

Supplemental Material S1. Insights into the effect of general attentional state, coarticulation and primed speech rate in phoneme production time.

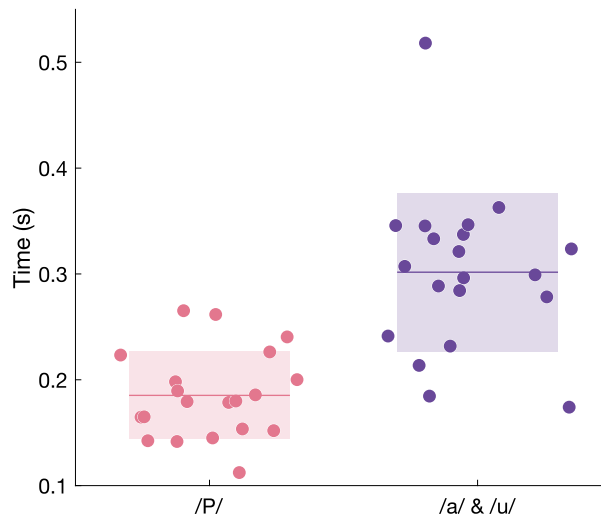

Figure S1. Distribution of phoneme articulation times obtained in the Main Procedure. Articulation times were averaged within participant and phoneme type (consonant or vowel) across all blocks. Individual data points (dots) represent values for each participant, while the line shows the mean across participants, and the shaded regions represent the standard deviation.