; compare at-nam "as yet it is." It is, therefore, probably identical with our "to be" and "to have."

ye at izaye-te	I awaked
mi at izaye-te	thou awakest
mo at izaye-te	he awaked
zuñ at izaye-te	we awaked
miin at izaye-te	you awaked
moin at izaye-te	they awaked

By adding the suffix -ique, a tense more or less similar in its meaning to our past perfect indicative may be formed, thus:

ye at imaqui ique	I had sung
mi at imaqui ique	thou hadst sung mo at imaqui ique	he had sung
zuñ at imaqui ique	we had sung
miin at imaqui ique	you had sung
moin at imaqui ique	they had sung

The Imperative Mood

The imperative, as given by our author, is unquestionably composed of two different verbs. Notwithstanding the remark about its being used in the second person only, there are possibilities of using that mood likewise in the third person, as maji-evac mo "let him love."

Bibolotti furnishes the following examples:

rais-ac mi	do love (thou)
rais-ac miin	do love (you)
rais-ac moin	do love (they)

The element -ac is, at least I believe, identical with -tac or ac, signifying "action," "to do," etc., in the compounded verbs mentioned above, as moc-tac, apac, and so on. The following are illustrations:

INFINITIVE		IMPERATIVE
tui	to bring	tu-ac	do bring, or bring
čučui	to be silent	čuču-ac	be silent
pajanaquí	despajar	pajanac-ac
cusči	to sleep	cosc-ac	do sleep, sleep thou
čei	to elevate	čey-ac	do elevate thou ačitui	to dirty	ačitu-ac
cavoi	to fly	cavo-ac
facoí	to be angry	fac-vac; cf. suffix -evac , y-evac
bey	to dwell	be-vac
iziti	to meditate	izit-ac
fibitui	to present gifts	fibitu-ac
čiasgi	to propagate	čias-gi-ac; cf. gii "to speak," etc.
čet	to split wood	čet-ac

ezeniti	to scratch	ezeñit-ac
ecčete	to receive	ecčete-vac
ičeiti	to recite, to pray	ičeit-ac
ñec	to recline	ñec-vac
eque	to collect	ec-vac
gičui	to remember	giču-ac
cañiti	to return	cañit-ac
ǵisi	to laugh	ǵisac
tomi	to capsize	tom-ac
majoi	to be merry	majo be-vac
fer eque	to carry off	fer eque-vac

The imperative may be formed also by simply adding -a to the infinitive, as in:

saptac	to make fast	saptac-a čoyac	to pull up	čoyac-a royac	to dance	royac-a fequerac	to saw	fequerac-a sčevamac	to toast	sčevanac-a tayac	to daub	tayac-a
caritac	to work	caritac-a pactac	to nail	pactac-a quečtac	to scarf	quečtac-a pisnac	to smoke	pisnac-a čocac	to chop off	čocac-a putac	to wash cloth	putac-a čoyac	to harvest earth nut	čoyac-a fandac	to dig	fandac-a
bijtac	to put in a bag	bijtac-a mesac	to grind	mesac-a ǵiebac	to sew	ǵiebac-a
ninac	to desiccate badly	ninac-a ičanac	to dry	ičanac-a

The ending -i is often dropped in the imperative, probably due to the -a, which follows:

cusči	to sleep	cosc-a
tomi	to shipwreck	tom-a osaqui	to smell	osac-a sevaqui	to hear	savac-a bisaqui	to wait	bisac-a čacamqui	to fry	čacanac-a yезаqui	to hew	yезac-a panaqui	to spin	panac-a peyaqui	to speak	peyac-a quevaquí	to search	quevac-a sinaqui	to clean	sinac-a imaqui	to sing	imac-a

vonaqui	to harvest corn	vonac-a ičanaqui	to desiccate well	ičanac-a emiti	to cook	emit-a

The imperative of manys verb compounded with -itti is formed by adding the suffix -ca, thus:

soquiti	to embrace; to put a vessel into harbor	soquiti-ca
yacčiti	to start	yacčiti-ca
ičeiti	to pray	ičeiti-ca
imusiti	to hide	imusiti-ca

The imperative of the following verbs is formed in the same manner:

tifati	to protect	tifati-ca
efati	to make angry	efati-ca
feri	to hurry	feri-ca
sacti	to go to ....	sacti-ca
nimbei-si (genitive?)	to pardon	nimbeiti-ca

Some verbs compounded with -itti, however, seem to change the ending only, as:

ñočiti	to despise	ñočit-a jucñiti	to move	jucñit-a

The imperative may be formed also by suffixing -bada and -da, thus:

feri	to hurry	fere-bada
quičeac	to direct	quiče-bada
umbañ	to take leave	umba-da
cambañ	to carry	camban-da
čanbañ	to descend	čanban-da

Furthermore, the imperative may be formed by suffixing -emac or -mac, as in:

ječi	to rest	ječi-emac
izayeye	to awake	iza-emac
quič	to make straight	quič-emac
sovsov	to file on a string	sovsov-emac
riči	to bury	riči-emac
oigi	to row	oigi-emac
queče	to pursue	queče-mac
isča	to frighten	isča-mac
isčioingi	to molest	isčioinge-mac
quiñe	to respect	quiñe-mac
čusče	to touch	čusče-mac
heči	to repose	heče-mac
cave	to look, to see	cave-mac
fifi	to blow	fifi-emac
congee	to beg	congee-mac
toc	to break	toqu-emac
tače	to pull	tače-mac
raise	to love	raise-mac

Final -i is dropped in the following:

concai	to keep	conca-mac
cavoi	to fly	cavo-mac
hojai	to kill	hoa-mac
hijai	to finish	hija-mac
čai	to vomit	ča-a-mac
očai	to slip	oča-a-mac
čojbi	to swell	čojb-a-mac
čioai	to rob	čio-mac

From iziti "to reflect," we have izi-emac; from vori "to provoke," vor-v-emac; from cave "to observe," cave-vac; from riči "to fill again," rigi-emac; from foñebate "to dissent," foñebamac; from jate "to behead," iya-mac.

Bibolotti gives maji-eva "wish" as the 2d person singular of the imperative, and maji-evac as the 2d person plural from maje "to wish." Other examples of the 2d person singular of the imperative formed by the suffix -eva are:

apac	to warm; to heat	apaqu-eve
čoj	to throw water	čoj-evac
teren	to carry	teren-eva
cup	to compress	cup-eva; cf. "cupe-eme"
bus	to cover	bus-eva
četčet	to split wood	četčet-eva(?) četče(t)-y-eva pañpañ	to twine	pañpañ-eva (pañpañ-y-eva) biscam	to twist	biscam-eva comoñ	to wrap up	comoñ-eva (comon-y-eva)
hemtuc	to burnish	hemqui-eva

Bibolotti gives somacs-eva as the imperative of somei, "to give." The latter, however, seems to be derived from somacsi.

