THE CAMBRIDGE WORLD HISTORY OF

VIOLENCE

The first in a four-volume set, The Cambridge World History of Violence, volume 1 provides a comprehensive examination of violence in prehistory and the ancient world. Covering the period through to the end of classical antiquity, the chapters take a global perspective spanning sub-Saharan Africa, the Near East, Europe, India, China, Japan and Central America. Unlike many previous works, this book does not focus only on warfare but examines violence as a broader phenomenon. The historical approach complements, and in some cases critiques, previous research on the anthropology and psychology of violence in the human story. Written by a team of contributors who are experts in each of their respective fields, this volume will be of particular interest to anyone fascinated by archaeology and the ancient world.

GARRETT G. FAGAN was Professor of Ancient History at The Pennsylvania State University. His main research interests lay in the field of Roman history and archaeology, on which he published three monographs, including The Lure of the Arena: Social Psychology and the Crowd at the Roman Games (2011). He edited or co-authored three other books, including (with Matthew Trundle), New Perspectives on Ancient Warfare (2010).

LINDA FIBIGER is Senior Lecturer in Human Osteology in the School of History, Classics and Archaeology at the University of Edinburgh. She is editor (with Nicholas Marquez-Grant) of The Handbook of Archaeological Human Remains and Legislation (2011) and (with Rick Schulting) Sticks, Stones, and Broken Bones: Neolithic Violence in a European Perspective (2012).

MARK HUDSON is a researcher in the Eurasia3angle Research Group at the Max Planck Institute for the Science of Human History, Jena. He is also a research associate of the Institut d'Asie Orientale, ENS de Lyon. His previous books include Ruins of Identity: Ethnogenesis in the Japanese Islands (1999), which won the John Whitney Hall Prize of the Association of Asian Studies. He has also co-edited Multicultural Japan:

Palaeolithic to Postmodern (1996) and Beyond Ainu Studies: Changing Academic and Public Perspectives (2014).

MATTHEW TRUNDLE was Chair and Professor of Classics and Ancient History at the University of Auckland. The author of Greek Mercenaries from the Late Archaic Period to Alexander (2004), he edited (with Garrett Fagan) New Perspectives on Ancient Warfare (2010) and (with Christopher Matthew) Beyond the Gates of Fire: New Perspectives on the Battle of Thermopylae (2013).

THE CAMBRIDGE HISTORY OF VIOLENCE

General Editors
Philip Dwyer, University of Newcastle, New South Wales
Joy Damousi, University of Melbourne

This four-volume Cambridge World History of Violence is the first collection of its kind to look at violence across different periods of human history and different regions of the world. It capitalises on the growing scholarly interest in the history of violence, which is emerging as one of the key intellectual issues of our time. The volumes take into account the latest scholarship in the field and comprise the work of nearly 140 scholars, who have contributed substantial chapters to provide an authoritative treatment of violence from a multiplicity of perspectives. The collection thus offers the reader a wide-ranging thematic treatment of the historical contexts of different types of violence, as well as a compendium of experience shared by peoples across time.