The suffix -evac in the plural corresponds to -eva of the singular. Thus:

tec	to extend	tequ-evac <sup>1</sup>
fez	to tear off	fez-evac
mibeñ	to stretch out	mibeñ-evac (miben-y-evac?)
tecoñtecoñ	to move the head	tecoñtecoñ-evac
ģiez; čei "to know"	to kneel	ģiez-evac
quen	to stir the fire	quen-evac autac	to roast	autac-y-eva
sip	to whip	sip-e-evac

The final -i of the infinitive is often changed into pre-palatal -y, when followed by -eva or evac, as in:

čocoí	to embrace	čoco-y-eva čiapui	to become enraged	čiapu-y-eva yai	to buy	ya-y-eva
yi (gi—cf. "čei")	to say	y-eva mamai	to play	mama-y-eva
čet	to divide	četi-eva (če-y-eva?) saqui	to depart	saqui-eva (sac-y-eva)
sacči	to depart	sacč-eva (sac-y-eva) sap	to fasten	sap-i-eva (sap-y-eva) euaqui	to yawn	eyaqui-yeva (eyac-y-eva) vesi	to soil	vesi-yeva (ves-y-eva)
dindi	to ring the bell	dindi-yeva (dind-y-eva)

quereči	to crackle in hell	quereči-yeva queneči	to burn in hell	quenečiyeva (quene-y-eva)
mii	to walk	mii-evac (mi-y-evac)
četi	to fight	ceti-evac (čet-y-evac)
queti	to plant	queti-yevac (quet-y-evac) čorori	to outpour	čororo-y-eva čondoi	to lay down	čondo-y-evac
zincai	to become ashamed	zinca-y-eva

The following verbs drop the final -i:

čicacsí	to believe	čicacs-eva sčevíñi	to jest well	sčevíñ-eva peivacacsí	to jest badly	peivacacs-eva raise	to love; to desire	rais-eva; cf. "raise-mac"
pañi	to grow	pañ-eva
čei(đi)	to know	či-evac
sesči	to eat	sesč-evac
esi	to light	es-ivac
veumi	to marry	veum-evac
noyi	to be frightened	noy-eva ičeacsí	to edify	ičeacs-eva hectacsí	to send	hectacs-eva
meye	to take away	mey-evac quečei	to lead out of the way	queč-eva jiyacsí	to ape	jiyacs-evac
eacsí	to command	eacs-eva hičeacsí	to instruct	hičeacs-eva ičeacsí	to preach	ičeacs-eva ectacsí; cf. hectacsí	to send a remedy	ectacs-eva enacsí	to mock	enacs-eva icočei	to test	icoč-eva

Furthermore, the imperative may be formed by suffixing -eme, thus:

fusče	to touch	fusči-eme
čokčok	to split wood	čokčoqu-eme; cokcok-eme
tizo	to suspend	tizo-eme
fara	to leave	fara-eme
čet	to divide	čet-eme; cf. "četčet-eva"
esčiuk	to heat	esčiuk-eme
daj	to untie	daj-eme

tez	to divide	tez-eme; cf. "tez-evac"
bus	to hide somebody	bus-eme; cf. "bus-evac"
čiakčiak	to rub	čiakciac-eme
imuse	to occult	imus-eme
isca	to drive	isca-eme
visdac	to scale	visdac-eme
puj	to kiss	puj-eme
queze	to equal	queze-eme
cafoñ	to mix	cafoñ-eme
dozeac	to pinch	dozeac-eme
poč	to punch	poč-eme
foc	to break	foc-eme
caz	to double	caz-eme
cugetuc	to domesticate	cugetuk-eme
quič	to lift up a thing	quič-eme
sap	to tie	sap-eme; cf. "sapi-eva"
vayac	to efface	vayak-eme

The following drop the final -i:

somei <sup>1</sup>	to give	some-me
pozai	to liquid	poza-eme
ičie (ičii-igó)	to know	iči-eme
tupui	to sign	tupu-eme
jaqui	to forget	jac-eme
nizi	to go out	niz-eme
esčiuqui; cf. "esi"	to heat water	esčiuk-eme
ñete (ñeti)	to put in	ñet-eme

These verbs drop the ending -iti:

ecbiti	to disembowel	ecb-eme
piňetete	to cure	piňet-eme; cf. "piňet-evac"
ñiňete	to mock	ñiň-eme

The following differ from the verbs quoted above:

zik	to count	zi-bi-eme
quič	to hint	quič-e-eme
cup	to squeeze	cup-e-eme; cf. "cup-eva"
naz	to stretch out	naz-e-eme
rap	to strain, to join <sup>2</sup>	rap-e-eme
sip	to whip	sip-e-eme; cf. "sip-e-evac"

vori	to call	vor-v-emē
isčuvati	to comb	isčiuva-v-emē

Examples of the imperative in phrases are:

someme mo	give me that tuac mo	bring that
cuve yeva	say it again; repeat it ectacsevac move	send there
concaamac ačitin	be careful with bad men
giyeva	think; see, etc.
meyebada	go on!
sevaca mi sacerdotein	listen to the priests
congemac nimbeisiége	ask for pardon
nimbeitica yeči Jesús	be merciful, my Jesus
či ūčitica	and help (me)
giyevac cui miin	think you yourselves
sevacac miin	listen (ye)
nimbeitica ūno	be merciful, mother
giezevac miin ūno-si yu-ya	prostrate yourselves at the feet of the mother kneel you mother of foot at yučevac miin <sup>1</sup>	rest ye
cučada miin nanatin!	sleep, boys! <sup>2</sup>
yeme mo!	tell it! <sup>3</sup>
soquitica siňeve	go to the river border!
izan-yeva miin	go play!

The Participial Mood

The present participle is formed with the suffix -bañ.

azi-bañ	they are coming
čie-bañ	he is drinking
fer u-bañ	he is getting better
iči yi-bañ	ripening
ara um-bañ	is dying

The perfect participle is formed by the infinitive and the suffixes -či and čit:

bei	to be; to stay; to dwell	bei-čit	be seated čacanac	to fry	čacanac-či	a fried thing
giebac	to sew	gieba-či	a sewed thing

Substantives and adjectives are formed in the same manner. The following are compounded with verbal forms:

royaqui-t	the dancer	royaquit-in	the dancers
imaqui-č	the singer	imaqui-č-in	the singers
ciuqui-t	the drunkard	ciuqui-t-in	the drunkards
pana-čit	the weaver	pana-čit-in	the weavers
čiu-čit	carnivorous	čiu-čit-in	the flesh eaters
čovaqui-t	the enemy	čovaqui-t-in	the enemies
sinaqui-t	the broom	sinaqui-t-in	the brooms

The following are used adjectively:

tezac-či	cut
bei-či	be seated
či-či	habil
seňi-či	dead
nimbei-či	merciful
ere hemtaqui-či	almighty

The following are used substantively:

sevaqui-či	hearer
mii-či	passenger
peyaqui-či	speaker
vigi-či	swimmer
sequinaqui-či	violinist

The same suffix appears in mo-in-či "the man," "the neighbor," and in zain-čin "living men."

Other Moods

The subjunctive, optative, causative, etc., are expressed by special participles, mostly suffixes. Thus:

maje-ya zuñ incambañ mayege-če, emoñe hem-bei eñe Dojit wish-if we going heaven-into, is necessary good-be as God eacsi; čume eacsi, pat raise-mi ere moinčin eñe cui-mi maje commands; also commands, that lovest-thou all neighbors as thyself-thou lovest.

The conditional may be expressed likewise by the particle coi, as in coi mi maje "shouldst thou wish."

Armentia gives at as signifying "to be"; however, it seems to express rather the past condition, thus meaning "as yet it is," thus:

quin at cristiano mi	because already thou art (made) Christian
nimbe at ye	I am poor (probably meaning "I always have been poor")
at caviti mi?	hast thou seen?
at	already
at nam	as yet it is
at meñ	it (is) long ago

The following combinations with -at are most interesting:

phen uen-či-as	married woman woman husband has
soñi phen-y-at	married man man wife has

The expression of the gender by changing the final consonant shows clearly that uenči-as and pheny-at — both compounds — are used adjectively.

An analogous proceeding may be observed in certain combinations with muya, which is said to be identical more or less with our auxiliary "to have."

muya	there are (they have)
dai maya	there are much
muya mi merique?	hast thou pineapples?
ege an aca maya mi?	what hast thou at home?
muy-at	the first, masc.
muy-as	the first, fem.
muy-as vesč	the first ear of corn, or "primicia."

Čey-at "neighbor" (male) is also a compound of -at; per contra note čey-as "neighbor" (female).

Jeñ seems to be identical with our modal auxiliary "can," "may:" yeñerai; "it may be," but it is surely used in a future sense, signifying "it will be," am ye-jeñ: I cannot.

Interrogative pronouns as well as adverbs are often transformed into verbs by simply adding to them the affix of the respective tense:

ege-rai hemtaqui mi?	what art thou going to do? (what thou shalt do?)
mo-ve-rai incai?	we shall go there?
quin-rai hi itui mi	now thou shalt tell it me

Even the particle expressing negation is often combined with the affix of the future, thus assuming a verbal function:

am concai (not to care)	to neglect
ama-rai concac	shall neglect am raisete (not loved)	to alienate
ama-rai raise	shall alienate

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS

Judging from the phonetic system, the Moseteno is a language far from being agreeable to the ear. Clusters of totally heterogeneous consonants constitute one of the peculiarities of this language. Combinations as cr, jr, tr, and so on, are very frequent. This separates the Moseteno from Tacana, Cavineño, and from other Indian languages of the Bolivian "montaña," and places it closer to the Chaco-Guaycurú linguistic family, although it does not have the slightest affinity with the latter.

The status of Moseteno is, generally speaking, the same which is typical of all other South American Indian languages. It is in every respect a primitive idiom, wanting proper terms to express abstract ideas.<sup>1</sup> Father Bibolotti thus used paraphrases beyond what was generally possible. For instance:

peyaqui sacerdote-tum Iglesia-cañ	to confess to speak priest with church-in soñi am phen-y-at	single man man not wife have
nimbeisiége	the absolution (poor-from-thing)
nimbeičit	miserable, wretched, unhappy
nimbeiči	merciful
soyoči beyeǵe	hell; (the dwelling of the devil)

moniči	the error (from moni "to loose")
am cosči	awake (not-sleep)
činǵe-tum-či	capacity (sense-with-man)
anic arerecoči	compassion (much-sorrow-heart)
ači jiceacsiči	corrupter (bad-teacher, teacher of bad things)
am fer bei	unhealthy (not-strong-be)
caritac-ǵe	labor (heavy-do-thing)
beyéges	lodging (to be-for, or "to stay-for") am quinaquič	bold (not-fear-having)

Further, the primitive character of the Moseteno is also revealed by the great display of words used to express most simple ideas, but, above all, by the undeveloped ability of abstraction. They say:

eque	to harvest
vecdac	to harvest rice
čoyac	to harvest earth-nuts
vonaqui	to harvest corn
čoj	to throw water
fara mij	to throw a stone
bijtac	to throw into a bag
čuń	the hand
čuń	the arm
zoń	the trunk (of a tree)
zoń	the tree

Here we see that "hand" and "tree" are not differentiated from "arm" and "wood" ("trunk"). These examples, which could be multiplied, give evidence of the low stage of development of the Moseteno.

"The measure of the excellency of a language," says Wilhelm von Humboldt, "is the clearness, definiteness and energy of the ideas which it awakes in the nation."

As to the morphological structure of Moseteno, we may say that the skeleton of the language consists of a large number of word-stems — Nominalstämme — mostly monosyllabic. Their original function and significance can, in most cases at least, be traced back by careful scrutiny. All other forms are compounds. Consequently, an exact knowledge of the morphological and phonetic structure of the language can be obtained only by methodically analyzing each word and each form.<sup>1</sup> Some concrete examples follow:

e-fi-t	menstrua (evidently a compound noun)
fi-mo <sup>2</sup>	sap; coromas<sup>3</sup> fimo "honey," or juice of the plant called coroma , a kind of graminea
fe-fen	the privy parts of woman ve-es	excrements ve-si	the soil
e-fe	the breast
fe-n	the egg
fe-ñi	to lay eggs
phe-n	the woman
ue-n-či	the husband
ue-mi	to marry
ue-mi-ǵe	the marriage
či-bi	to germinate
ve-sč	the ear of the corn
ve-sči	to shoot into ears
ve-ǵemu	the seed
ma-be-s	pregnant
ma-be	to become fat
ma-be-t	fat
be-ñ	full
bi-bi	shoulder
pi-zo-s (genitive?)	the bone-marrow
ño-bi	to tire
ño-bi-bi	tired, debil
ño-bi-t	tired man
ño-bi-ǵe	the fatigue
vi	son-in-law
vi-ya	grandfather
pi-re-t	old, old man
pi-re-s	old, old woman
pi-ri-ǵe	old age

fe-r	strong
fe-r-i	to run, hurry
fe-r-ge	the force

Reverting to the "nominal-stems" mentioned above, it should be pointed out that a similar (or perhaps identical) root is to be found in other words signifying members of the human body. For instance:

ve	the eye
a-fi	the eye-lid
a-fi	the eye-brow
a-fi	the forehead
fi-n	the hair
ve-ya	the face

At the first moment it is very difficult to say whether this stem is or is not etymologically related to that quoted above. Withal, there is some probability that such may be the case, for both occur again and again solely in words meaning members of the human body.

Other nominal-stems may be seen in the following:

ma-na <sup>1</sup>	rip
ma-ra	lean
ma-ra-i	to become lean
ma-ra-ge	consumption
ma-ra-ges	consumptive
ma-be	to become fat
ma-be-t	fat, masc.
ma-be-s	fat, femin., pregnant
ma-jo	joy (well-being)
ma-jo-i	to become merry
ma-jo bei	being merry
ma-je	to love; to wish
ma-jo-ge	joy
ma-ye-ge	heavens, paradise, day, date
ma-ma-i	to play
ma-ma-ges	joke
čo	the lip
čo, ču	the ear
čo-se	the blood

čo-ǵe	the grease, the fat
čo-i	to become fat; fat
čo-i-fos	beautiful
ču-či	soul
čo-vaquit	enemy
ču-tac	to tinge
ziń	the skin
zin-cai	to become ashamed
zin-ca-ǵe	the shame
zin-ca-ič	ashamed
zin-či	the gall, bile
zin-en <sup>1</sup>	the profile
za	green, living, to watch
za-i	to live
za-si	the soul
sa-sa	the brains
i-za-n-qui-t	the baby (boy)
i-za-n-qui-s	the baby (girl)
za-bei	awake
ambi-sa-si-tum	inanimate
ba-sígi <sup>2</sup>	to give birth
na-ba-qui	to brood; to hatch
pa-ńi	to grow
pa-ńe-t	adult, masc.
pa-ńe-s	adult, fem.
pa-ńe-ǵe	the age
ba-n-či	the young man
ba-n-si	the young girl
a-ua	the son
a-ua-ńe	the daughter
na-i	to be born (child)
na-na-t	the boy
na-na-s	the girl
na-na-ti-in	the boys
na-iti-ǵe	the light

na-i-ge	the air
na-itaqui-ge	the looking-glass
na-iči	to see
caz	to double
cas-ege	the knee
i-ñno-ge	transpiration
o-ñno-ge	pus
ji-ñno-i	excited
nos-ñno-i	yellow colour (disease)
no-y	to terrify
no-yi	to become frightened
no-yi-t	frightened
i-ñno-i	the sweat
ñno-bi	to become tired
ñno-be-ge	the fatigue
ñno-be-t	tired man
no-y no-y	to tremble
vog-i-t; cf. d-ojit "God"	the brother
vog-i-s	the sister
voj-co	the intestine
voc-co	the belly
yiñ	the bone
yiñ-yu-ves (bone-foot-for)	the shin-bone
yu	the foot
yu-če	to tread
yu-če-ge	the pace, the step
ču-ñ	the mouth
ču-pi; cf. soñ "saliva"	to spit
tere-bet	the stomach
tere-ret	the throat
fa-qui	to rave
fa-qui-ge	the rage, delirium (dying)
fa-co bei	being excited
fa-co-i	to become excited
fa-co-ge	the fury, the grudge
fa-mi-ñe-ge	the rage (when sleeping)
e-fa-ti	to molest

čo-va-quit	the enemy
e-fa-ti-ǵe	the anger
ti-fa-ti	to protect
ti-fa-ti-ǵe	the patron, protection
ča-canac	to fry
i-ča-nac	to dry
ča-ńes	dry
ca-foñ	chaos, to mix
foñ-ebate	disenter
m-oñ-i	to perish; lost
com-oñ	to wrap up
com-oñ	the cloth
cav-in	soon, hurry, quick
cav-oi	to escape
cav-oi-ǵe	the flight
caj-oi	the want, gripe, anguish
ima(c)-ǵe	the song
ima-qui	to sing
ima-qui-č	the singer
v-ima(c)-ǵe	the echo
vor-i	to call
vor-e-ǵe	the call
vor-veac	to invoke vor-ve-acsi }
he-ji	to cry
he-či	the breath
fer he-či-t	excited
či (gi-yi)	to say
či-i	to know
i-či-e	to know
či-in-ǵe	the knowledge
či-cacsi	to believe
či-cacse-ǵe	the faith
gi-e-ǵe	the criterion, judgment
gi-e-ǵe-tum-ci	proper, right, fit, ascertained
gi-si	to laugh
gi-si-ǵe	the laughter
gi-čui	to remember
gi-čui-ǵe	the remembrance

dene	gí-e-ǵe	foolish (without criterion)
gí-ez		to kneel down (praying)
če-i		to elevate thoughts
i-če-i-ti		to pray
ari		to hurt oneself
are-ǵe		the wound
anic	are-re čoci	the compassion
c-ari		difficult
c-ari-tac		to work
c-ari-ta-ǵe		the labor
am	c-ari	easy (not difficult)
t-ari		sad
it-ari-če	moinčin (?)	to afflict a person
t-are-ǵe		the melancholy, sadness
ai-ǵe		the wound on a mule's back

SUFFIXES

hij-ai	to finish; to conclude
poz-ai	to liquid
oč-ai	to fall to the ground

Another class of suffixes appear in certain words signifying parts of the human body:

gí-ve <sup>1</sup>	podex
ñe-be	the liver
merere ve	the back, spinal column (?)

This suffix does not seem to be related to the stem -ve, so frequently found in words of similar signification. It might be identical with the suffix -ve, which exercises an adverbial function. Further and more detailed investigations will surely solve the questions, which must be left open here.

REDUPLICATION

a. Impression of noise, as:

čam-čam	to rub
čiak-čiak	to rub; to dry off
coi-coi	to clean
čik-čik	to file
čok-čok	to split wood
čik-čik	cicada nocturna
čet-čet	to cut into bits
cača-cača	to chew
čuk-čuk	to sharpen on a wheel
čoy-čoy	to tear out
paň-paň	to screw; to twine
fi-fi	to blow
oco-oco	toad
quij-quij	to beat the drum
rica-rica	drum
quer-quer	to shave
čiuk bu-bu-ge	foam of the soup

b. Emphatical expression:

ači-ači mic	injury by words
ño-ño	mother
mo-mo, mu-mu	father
no-no	namesake
ño-ño	the morrow, to-morrow
va-va	palate
bi-bi	shoulder
ma-ma-i	to play

c. The idea of "lasting," "steady":

camaň-camaň uči	swimmimg the head
coiti-coiti-uči caň	" " "
pane-pane	separated
zak-zak	"
za-za	shell (closed?)
i-ňi-ňi	nausea
či-či	clever
noi-noi	to tremble
čio-čio	mucus

o-či-či	maggot
man-či-či	tick
i-za-za	herpes
coč-coč	molested
sčev-sčev	ragged

d. Repetition of a movement:

camak-camak	unction
tecoñ-tecoñ	to shake the head
sacañ-sacañ	to peel eatables
sov-sov	to thread
zac-zac	to unglue

AFFILIATED LANGUAGES AND PEOPLES

The linguistic and ethnological position of the Moseteno is still uncertain.

Brinton,<sup>1</sup> referring to the Yurucaré, Tacana, and Moseteno, simply states that they are "not of one tongue." His "Mose-tena (?) linguistic stock,"<sup>2</sup> embrace only the different names under which the Moseteno are known, and to which reference has been made in a previous chapter.

The Argentine scholar Lafone Quevedo does not state clearly his opinion in regard to this question. Other scholars, less authoritative, suggest that there existed a relationship between Tacana, Moseteno, etc., on the one hand, and Puquina of Puca-rani and Lake Titacaca on the other. The language of the latter tribe is said to have been spoken also by the Uros, or Ochozo-mas.<sup>3</sup> If so, then these Indians must have been in many respects different from the Uros brutos, mentioned by Father Barzana and by the chronicler Cieza, as living in the neighborhood of the Desaguadero and on the Pacific coast, in several calatas between Callao and Antofagasta.

However that may be, the modern Uro language as described by Toribio Polo<sup>1</sup> bears no relationship either to Puquina of Barzana<sup>2</sup> or to Moseteno. The latter have also been erroneously included in the group of Mobima, and so forth. It was the explorer Heath who first referred to the "great similarity between the Maropa and Tacana idioms." Closely related to these languages are doubtless Araona, Cavineño, and Sapibocona. A short vocabulary of the latter idiom is to be found in Hervas' "Vocabulario Poligloto." It is genuine Tacana. Intervocalic dental -d- of the Tacana seems to become -s- in Sabipocona. As to the alleged linguistic affinity of Mobima with Tacana, no reference could be found. Uhle, the great authority on Peruvian and Bolivian affairs,<sup>3</sup> seems to have verified the relationship between the Mobima and the Puquina of Barzana.<sup>4</sup> This fact would be sufficient to take the Mobima out of the Tacana linguistic family. In addition, the careful comparisons made of the Mobima vocabularies as published by Hervas, by Keller, by Heath, and by Father Cardús, with the known Tacana materials, make it clear that — aside from several loan words — the two are widely apart.

All those Indian idioms of central, eastern and northern Bolivia have not yet been studied methodically and systematically. No corner of South America is less known than the habitat of the Moseteno and adjoining parts, especially as far as the native Indian languages are concerned.

Of all these Indian languages, we possess vocabularies, accompanied by short grammatical sketches, of Tacana, Cavineño and Leco only. The works of Hervas, D'Orbigny, Keller,

<sup>3</sup> But not Maropa, as is said in "Discovery of New Materials on the Moseteno Idiom"; See the American Anthropologist, N. S., vol. 18, No. 4, October-December, 1916, p. 603.

<sup>4</sup> Unfortunately, it proved impossible to obtain Uhle's article on this interesting and important matter.

Heath and Cardús contain merely brief glossaries of the Sapicona, Maropa, and Itonama<sup>1</sup> idioms.

Heath states: "The Cavinas Indians use the Tacana language." Cardús, however, asserts that they speak a different idiom from Tacana, even though using some words of the latter. Modern linguistic researches prove Heath to be right. Araona and Toromona also belong to the Tacana family, as well as Maropa and Sapibocona. The differences between these idioms are but dialectic.

As to the linguistic position of Moseteno among the Indian tribes of northern Bolivia, the main conclusions reached by this preliminary study can, subject to modifications resulting from further investigation, be summarized as follows:

The Moseteno language is characterized by a special phonetic system. The accumulation of consonants is completely at variance with what is found among the Tacana, the Cavineña and other neighboring idioms. On the other hand, the morphological and syntactical structure convey the impression that the Moseteno is related to the Tacana group, and particularly to the Cavineño.

The following comparisons are given as illustrations:

CAVINEÑO		MOSETENO
capein-imeti	to abandon	at himé
ena	agua	inac	rio
ney	heavy rain	añei
puji	ward	vogit	son
pacaca	to open	vanac	open equiniju	within, inside	equi	after equive	behind
etiqui	fire	esi	to light
iyuca	head	juči
mimi	to speak	mic	word
ena	river	jinac
etupuqui	scale	tupuğe

tupu	sufficient	at tupu
ići	to drink	čei

epere	lateral part of the body	merere	back part of the body
suqui	tickling	čiquiñege

The Itonama language is somewhat removed from the Tacana family, although it contains two important words, which, etymologically, may be related to the respective Moseteno terms. These words are:

ITONAMA	MOSETENO
iču	head

APPENDIX A

BRESSON'S PLAGIARISM OF WEDDEL

From the comparisons below, which certainly show the most audacious intellectual "filibustering," it can easily be inferred what value ought to be attributed to the assertions advanced by the most unscrupulous of all modern South American travelers about the countries he claims to have crossed, and about the aboriginal inhabitants he alleges to have visited.

The following quotations placed side by side show the source of Bresson's "learning:"

WEDDEL, 1853

pp. 416-417. "Parmi diverses grandes entreprises établies dans le district de Tipuani, vers cette époque, on cite en particulier celle que dirigeait un mineur du nom d'Andres Coll. Il exploita les veneros du ravin pendant environ trente-quatre ans, et paya pendant ce laps de temps, en droits (3 %) au gouvernement espagnol, la somme de 236,000 piastres, ce qui

p. 481. "Parmi les diverses entreprises qui s'établirent depuis dans le district de Tipuani . . . d'aucuns écrivent Tipoani (sic.) . . . on cite celle que dirigeait un mineur du nom d'Andrés Coll, qui exploita des lavaderos pendant trente-quatre ans et paya pendant ce temps, en droits, au gouvernement espagnol, la somme de 236,000 piastres fortes; ce qui suppose un bénéfice

ibid. “Qu'on en juge: un sieur Villamil, dans une période de vingt ans, a retiré des sables de Tipuani, 8,046,900 francs d'or; et, bien que la main-d'oeuvre soit extraordinairement bon marché, les frais ont monté à la somme de 6,235,000 (sic!) francs, d'où ses bénéfices personnels se sont réduits à environ 1,800,000 (sic!)<sup>1</sup> francs.”

INDIANS

p. 445. "Le costume des Indiens Lecos consiste, chez les deux sexes, en une grande chemise sans manches, appelée talle, qui leur tombe jusqu'à mi-jambe. Ce vêtement ne diffère en rien du tipoi<sup>1</sup> des Indiens Chiquitos."

p. 445. "Il est souvent blanc et quelquefois bleu ou violet . . ."

ibid. "Les femmes se mettent souvent plusieurs talles l'un sur l'autre, et les hommes ajoutent fréquemment à ce vêtement un pantalon. . . ."

pp. 445-446. "Quelques unes de celles-ci se tressent la chevelure en deux nattes qu'elles laissent pendre sur leur dos. . . ."

p. 446. "Les armes dont ces Indiens se servent, aujourd'hui, sont le fusil et l'arc."

p. 447. "Il est fait avec le bois du palmier Chonta. . . . Les flèches, dont les dimensions en longueur sont à peu près les mêmes, sont formées du pédoncule, ou de la partie supérieure de la tige, d'une graminée géante, appelée, par suite de son usage, Gynerium sagittale, elles sont armées de pointes de bambou ou de bois de palmier . . . Quelques unes sont enjolivées de plumes brillantes."

p. 468. "Le costume des Indiens Mosetenos consiste en une grande chemise, sans manches, qui tombe jusqu'à mi-jambes. Ce vêtement, imposé par les missionnaires; ne diffère en rien de celui des Indiens Lecos, Chiquitos, Mojos et Muras que j'aurai bientôt l'occasion de décrire."

p. 468. Le talle . . . est ordinairement blanc et quelquefois bleu ou violet."

ibid. ". . . Les femmes se mettent souvent plusieurs talles l'un sur l'autre, . . . et les hommes ajoutent quelquefois un pantalon à ce vêtement un peu primitif. . . ."

p. 469. "Les femmes portent les cheveux longs, séparés en deux tresses rudes et brillantes qu'elles laissent pendre sur le dos."

ibid. "Les armes dont ces Indiens se servent aujourd'hui sont le fusil et l'arc."

p. 469. "L'arc, en bois du palmier chouta (sic!) . . . Les flèches, armées de pointes de bambous ou de bois de palmier, sont formées du pédoncule d'une graminée gigantesque,— Gynerium sagittale — Quelques-unes de ces flèches sont enjolivées de plumes brillantes. . . ."

ibid. "La nourriture des habitants de Guanay est essentiellement végétale. Le maïs et la banane en font la base."

pp. 447-448. "(When they are fishing), car ils ont soin de saler et de fumer ou de sécher au soleil tout ce qui ne sert pas à la consommation immédiate."

p. 447. ". . . Les Lecos sont trop paresseux pour chasser et pêcher avec beaucoup d'ardeur; cependant, quand ils s'en occupent, ils sont ordinairement heureux, et les provisions qu'ils font dans ces occasions leur durent longtemps. . ."

p. 448. "La flèche et l'hameçon ne sont pas les seuls moyens usités par les Lecos pour capturer les habitants de leurs eaux; ils se servent aussi quelquefois dans ce but de poison dont ils infectent les rivières, ainsi que cela se pratique chez un certain nombre d'autres tribus de l'Amérique du Sud."

p. 449. "Dans d'autres parties de la Bolivie, et notamment dans les Yungas, on se sert, pour empoisonner les rivières,<sup>1</sup> de la tige fraîche d'une petite liane appelée Pekho ou Sacha dont on broie une ou deux brasses, sur une pierre, dans le point de la rivière que l'on veut infecter."

ibid. "La nourriture de ces Indiens est presque exclusivement végétale. Le maïs et surtout les bananes sont les mets favoris des Mozetenos."

ibid. "Quand ils pêchent, ils ont soin de saler et de fumer tout le poisson qui ne doit pas servir à leur consommation immédiate, et comme ils sont très sobres les provisions qu'ils font dans ces occasions, aussi bien qu'à la chasse, durent très longtemps."

ibid. "Outre la flèche et l'hameçon, les Indiens des Yungas ont encore un autre moyen pour capturer les poissons. Ils se servent, dans ce but, d'un poison dont ils infectent la rivière, ainsi que cela se pratique chez toutes les tribus aborigènes que j'ai visitées dans ce voyage d'exploration" (sic!) ibid. "Les Mozetenos se servent de la tige fraîche d'une liane qu'ils nomment pekho, dont ils broient 3 ou 4 mètres sur une pierre dans la partie de la rivière qu'ils veulent empoisonner. . ."

ibid. "Dès que l'eau s'en trouve chargée, les poissons

qui s'y rencontrent viennent flotter inanimés à la surface, où on les recueille sans peine."

ibid. "La substance employée à cet effet par les Indiens de Guanay (the Leco) est le suc laiteux d'un des plus grands arbres de leurs forêts, connu par eux sous le nom de Soliman, et qui n'est autre que l'Ajuapar des habitants de la Nouvelle-Grenade, ou le Sablier des Antilles françaises, et enfin l'Huracrépitans des botanistes. Pour se procurer ce lait vénéneux, ils font de nombreuses entailles à l'écorce de l'arbre, et le suc qui en exsude va aussitôt imbiber la terre qui entoure le pied du tronc. Cette terre, recueillie dans un grand sac, est jetée dans la partie de la rivière où doit avoir lieu la pêche."

p. 457. "(Leco Indians) leur physionomie moins ouverte . . . Leurs yeux sont presque horizontaux."

Furthermore, Dr. Weddel's references to the interesting tribe of the Callahuaya Indians have been copied almost word for word by Bresson without citing his source of information.

WEDDEL, 1853

pp. 177-178. "Ces Indiens Callahuayas, dont l'histoire est à peine connue, constituent une nation particulière enclavée au milieu de celles des Quichuas et des Aymaras, et dont les membres se sont acquis une espèce de célébrité comme médecins et comme sorciers. . . Les Callahuayas sont essentiellement viennent flotter inanimés à la surface, où on les recueille sans peine."

p. 480. "Les Lecos empoisonnent aussi les eaux des rivières. La substance qu'ils emploient à cet usage est le suc laiteux du Soliman, grand arbre des forêts, qui n'est autre que le sablier des Antilles.

Pour se procurer ce lait vénéneux, les Indiens font de nombreuses entailles à l'écorce, et le suc qui en exsude va aussitôt imbiber la terre qui entoure le pied de l'arbre. Cette terre qui, recueillie avec soin, est jetée dans la partie de la rivière où doit avoir lieu la pêche."

ibid. "La physionomie des Lecos est ouverte . . . leur yeux sont presque horizontaux. . ."

BRESSON, 1886

p. 467-468. "Les Indiens Callahuayas constituent une tribu à part, enclavée au milieu de celles des Aymaras et des Quichuas. Les individus de cette tribu ont une célébrité de guérisseurs qui les fait tout particulièrement respecter. Ils sont essentiellement voyageurs et passent pour être quelque peu voyageurs, et à tel point que l'on en voit, chose rare pour des Indiens, quitter leurs pays et atteindre, avec leur fortune sur le dos, aux extrêmes limites de la république Argentine. Leur costume, que revêtent souvent, pour se distraire, les cholos de La Paz, consiste en une culotte noire sur laquelle retombe un poncho rouge, en une grande cravate de laine de vigogne et un bonnet auriculé surmonté d'un chapeau à grands bords. Enfin une bésace ornée d'anciennes monnaies d'argent contient leur petite pharmacie, et ils portent invariablement au cou, comme marque distinctive, un crucifix d'argent massif.”<sup>1</sup>

The chapter entitled: “L’Agriculture de Bolivia,” etc.,<sup>2</sup> pp. 619 passim. is also copied almost entirely:

WEDDEL, 1853

p. 134. “Sous un point de vue, le marché peut en effet être regardé comme le miroir d'une des parties les plus importantes des habitations, je veux dire de leur partie culinaire.”

p. 136. “Une autre considération qui peut donner quelque intérêt à l'étude d'un marché, c'est que cette étude permet souvent de déterminer, au premier coup d'œil, la nature du climat de l'endroit où l'on se trouve.”

sorciers. J’en ai rencontré un peu partout, en Bolivie, où je les reconnaissais facilement à leurs costume bizarre: une culotte noire, un poncho rouge et un bonnet auriculé que surmonte un vaste sombrero en poil de vigogne. Sur la poitrine ils ont toujours une énorme croix, en argent vierge, qui est pour ainsi dire la marque distinctive de leur spécialité.”

BRESSON, 1886

p. 621. “Le marché d'une grande ville comme la Paz doit être regardé comme le miroir d'une des parties les plus importantes des habitations, je veux dire de leur alimentation.”

ibid. “L'étude des productions végétales d'un pays permet souvent de déterminer au premier coup d'œil la nature du climat de l'endroit où l'on se trouve. . .”

p. 151. "Les señoritas de La Paz en sont toutes extrêmement friandes, et elles ont l'habitude, lorsque les taiachas sont de saison, d'en prendre comme rafraîchissement, pendant la chaleur du jour, en les trempant dans de la mélasse."

Furthermore, the description of some of the national meals of the Bolivians, as for instance, "chupe de leche," "aji de disparates," and so forth, were taken from Weddel (pp. 162-163) without the slightest reference to the latter's work.

In regard to the illustrations inserted as "originals" in Bresson's book, it ought to be stated here that several of these pictures have been copied with only slight changes from the work entitled "The Amazon and Madeira Rivers," according to the sketch- and note-book of the German explorer Franz Keller, published in New York (the German edition in Stuttgart) in 1874 by Keller-Leuzinger.

HERMANITO: Te trasmito en lengua Musatena algunas pequeñas platicas, y panegiricos de algunos Santos, de quienes se hace la fiesta en estas Misiones para que si son de tu agrado los prediques conformes estan, o añadirlos y ameliorarlos, o como mejor sea tu voluntad; el unco objeto que me propongo es para que te pratiques en el Idioma, y afin de que no te sea tan pesado el aprenderla: los terminos que no entiendas ya tienes adonde acudir, y por lo tanto en lo sucesivo no te pondre mas el Castellano, sino puramente museteno pues asi me ha parecido mejor, como tu mismo lo experimentaras.

VIVA GESU NOSTRO AMORE, E MARIA NOSTRA ESPERANZA

No te descuidar Hermanito de leer cualquiera advertencia que te haga; pues la que te hago ahora es, que no te confundas mucho en querer hablar a estos pobrecitos cortos de inteligencia y menos de memoria, en quererles hablar con terminos sublimes, pues que aunque lo hagas, no esperes sacar mucho provecho; aunque les hables en su idioma; ni tampoco te has de confundir en que sean largas las platicas, pues que de nada se acordaran; solo si tendrán memoria que el P. les ha dicho que vivan bien, y de lo demas no sabran darle razon

Tambien te advierto que todas las advertencias que te haga; te las pongo con el fin para que mas pronto conoscas a estos infelices, y veas el mejor modo posible para hacerlos felices eternamente con la ayuda del Señor M<sup>a</sup> SS<sup>a</sup> y S. Jose—de quien en seguida te pondre su pequeño Panegirico, cuya Fiesta se Celebra en S<sup>a</sup> el dia 19 de Marzo

QUERIDO HERMANITO

Lo que sucede en la vida animal del cuerpo, de igual modo acaece en la vida espiritual del Alma; si alimentamos nuestro cuerpo diariamente con los mismos manjares, a pesar de que sean bien condimentados, no obstante a causa de la misma repeticion le causan fastidio y a veces nauseas; asi sucede con las comidas espirituales, pues que a causa de nuestra miseria, aplicada a una sola materia de continuo, se cansa, se fastidia, se aburre, y a veces que es lo peor, todo lo deja. Pues ni mas ni menos sucede a mi en la actualidad con la lengua Musatena, ya hacen muchos dias que llevo aplicados a Ella sin distraerme a otras, y ha sido motivo para que te deje un recuerdo mui consolante no menos que edificante, que es un pequeno compendio de la vida y virtudes que ejercito en vida el M R P. F Mateo Cerdá bis Prefecto de Misiones, y misionero en la de S<sup>a</sup> Ana en Senvapi.

En el Nombre S<sup>o</sup> del Señor.

Al proponerme delucidar la vida y virtudes que practicó en un grado eminente el nuestro hermano F Pablo Mateo Cerdá Msn Ap. en las Misiones Musatenas, no dejava de sentir desde lo mas intimo de mi corazon una voz que continuamente me decía ¿quién eres tu que quieres publicar lo que ya todos saben mejor que vos? y seras tu capaz de elogiar en otro lo que tu no conoces y menos practicas?—esas y otras voces espantadizas no menos que verídicas han sido la justa causa de que se haya quedado en un profundo silencio hasta la fecha la edificante vida de dicho P. Pablo Cerdá.

Pero a pesar de tan tristes reflesiones que me hacia: por otra parte veia que hibamos poco a poco a quedarnos sin el mas minimo recuerdo de Su vida Apostolica, y por consiguiente a vernos priva-

Esa privacion, digna de llorarse, ha sido la causa principal de que yo emprenda esta dificultosa (para mi) empresa; la que no obstante efectuare con la ayuda del Señor y de nuestra comun Madre Maria SS<sup>ma</sup>, refiriendo con toda veracidad y sensillez todo lo obrado por el dicho finado F. Pablo Cerda, desde el dia en que le conoci, hasta el ultimo momento en que dejó de existir.

Por lo tanto Hermanito espero de tu bondad a que te compadeceras, y echaras al olvido todos los yerros que podras hallar en el discurso (fol. 43 left) de esta pequena si pero veridica historia, considerando a mi favor que mas me he ejercitado en idomas inmensamente diversos del Castellano.

En el Año del Señor 1857, dia 3 del mes Octubre llegue del Colegio de La Paz a la Mision de la Inmaculada Concepcion, dicha de Guachi, en calidad de Cura Conversor.

A mi feliz llegada halle en dicha Mision a los RR. PP. F Pablo Mateo Serda Perfecto de Misiones, y F Amadeo Boydi Misionero de la de S. Miguel de Muchanes: el primero me causó no poca pena al verlo tan extenuado, no menos que el Segundo al verlo tan adolorido por un cancer llamado comunmente Espondia. Pocos fueron los dias que me acompañó dicho P. Cerdá, pues que los que hacheres de su Mision lo llamavan a su destino. Despues de permanecer algunos dias en mi Mision, fui a visitarlo en la Suya de S<sup>a</sup> Ana, en donde lo halle todo ocupado en su ministerio Apostolico istruyendo a sus Neofitos en los deberes de Cristiano, con una caridad y dulzura, que a pesar de ser algo difuso en sus doctrinas no causava en los oyentes tedio ni cansancio. Desde aquellos primeros dias, pude conocer el zelo que tenia de cuidar aquel rebaño que el S<sup>or</sup> le habia confiado; y no anduve errado en mi juicio, pues que lo tuvo hasta al fin de sus dias, no solo para los de su grey, sino mas alla se extendio su ardiente caridad: y sino que lo digan los barbaros Chimanes (hoy remontados) lo que padeció para reunirlos, las palabras de vida que les enseño, y los recuerdos saludables que les confió! que hablen (si fuera posible) los Ríos que navegó, los Caminos y montes que atravesó, que digan, que atestigüen los sustos, el cansancio y las llagas que les causaron; y todo pasó y lo sufrió con la mayor alegría solo para llamarlos y conducirlos al redil del Señor! Que digan mis hermanos compañeros en el Ministerio Apostolico, y testigos a un mismo tiempo, que es lo que no hizo para que se efectuara la gran conquista de los Toromonas (hoy dejada por falta de quien vaya), que digan, y todos dirán unánimes, que hizo y practicó todos los medios posibles para que se verificara aquella importante conquista! Que digan sus vecinos Misioneros, las continuas averiguaciones que hacia a los Suyos, y a los de otras Misiones, y los encargos a sus Misioneros a que todo lo averiguaran por si quedava alguno en algún rincón desconocido privo de la gracia del Sº Bautismo. Pregunta a todos estos Neofitos Musatenos y que te digan algo respecto a Su zelo, y oíras: Pobresito P. Pablo, tuvo en su Mision a un barbero, sin bautismo todavía, quien se fue al monte a cazar, trepó a un arbol, de donde estaba pendiente un mono, y de mucha elevación se cayó; el compañero asustado lo dejó semivivo, y corrió a dar noticia (fol. 43 right) al P Pablo quienes al momento se puso en marcha, y menos de un medio dia anduvo el espacio de dos días mas o menos, llegó, y felismente llegó a tiempo p<sup>a</sup> bautizarlo.

Nada te dire de lo que practicó para con estos Neofitos Musatenos p<sup>a</sup> sradicar de su corazon toda supersticion; pues que todas las yerbas, vejucos que tenian en uso los Idolatras, llamados en lengua musatena Cucucsi, para ofender y matar a otros; todas y todos los ensayo comiendolos en su presencia para de ese modo arancar el miedo y la crencia supersticiosa, y sembrar en ellos con mas fruto la palabra saludable y verídica del Señor; de igual modo omito otras muchas practicas todas de caridad y de zelo para el bien espiritual de las almas, para decir algo perteneciente a la vida privada de dicho P. Cerda.

Si del fruto se conoce el arbol, y del efecto la causa, desde luego podras deducir que alma tan bella y virtuosa no tendria. En efecto, raro era aquel dia que dejava de decir la Santa Misa, sin primero haber hecho (por un cuarto de hora a lo menos) la Santa meditacion, practica que solia hacerla antes de amanecer; Jamas salia de la Iglesia sin primero haber dado las debidas gracias al Señor; y si alguna vez salia por algun que hacer importante del Pueblo (que nunca faltan) era para luego retirarse a cumplir con ese sagrado deber: acto continuo administrava a los enfermos los remedios que conocia mas convenientes, los consolava, los animava a la resignacion y paciencia, y despues de haber practicado con los enfermos la mas ardiente caridad, pasava el resto del tiempo en su pobre vivienda en la lectura de libros, o que trataban de moral u otra ciencia no descuidandose de leer algun libro de devucion hasta tanto que lo llamavan, o pedia de que comer *no dejando el oficio.*

Llegada la hora de la refeccion comia lo que bonariamente tenian a bien ponerle adelante: Repetidas veces lo sorprendi con una sopita de arros sobre la mesa toda negra por el umo la que solo al verla quitava las ganas de comer, no menos que los platanos llenos de ceniza que le amontonavan sobre la mesa: solo si tenia el mayor cuidado de que la comida fuera del mejor modo posible, lo mismo que en su aseo, cuando algun otro Misionero hiba a visitarlo. Despues de su pobre refeccion se retirava a descansar un rato para en seguida pasar el resto del dia en sus ocupaciones, y a una hora competente de la noche, acompañado de todos los Muchachos del Pueblo se retirava a la Iglesia a rezar el S<sup>o</sup> Rosario, y en seguida del responso para las almas se sentava a la mesa para comer lo que Dios le proporcionava para ir en seguida a su aposento a rezar sus Oraciones, y hecharse a dormir sobre tablas cubiertas con estera mui delgada de ojas de caña. Este metodo de vida lo observó hasta que ya no pudo por la ultima enfermedad.

(fol. 44 left) Atestiguan algunos mis compañeros haberle visto llevar el cilicio; pero yo no puedo afirmarlo, solo si usava (por la quebradura) un fierro demasiadamente toscos y pesante,

Antes de pasar mas adelante te quiero hacer una advertencia, pues que me parece te hayas ideado, que otros Misioneros que hiban a visitarle pasarian los dias como en un retiro, y que el finado los recibiera con cara triste o melancolica. pues te equivocarias si de tal modo lo pensaras, pues que tal era la alegría, el jubilo, lo divertido que era, que a veces pasava en apariencia de locura y sino que lo digan todos los que lo han conocido, y oiras algo mas respecto de la Religiosa y Santa alegría que rebosava su alma.

Otra te quiero hacer de no menos importancia, pues que es mui probable que se te pueda ocurrir, que el finado Padre se descuidara del pueblo respecto a lo temporal, pues todo lo contrario, pues que tenia por una de las obligaciones principales despues de las del alma, el bienestar, de los Neofitos, el areglo y limpieza del Pueblo y de las casas, calles, y plaza, y lo que mas entusiasmava a la gente era que El mismo hacia arastrar con bueyes tierra para llenar pozas; El mismo removiendo tierra para que otros la llevaran; tan luego se ponia de carpintero, herrero, arquitecto etc etc, sin saber, ni como empezar; pero siempre conseguia lo que deseava. Premesas estas dos advertencias, que me han parecido necesarias, paso a decirte algo de la observancia de los deberes como Religioso Franciscano.

Si tanto hacia, zelava, orava para el bien espiritual de los demas; si tanto velava para que otros observaran la Ley del Señor; de aqui podemos sacar la consecuencia que no haria nuestro hermano para observar los deberes propios como Religioso, como hijo de nuestro Serafico P. S. Francisco. En efecto en cuanto respecta al voto solemne de la S<sup>a</sup> pobreza, nunca se le ha visto infiel no solo efectivo, pues que nada poseia, solo se le ha visto usar su pobre cama, sus libritos, sus vestiditos necesarios; nunca se le ha reparado que haya usado zapatos serados y menos llevar medias, solamente le he visto usar de medias y zapatos serrados estando enfermo, y eso practicava porque lo obligavan: No solamente poseia nada efective sino que tambien lejos estaba su corazon para estas cosas del mundo pues nada apetecia, nada deseava, para El aunque todo el mundo se perdiera nada le importava. Si algo buscava y tenia era para su pueblo, como siempre decia.

Que te podre decir respecto a la S<sup>a</sup> obediencia, cuando para El bastava no digo el mas minimo mando de sus Superiores, sino que bastava una Señal para efectuarla? Pero lo que mas admirava, era que otros sus comisioneros, a pesar de que eran sus subditos, siempre deseava que les mandaran: de aqui provenia que nada queria obrar, tanto en arreglo de su pueblo, como en el de su alma, nada queria emprender sin el beneplacito de sus subditos: a todo eso se acompaña la siega obediencia que prestava a todos, en lo que conocia ser segun el espiritu del Señor; la alegría y prontitud para efectuar lo que le ordenavan. Finalmente en todo lo que respecta a la mas estricta observancia de los tres votos solemnes, era todo ojos, por decirlo, para evitar con la mayor diligencia posible todo lo que podia ser de ofensa a sus deberes de Religioso de nuestro Serafico P. S. F.

A todo lo referido hasta aqui es imprescindible el no decir algo respeto aquella virtud tan necesaria en un Religioso de la S<sup>a</sup> humildad, la que practico hasta la ultima hora de su vida de una manera mui particular; hasta su misma figura corporal dava a entender la bajez en que se considerava; en efecto, prescindiendo al particular, en El nunca se la ha reparado aspirante a cosa alguna que tuviera el mas minimo aspecto de bellez u otra cosa semejante; nunca se confundia mas, que cuando se veia ocupar el puesto de Superior, no menos que cuando sus commisioneros les manifestavan alguna consideracion, entonces era cuando se confundia hasta ponerse a llorar, y prorompia aquellas palabras. Ahi! pobre de mi! que sera de mi! finalmente tal era el concepto bajo que tenia de si, que tenia en mayor reputacion a los mismos Indios que a si mismo.

Pero si tal y a tan alto grado de humildad habia llegado nuestro hermano bien podemos afirmar que la consiguió por la continua y no interumpido ejercicio de la oración; pues tal era en El este ejercicio que hasta las conversaciones que tenía con sus compañeros eran todos motivos para El de orar siempre se oía de su boca aquella dulces palabras Jesus Maria y Jose; si tomava alimento, o bebia, o hacia otra cosa, todo lo hacia, y todo lo enserava entre la parentesis de J. M. J.

A eso añade la paciencia que tuvo con los que le querían mal, pues que no ha habido época en la que no haya tenido que sufrir algo; y por no ser difusa en esta materia solo referire dos entre muchísimas persecuciones que tuvo. una fue la que le imputaron sus mismos Neofitos, atribuyéndole que hiba de noche en pos de mujeres, con solo al verle entrar en mia casa donde estaba una India gravemente enferma, y que hiba con el unico objeto de ayudarla a bien morir: la otra fue de un S<sup>or</sup> quien atribuyó a dicho finado ser (fol. 45 left) hijo suyo uno de los Neofitos, con quien hiba acompañado para la Paz. y para dar fin no te dire de lo que tantísimas veces y en varias ocasiones han querido matarlo; todo lo ha sabido, y todo lo ha sufrido con la mayor paciencia y resignación, hasta que al fin el Señor se dignó llamarle a los eternos descansos; pero ante todo quiero débilmente manifestarte todos los pormenores de su corta enfermedad que no dura mas de 7 días.

Después de los Santos ejercicios que hicimos los tres PPes le sobrevino una pequeña hinchaçon de pies, y una continua modorra, la que a pesar que no le causava ningun dolor, no obstante siempre decia que de aquella siempre moriría; por lo que desde luego se dispuso al Sacrificio con recibir en cama la S<sup>a</sup> Comunión. Ahí! hermanito no puedo con la pluma expresar ni escribir el gozo y la alegría que experimentó nuestro hermanito al recibir al Señor Sacramento. Solo te dire que hizo como las Criaturas al presentarles alguna fruta deliciosa. Lo recibio con aquella devoción, que admirava no menos que edificava a los circunstantes; desde la primera comunión hasta unos cinco minutos antes de morir todo era invocar a

J. M. J. tal certidumbre tenia de su salvacion Eterna que hasta la expresó con palabras, diciendo, ya tengo la masorca asegurada, ya no la aflojo, yo no; Gesus et Ahora vengi, ahora vengi Gesuset; añade los tiernos y continuos coloquios con la Virgen SSma. la esperanza que tenia en el Señor de su Salvacion, la misma que espresava con las palabras no tengo, decia, otra esperanza que la de Nuestro Señor J. C. porque me ha de salvar por sus infinitos meritos, y la del Sacerdote que me asiste pues que presenta la misma persona de J. C. y de quien oire aquellas consoladoras palabras. Yo te perdono tus pecados y al concluir el 7º dia de su enfermedad, con una serenidad y alegría espiró, al parecer, sin sentir las agonias de la muerte, el dia 4 de Enero del Año..... fue sepultado En cajon en la Iglesia de Senvapi, Mision de S<sup>a</sup> Ana al pie del altar mayor, con una cruz fija en la misma grada del presbiterio que coresponde a los mismos pies de nuestro finado Padre; y en fe de lo dicho lo firmo en la Mision de la Inmaculada Concepcion de Covendo dia 20 Mayo
